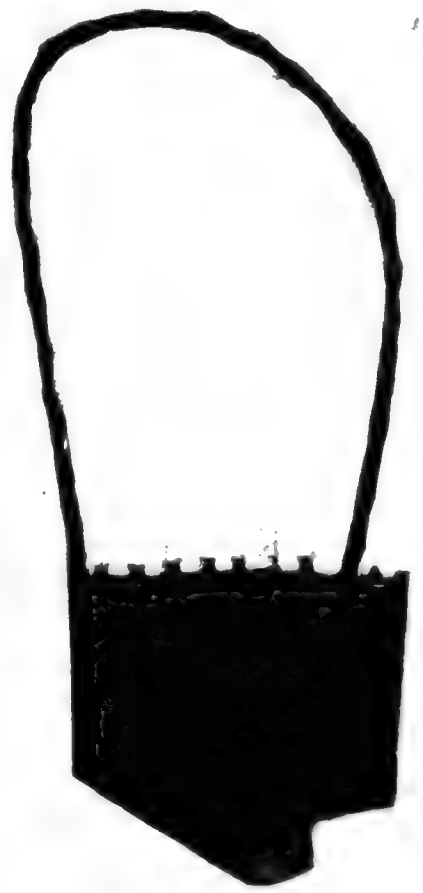
E. F. Winterson, who retired as treasurer after long and faithful service, presented a report of the year's business and turned over to his successor a certificate of deposit for $668.57 and his check for $76.99, together with a collection of silverware such as few of the members knew the club possessed. Acting on the recommendation of A. Henderson, who spoke for the trustees, a vote of thanks was given Mr. Winterson for the excellent condition of the treasurer's accounts. Also on Mr. Henderson's recommendation it was voted to invest $500 in a bond.

The transportation committee recommended that those who attend the meeting of the American Carnation Society at Buffalo travel on the Lake Shore Limited, leaving Chicago at 5:30 p. m., January 26. Berths should be reserved, but no tickets should be purchased until the party meets at the train. If ten or more travel on one ticket the fare will be $10.50 each, but if individual tickets are bought, the fare will be $13.10.

William E. Tricker, of Western Springs, Ill., and C. E. Pinney, of Louisville, Ky., were elected to membership. Joseph Einweck was reinstated. Applications were received from A. Iralson, Edward Hunt, Peter Bohrman, Alfred Woerman and J. W. Fink.

Among those present were E. H. Mann, of Richmond, Ind.; Roger Peterson, of Cincinnati, and Harry Balsley, of Detroit, the latter accompanied by his recently acquired wife.



Various Notes.

The secretary of state at Springfield has licensed the incorporation of Charles H. Fisk, capital $12,000, to succeed to the business Mr. Fisk for several years has conducted individually at 1581 Ogden avenue. The incorporators are C. H. Fisk, Bertha C. Fisk and Clara D. Miller, but the purpose of the step is to provide a readily transferable interest in the business for Al. Marine, formerly of Pehrson & Marine, who recently became associated with the Fisk establishment. Mr. Fisk is looking to the day when he can devote the greater part of his time to his fruit farm in southern California, where his daughter lives, leaving his business interests here in good hands.

The Frank Oechslin range is in apple-pie order again after the Christmas holocaust that cleaned up all the stock in bloom. Benches have been refilled for Easter, now only eighty days away, and with bulbous stock that will be ready much sooner. James Hancock says business was excellent at Christmas, and as quiet as usual since.

A. Henderson says it is in keeping with the fitness of things to speak of the sale of Mrs. Russell rose plants in the past tense, as already having taken place. He thinks the orders already booked establish a new record for sales of a rose in its second season after dissemination. Of course, Henderson & Co. have done their share toward making the big total.

C. H. Fisk says the holiday season for him holds no regrets. Christmas business rose to an even better total than last year and the cost of stock was lower.

George Reinberg has sold the property in Lincoln street, 353 feet south of Bryn Mawr avenue, west front, 266 feet to the Chicago & Northwestern railroad right of way, for $20,000.

Last season John Evert had 1,000 plants of a white sport of Dr. Enguehard chrysanthemum. He liked it so well he is propagating it heavily for 1915. He also has a sport from Yellow Eaton that he considers a winner and which he will plant heavily this season.

The E. C. Amling Co. reports January 11 not only the best day since December 24, but the best Monday the house has had since last May, of course excepting holidays.

The funeral of A. A. Sprague, January 12, made a heavy demand for high class funeral work. Nearly all the better class stores were represented. W. J. Smyth had the family order. The blanket was of white carnations and valley.

N. P. Miller joined the staff of A. L. Vaughan & Co. January 11. Mr. Miller is president of the Cook County Florists' Association and has spent nearly thirty years in the flower business in this city, the last few seasons having been with the J. B. Deamud Co. and Kennicott Bros. Co. With William Johnson in charge of shipping orders and Mr. Miller as floor salesman, Mr. Vaughan feels he has a staff capable of handling any business.

Sam Pearce is sending in large quantities of poinsettias that missed Christmas and Ernest Rober has cut off a lot of begonias that failed to move at the holiday and is shipping the sprays to wholesale houses.

Taking advantage of the slack season for counter sales, Edgar Winterson is spending a few days calling on private gardeners and L. H. Winterson is visiting city trade in the interest of Winterson's Seed Store.

Herman Schiller says he believes the retailers have no real complaint to make. The Schiller north side store is doing specially well on wedding work and the west side store is extremely busy with funeral work, sales running well ahead of last year, stock obtainable at prices that make for better than the average profit.

A. T. Pyfer spent January 11 on a tour of inspection of the Joliet plant of the Chicago Carnation Co.

N. J. Wietor says that records covering a number of years show that grafted rose plants have no advantage for Wietor Bros. On the contrary, they make more money off own-root stock. He figures that the value of grafted stock depends considerably on the character of the soil a florist uses.

At Peter Reinberg's much pleasure was taken January 11 in the receipt of an order for 5,000 carnation cuttings to be shipped to the government greenhouses at Washington.

George Asmus is feeling fine again; he has starved out his rheumatism. It was a bread-and-milk diet for several weeks.

O. W. Frese comments on the decreasing demand for asparagus strings. He says it is surprising that so good an article should have fallen into such disuse.

pleting bench building in their new establishment at Union Grove, Wis. Pecky cypress is being used throughout, with concrete posts. The soil is stacked under cover and several cars of manure are on the ground. It is expected to plant the houses early in March.

Weiland & Risch never have been so well located as now. The changes in the building have given them two good entrances, each better than they had before.

C. L. Washburn refers to J. Pierpont Morgan's famous expression, "undigested securities," and says the market recently has been burdened with undigestable red roses.

William Wienhoeber and wife recently made a brief trip to Cincinnati, called by the death of one of Mrs. Wienhoeber's relatives.

The city ordinance requiring the removal of all stairways that cut into sidewalks within the loop will necessitate changes in two flower stores in one block on Wabash avenue. The entrance to the Wabash Flower Market and the stairway to the store of J. C. Craig both must be moved back to the building line.

Harry Manheim, with Hoerber Bros., is of an analytical turn of mind and he predicts a steady improvement in the market from now on.

Considerable stock belonging to the Geo. Wittbold Co. was destroyed in the recent fire at the establishment of Sol Garland, Des Plaines, Ill. Louis Wittbold made a hurried run from Chicago in a taxicab, arriving in Des Plaines at 5 a. m. By means of newspapers and carrying live coals from the burning coal pile to different parts of the range, more serious damage from frost was prevented.

OF THE

Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

internally fired boiler, recently perfected by this concern, is attracting considerable attention.

A general rearrangement of the interior of the store of Buchbinder Bros. is in progress. The office, which has occupied much valuable display space in the front, will be moved to the rear. Recent display refrigerator sales reported by this firm are to Oscar Richter, Chicago; Englewood Florists, who have made complete new installations of Buchbinder equipment, and John Giles, Reading, Pa.

Stock again is in order with the Raedlein Basket Co. Stocks of baskets are difficult to keep in order and after a holiday rush things are apt to be rather mixed. Curt Kindler, secretary of the company, is pleased with the holiday business and remarks that orders and inquiries are already coming for valentine and small favor baskets.

The Chicago Carnation Co. has decided that it will be wisest not to disseminate Aviator this season and has withdrawn it from the market.

F. W. C. Brown, of Cleveland, was in the city over Sunday and rumor has it he will join the staff of the Fleischman Floral Co. When asked if he would verify the report, Dr. Rubel, president of the company, replied, "Not yet." Word comes from Cleveland, also, that the Gasser Co., where Mr. Brown has been for some time, is looking for a manager for its Euclid avenue store. F. M. Dubois is assisting as salesman for Fleischman.

There was an interesting ceremony at St. Gregory's church, January 10. It was the christening of the son of Mrs. John Cunningham, daughter of John Zech. The godmother was Mrs. Samuel Reed, who had served in like capacity at the christening of the baby's mother and grandmother. The godfather was Henry Kranz, who also had acted at the christening of Mr. Zech. Miss Carrie Zech, Mr. Zech's second daughter, is again in the Presbyterian hospital.

H. V. Hunkel, of Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, was in the city January 12, on his way home from Richmond. He has made three trips to the Indiana city this season to see Hoosier Beauty growing at the Hill establishment and his enthusiasm grows with each visit.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

About ten days ago members of the common council introduced a motion requesting that all friends, instead of sending flowers to the inaugural, send the money to the city clerk for charitable purposes. Less than $30 was received by the city clerk for charity, while the florists lost trade which averages annually about $1,500 to $2,000. Following this action by the council, the rumor gained circulation that flowers would not be allowed at the state inaugural. The consequence was that the floral display was noticeably inferior to previous years, and it is estimated that the florists suffered a further loss of fully $2,000. There is agitation to have the matter taken up by the Florists' and Gardeners' Club, or to call a mass meeting of those identified with the business to take vigorous action in protesting against these attacks upon the trade.

There are fewer social functions than usual at this time of the year, so that taken altogether the market conditions are not roseate. Prices have taken a decided tumble and stock moves slowly.

Various Notes.

At the first meeting of the creditors of the Everett Forestry Co., which recently went into bankruptcy, Henry A. Griffin was elected trustee and bond was fixed at $900. A petition to sell assets was granted. According to the schedules of the corporation, the liabilities amount to $15,650.06 and the assets to $1,407.79.

John Lindstrom has returned to his old position with Miss Florence Willard, at the Hope Greenhouses. He has been west for about a year.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club has set January 25 as the date for the annual banquet and installation in Swarts hall. The arrangements are in the hands of a committee consisting of Past Presidents Alexander Macrae and Robert Johnston.

George Reopell, employed by T. J. Johnston & Co., had a narrow escape recently from serious injury while operating one of the firm's delivery autos. The machine struck against some iron girders, smashing the windshield, etc. Mr. Reopell's face was cut by flying glass.

Miss Nellie O'Conner has severed her connection with Eugene McCarron's establishment.

Frederick Covill, with the Boston Cut Flower Co., Boston, was a visitor last week. He formerly had charge of the flower department of the Shepard Co.

Elmer E. King had a large decoration recently at the Masonic Temple in Attleboro.

D. W. McCoid spent the New Year's holidays in New York, combining business and pleasure.

Walter S. Sword, of Valley Falls, is serving on the petit jury in the Superior court.

A. Littman, at the Blackstone hotel, has a boy attendant in full uniform, with the firm's name on the front of his cap.

William Doel, of Pascoag, is serving on the jury in the Federal court that is trying the big bank case.

GREENWICH, CONN.

There was a large attendance at the monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society January 8. Officers were installed as follows: President, W. J. Sealey; vice-president, Wm. Morrow; treasurer, Robert Williamson; secretary, J. B. McArdle; corresponding secretary, P. W. Popp; executive committee, Jas. Stuart, Thos. Ryan, John L. Burns, Jas. Foster, Wm. Morrow and Ewen McKenzie.

There was a wonderful display of carnations on the exhibition tables, because of the cash prizes offered by J. B. McArdle. First prize was awarded to Thomas Ryan, second to John Canning, and third to Robert Grunnert. In the non-competitive classes Samuel Bachelor, manager of the Amohat greenhouses at Mamaroneck, N. Y., was awarded a cultural certificate for a grand vase of Gorgeous, also high commendation for several fine vases of carnations. Other awards were: Carnations from Thomas Ryan, vote of thanks; carnations from Thomas Aitchison, vote of thanks; seedling carnations from A. Wynne, highly commended; variegated yellow carnations, sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward, from P. W. Popp, highly commended; Killarney roses from Carl Hankenson, vote of thanks; cut orchids from A. L. Marshall, highly commended; orchid plant from Robert Williamson, highly commended; rhubarb and tomatoes from Robert Grunnert, vote of thanks; Buddleia Asiatica from P. W. Popp, vote of thanks. The Market.

The Rev. Billy Sunday has been drawing immense crowds to the Tabernacle daily. His plans, down to the number of exits and of stoves, was so thoroughly advertised that everybody knew all about them when he arrived. The success of the meetings has been extraordinary, a wonderful tribute to his marvelous ability and to advertising. Perhaps this may seem a digression from the subject in hand, but were you to attempt to report the wholesale cut flower market this week you would have doubts whether that were so, particularly as the market is as dull as the reverend gentleman is full of life. There has been little doing in flowers; conditions are bad. The supply is smaller than it has been, the demand much smaller. Carnations have suffered more than any other flower; it was quite impossible to sell them all at any price, despite their fine quality. Orchids have been cheap. The little Percivaliana and small flowers of Trianæ have depressed the price even on the finer stock. The same is true in some measure of gardenias; the best sell at listed prices, the others far below. Valley is having a hard time, while violets and even the newly arrived daffodils and freesia have fallen in price. Roses have done a little better, except the Beauties, which are in bad shape. While yellow, red and white roses are scarce, there is not enough demand to advance the price. Calla lilies and snapdragon are in demand, with Easter lilies and sweet peas following, perhaps because there are more of them. There is plenty of white lilac and an abundance of green.

Visitors to the store of the Henry F. Michell Co., who brave the turmoil and cock-a-doodledooing of the poultry show, this week, miss the genial floor manager, Fred Cowperthwaite. Inquiry reveals the fact that a new department has been quietly and thoroughly organized on the balcony overhead. Here Mr. Cowperthwaite was found installed on the eastern side with half dozen assistants charged with running the new order department. It is the duty of this department to receive, record, dispatch and follow up every order. Ten minutes after an order is received in the store, no matter where or how, it is due in the order department; fifteen minutes' time is allowed for necessary forms before the order is sent on to be filled and packed. When Mrs. Grundy phones to know what has become of her box of seeds, or Mr. Florist his insecticide, the order department must promptly and courteously reply that the box is on the train for Oak Lane or the bug killer is in the hands of the Adams. The pride and joy of the order department lies in a machine called, I think, the Addressograph. By its assistance an unheard of number of catalogues can be correctly addressed in an absurdly short time. There are modern desks and trays of cards and what not that bring this new department, so necessary to business success during the rush, up to the last second of modern improvement.

A Discovery.

Some thirty years ago, we are told, few bouquets were complete without Daphne odora. Like Damascus steel, the art of daphne growing was believed to be lost. Everyone of the great horticultural celebrities in this country was appealed to in vain for daphnes. They said there were none on this side of the water. Curiously enough, they were mistaken. There is a florist, just one in this country, who grows the daphne. He has 5,000 plants. His houses are full of blooms today. He knows the art and guards it so jealously that it is feared his secrets will perish with him. The houses and the culture employed are diametrically opposed to modern methods. It is doubtful whether any but a genius could make the daphne profitable today. That it is still grown, and grown to perfection right here in our midst, is a floral wonder of the age.

A Warning.

The state authorities require that all manure from districts where the hoof and mouth disease has affected the cattle shall be disinfected before it is moved. The disinfectant used in some cases is a solution of carbolic acid. Carbolic acid when strong enough is fatal to plant life. It is of vital importance that every florist find out whether disinfectants have been used on the manure intended for use in the greenhouses, what that disinfectant was and how strong was the solution. It then can be readily ascertained from the state college chemist whether it is safe to use the manure that has been dosed.

Club Meeting.

When the routine business of the recent club meeting was finished, the chairman of the essay committee introduced the speaker of the evening in a neat little address. The small, though thoroughly representative group of members knew as by intuition that they would learn many things. The speaker told of his eight years' experience in public enterprises. It was most important, he said, to have an undertaking such as the proposed national flower show thoroughly organized—good workers were important but a good organization was most important. It is necessary to start early to get things done. The daily papers should be used freely in advance, for a long time in advance, to let people know what it is proposed to do. Here was the opportunity to give play to the imagination. You can propose to do anything—for instance, you can propose to have a rose with a stem six feet long. If such a rose is not forthcoming at the time, then you can only say that all the growers tried their best and that they only succeeded in producing a rose with a stem five feet eight inches long. The papers will print such reading notices when well written, provided an advance order for advertising space is given at the same time. The campaign of the Rev. Mr. Sunday was cited as an example of well organized newspaper effort. Everybody knows everything about the Sunday meetings and their success from the start has been amazing. A central location the speaker considered of vital importance, a place where throngs of people naturally go and will naturally enter without special effort. The "Safety First" show held uptown had not been so popular as it should have been, owing to its out-of-the-way position. A small show of high merit that could be kept crowded with visitors was urged in preference to a large show partly filled with people. Stress was laid on having unusual features and letting it be known in advance that they were novel.

So great an impression was made by this address by E. J. Berlett that Alfred M. Campbell's motion that it was the sense of the meeting that the national flower show committee be asked to select a central location for the show in 1916, was carried by a close vote, despite the fact that the committee has selected Convention hall, at Broad street and Allegheny avenue.

Arthur A. Niessen moved that the third Monday evening of each month be devoted to games and sociability in the club room. Monday evening, February 18, was named for this purpose. Refreshments will be provided.

Gentlemen:-

How do you manage to send out such a uniformly good paper every week? Perhaps this is none of our business, but it concerns us because it affects advertising returns.

At any rate, we intend to more than double our advertising space in your columns for 1915.

The Market.

Business continues poor. In January, 1914, conditions were not of the best, but prices now are much lower than at that time and there is a greater waste. Business at the retail stores is not so good as a week ago, but is holding up remarkably well. The trouble seems to be that too many flowers are being produced for the demand and there is a crying and immediate need of additional outlets to move the surplus. There seems to be no great unanimity as to what methods of disposal would best meet existing conditions, but all are agreed that immediate action and not aimless talk is needed. Bostonians are generous flower buyers and there should be no trouble in cleaning up all flowers if wholesalers, growers, retailers and salesmen will but get together and unite on some mutually satisfactory plan.

Roses are selling cheaply, from Beauties downward, and as low as $10 per thousand is taken for short-stemmed stock. There is, however, a fair call for such favorites as Hadley, Ophelia, Russell, Killarney Queen, Stanley and Sunburst. Killarney and White Killarney are selling at low prices. Carnations are in a bad position; they seem to have entirely lost their one-time popularity and prices of $1 to $3 per hundred are discouraging. More violets are sold at 50 cents than at 75 cents per hundred, and in early January these prices leave no profit for the grower. In bulbous flowers there are now plenty of Golden Spur, Trumpet major, Double Von Sion and bicolor daffodils available; also campernelles, tulips, etc. Sales on these and Paper Whites drag. English primroses sell quite well; so do yellow marguerites, but, on the other hand, calendulas, stevias, alyssums, wallflowers and snapdragons are all druggy.

Lily of the valley sells slowly; the same holds true of lilies, callas and sweet peas, although good Spencers move at fair prices. Cattleyas are now in oversupply. Gardenias are lower in price, but of finer quality. Freesias are somewhat more abundant and much lower in price. Plant trade was dull last week.

Various Notes.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was held January 9. President J. K. M. L. Farquhar presided. The treasurer's report showed some falling off in income as compared with the preceding year. The reports of the various committees were read and accepted. The secretary's report showed that 130 new members were added to the society in 1914. President Farquhar showed plans prepared for the entire reconstruction of the interior of Horticultural hall at an estimated cost of $150,000, which would make it thoroughly up-to-date and a big income yielder. I hope these much needed changes can be inaugurated during the present year.

F. J. Dolansky showed eighteen finely flowered Cattleya Trianæ at Horticultural hall January 9, including some splendid forms. These secured a silver medal for superior culture. Mr. Dolansky also showed Cypripedium Lasellianum. Donald McKenzie, gardener to E. B. Dane, secured a cultural silver medal for a beautiful hybrid cymbidium; also a well flowered Chysis aurea. George Melvin, gardener to Colonel Chas. Pfaff, was awarded a silver medal, cultural, for a grand flowered specimen of Lælia anceps, with twenty-one flower spikes.

The annual lecture course opens January 16, with a lecture from F. E. Palmer on "The Selection and Care of House Plants." The majority of the speakers for the present season will be from Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass.

Another meeting in furtherance of the credit protective system for the growers and salesmen of the wholesale markets was held at the Boston Coöperative Market January 9, when there was a large attendance. Recent business failures and existing conditions seem to have at last convinced about everyone that the loose system prevailing for so many years must end. One or two growers and dealers still hold aloof, but the movement is sure of success even without their coöperation and seems likely to be soon placed in force.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, is cutting a splendid lot of French Golden Spur narcissi. His pink snapdragons and Paper Whites are also good.

Alfred M. Davenport, the well-known Watertown florist, was recently held up at midnight and robbed. He got off lightly, the footpads only securing $2.

Carbone's continues to do a fine business. Three of the travelers started out last week, two going to the south and one to the Pacific coast. Mr. Carbone himself expects to leave for San Francisco early in February and will combine business with pleasure.

Owing to the fact that all the halls of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society are rented for January 19, it has been found necessary to postpone the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club until January 28. The installation of officers and ladies' night always draws a record attendance and the coming meeting will prove no exception to this rule.

Among the bulbous flowers now being handled by Mann Bros. are French Trumpet major, Golden Spur, bicolor and Double Von Sion narcissi, Dutch Golden Spurs and tulips in many varieties.

The West Street Greenhouses, of Reading, are getting calendulas in quantity, sweet alyssums, Marguerite Mrs. Sander and fine Benora, Mrs. Ward, White Wonder and White Enchantress carnations.

Penn had the wedding and church decorations at the Arlington Street church, Boston, January 6, for the Boyd-Hyde wedding. They had an effective white window January 9, and another which was a symphony in yellow. In their most recent advertisements in the Boston dailies they enumerate their corps of floral artists, the list including such well-known names as H. S. Rogers, A. Daniels, J. T. Fagan, J. Eisman, H. M. Collins, J. F. White and D. M. Robertson.

J. Seaver, of Framingham, is shipping to J. T. Manter good White Wonder, White Enchantress, Beacon and Enchantress carnations; also sweet peas and Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus.

Galvin's are busy getting their new store on Park street overhauled and hope to move into it during February. January 7 they had the decorations for the banquet of the Massachusetts Bankers' Association, at the Copley Plaza hotel, and January 8 they had the decorations for the first assembly ball at the same hotel.

Herman Waldecker, of Braintree, still is cutting mums and is open to take orders for Easter delivery, from present indications. His mignonette and Pink Delight are extra fine now.

J. T. Gale, of Tewksbury, in addition to a grand lot of single and double violets, is growing a big lot of giganteum lilies for Easter. The following carnations are showing up finely at his place: Eureka, Rosette, Beacon, White Wonder, Pink Delight and Philadelphia.

Thomas Roland, in addition to a fine cut of roses from his Revere establishment, is also getting Spencer sweet peas, which entirely fill one of his big Lord & Burnham houses there.

F. J. Dolansky has a notable display of Cattleya Trianæ, with many thousands of flowers and buds. He also has a nice lot of Dendrobium Wardianum already in flower. His gardenias are giving plenty of high-grade flowers now.

John McFarland is following his poinsettia crop with Easter lilies, which now average five to six inches high and are an even lot.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. expect no shortage of any variety of vegetable seed, but expect delays and difficulties in filling flower seed orders. They have noted a much more optimistic feeling among their customers during the last few weeks. James Farquhar has gone to spend the winter in South Carolina.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. says business continues to hold up remarkably well, the receipts exceeding those of a year ago.

Charles E. Evans, of Watertown, is strong on callas now, as well as mignonette and asparagus.

William H. Elliott is now quite active, although he is twenty pounds lighter than before his recent illness.

Let everyone planning to attend the Buffalo carnation convention from this section write to S. J. Goddard at once. Boston must needs send a good delegation, with so popular a president.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

After the severe weather of late December and the new year, we are having a thaw, accompanied by rain and slush. There is a lull in trade, as is usual after the holiday rush, but funeral work continues to be heavy. There is an abundance of all kinds of cut stock. French daffodils, Romans, sweet peas and Lilium speciosum are among the spring flowers offered. There has been some early freesias, Mrs. Sander daisies and mignonette. Harrisii lilies are scarce, but there are some excellent callas.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club, held January 8 at Kasting's hall, a large number was present, and there was a most entertaining initiation for the new year. Wallace Eiss and Louis Neubeck were the masters of ceremonies and did the work well. All of the members enjoyed the merriment. A colored duet rendered vocal and instrumental music throughout the evening. S. A. Anderson, vice-president of the American Carnation Society, gave a talk relative to the convention to be held here January 27 to 29. Committees were appointed to look after the different phases of the work in connection with the convention.

George B. Hart, of Rochester, was present, and he was given a special initiation ceremony. Refreshments were served at the close of the business meeting.

Various Notes.

James Longley, formerly with Rachael Rebstock, and now with J. V. Laver, Erie, Pa., was a visitor in town last week.

A handsome blanket of pink roses and lilies of the valley was made for the casket of Mayor Fuhrman's daughter Saturday, January 9, by S. A. Anderson. The grave was lined with pink roses.

Jerry Brookins is serving on the jury in the Supreme court for a short time, but he doesn't enjoy the work especially well.

Stephen J. and Frank Mahoney spent a few days in Canandaigua recently.

Miss Jenny Reichert was married to Stephen A. Irwin, of New York city, December 29. They left immediately after the ceremony for an extended wedding tour, to include Los Angeles and San Francisco.

S. A. Anderson had an attractive spring window last week, which consisted of clumps of daffodils here and there in green moss, also clumps of Roman hyacinths and lilies of the valley, with a background of growing heather plants and pussy willows. The simplicity of the display was its charm. Bright spring flowers always draw crowds of admirers on a cold, wintry day.

L. H. Neubeck is growing some excellent Harrisii lilies.

Charles Sandiford had a little trouble a few weeks ago with his orchid peas dropping their buds, for which there seemed to be no apparent cause.

The Market.

The warm, sunshiny weather of the last few weeks is bringing flowers along much too fast. I have never seen roses come into this market in such large quantities and of such good quality as at the present time. In one of the retail shops I noticed roses advertised for 75 cents per dozen. Most of the roses, however, are bringing good prices. Carnations, snapdragons, mignonette, valley, violets, narcissi and sweet peas are plentiful and seem to be moving fairly well. Jonquils are beginning to come in, but they are rather soft and find little sale.

There seems to be an oversupply of good Lorraine begonias. The stock is of the best, but the supply is greater than the demand. R. S.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The local wholesale market was by no means satisfactory on any day last week, except on Saturday, January 9, when a heavy demand was reported, due to the large amount of funeral work in all parts of the city. The retailers report that work in other lines has fallen off since the holidays. The weather continues to be extraordinarily mild. The dark, rainy days still cling to us, but do not seem to reduce the heavy receipts of cut flowers that have been coming in since the first of the year.

The cut of carnations last week was large and of excellent quality, but did not bring good prices. Enchantress and its offspring take the lead over any other varieties, and Beacon leads in the reds. Killarneys constitute the bulk of the roses and also sell most readily. Richmond, Ward and Hadley come next in demand. Prices are reasonable in all grades. Violets and sweet peas are not any too plentiful; the demand cleans out the best of them daily. Extra good lilies, valley and Paper Whites can be had at any time and shipments of these come in daily. Asparagus remains in short supply, but in all other greens the market is well supplied.

Various Notes.

Fred Ude, Jr., and his son, Emil, left last week for a trip to Florida, where they expect to purchase land for an orange plantation. Mr. Ude will return to look after his greenhouse range in Kirkwood, but his son will remain in Florida.

George Willens, of the Willens Construction Co., Chicago, spent a few days here last week, looking up florists who contemplate building this year.

H. P. Schaad, who for the last year had his establishment in the Cinderella building, has moved and is now located a block east of his old location.

Grimm & Gorly have had an unusual run of funeral work since the holidays. Their over-the-counter trade, too, has been heavy.

Oscar Ruff, who is with Conrad Bergstermann, on South Grand avenue, has announced his engagement to Miss Niebling, daughter of Mrs. Bergstermann.

R. E. Blackshaw and M. A. Leganger, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, are here this week interesting

The regular monthly meeting of the County Growers' Association was held January 6, in the meeting hall at the Eleven Mile House. President Vennemann was in the chair and there was a good attendance. The meeting proved quite interesting.

The Missouri Botanical Garden Students' Club held its monthly meeting January 7, in the lecture room at the garden. The speakers of the evening were P. A. Kohl and L. P. Jansen. Both had interesting subjects, which were discussed later in the meeting.

Henry Wright, landscape architect, gave an illustrated lecture before the Engineers' Club of St. Louis, in the Academy of Science, on "The Economic Side of City Planning."

George Schmidt is now on the job in W. J. Pilcher's big rose house at Kirkwood. Mr. Schmidt is known as one of the best rose growers in this section and Mr. Pilcher is much pleased in securing him.

The St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, according to Justice A. Runyan, will extend an invitation to the American Carnation Society to hold its 1916 meeting in St. Louis and will ask the support of the Florists' Club in this at its meeting this week.

H. C. Irish attended the meeting of the State Horticultural Society, at Kansas City, last month and reports that he was elected vice-president of the society. Mr. Wilson, president-elect, is also a resident of St. Louis.

Our five wholesalers, Messrs. Kuehn, Berning, Smith, Windler and Angermueller, had plenty of good stock in everything seasonable last week. The demand was light and prices were low. Roses and carnations constituted the bulk of the stock.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

CHARLES MCTAGGART, traveler for W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, was killed by a train at Kearney, N. J., January 10.

RALPH M. WARD, of New York, is paying a visit to his Canadian friends. When last reported he had worked up from Ottawa and Montreal to St. John, N. B.

HUGH M. TAYLOR, Lloyd, Fla., says: "The curtailment of the cotton acreage throughout the south means a big increase in the seed business from Virginia to Texas. The entire cotton belt will increase its gardens and plant legumes and melons. Already we feel the increased demand for our watermelon seed contracts for the coming year."

THE seedsmen at Nashville, Tenn., report that business is opening up slowly. Most of the seeds are not in as yet, although none of them anticipate any serious shortages. There is little acreage in seeds in the vicinity of Nashville for next season, and what there is has been damaged by the freezing and thawing of the last month. There will be a fair crop of Seven Top turnip seed, barring accident.

WHEN J. S. Michael, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia., returns from his present business trip in the east, he will stop at Des Moines, Ia., and take up his legislative duties. He was elected to the lower house of the legislature at the last election. Among the first bills which he will introduce will be one authorizing appropriations for the planting of evergreens throughout the state.

THE L. L. Olds Seed Co., Madison, Wis., has enlarged its catalogue this year, to ninety-six pages and a larger page. It also has made one or two changes, such as listing peas and beans by the pound instead of pint and quart. Prices up to five pounds include postage regardless of distance. On account of being centrally located the average postage is only 5 cents a pound and S. A. Wilson says they concluded not to make much fuss about it, finding it better to make prices as easy to figure as possible. He adds that many customers have commented on their catalogue as being the easiest to order from of any they have ever received.

For mid-January the volume of mail orders is satisfactory. No large percentage of the catalogues are pulling as yet, but the southern trade is opening up rather better than usual.

Wm. Henry Maule, Inc., says last year saw an accession of more than 10,000 new customers and that a specially good season is expected in 1915 because of the extra demand for farm products created by the war.

In anticipation of the increase in number of truck growers in the course of crop diversification in the south, H. G. Hastings, the Atlanta seedsman, will give the Georgia State Horticultural Society, at its annual meeting January 19 to 20, at Athens, "Some Don'ts for New Truckers."

WILL DETAIN SEED IMPORTS.

The Treasury Department, at the request of the Department of Agriculture, has instructed collectors of customs to sample and detain, pending an examination and report by the latter department, all lots of seed offered for entry under the seed importation act, such as alfalfa, Canadian bluegrass, Kentucky bluegrass, millet, orchard grass, rape, redtop, timothy, clover, meadow fescue and awnless brome grass. P.

BIDDERS ON FREE SEEDS.

Number Sharply Reduced.

The U. S. government is, as usual at this season, in the market for seeds for congressional free distribution which will cost approximately $252,000, but only slightly more than half as many seedsmen as usual are interested in getting the contracts. The number of bidders decreased from ninety-one last year to fifty-five this season. And among those who dropped out are some of those who had a major portion of the last order.

The bids for supplying the seeds needed for the 1916 distribution were opened at Washington January 12. Not only were the bids less numerous than usual but the attendance of seedsmen was not up to the average. Those present were J. W. Edmundson, of the California Seed Growers' Association; J. T. Chisholm, of Braslan Seed Growers Co.; Watson S. Woodruff and Frank C. Woodruff, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons; E. L. Page, of the Page Seed Co.; F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, and a Mr. Halliday. The bids were opened by a committee representing the Department of Agriculture, Chief Clerk Reese acting as chairman and Chief Oakley, of the seed bureau, as secretary and tabulator. As usual, only the name and address of the bidder, the kind of seed offered and the price were read, the quantity offered and other information being considered confidential.

The reduced number of bids made it quite plain the situation has changed since last year. As the reading progressed it seemed the government might have difficulty in securing from the offers certain kinds needed and would have either to go into the open market for the seeds or to replace them with other kinds on which the tenders exceed in quantity what the department ordinarily uses. To the congressmen and their seed shop seeds are seeds. The department does not ask for tenders of certain varieties of radish, but just radish—what have you got?

All Varieties Thoroughly Tested

IT is the policy of James Carter & Co. to thoroughly test every strain of flower and vegetable. Not until satisfactory results are shown by actual growing are they listed in the Carter Catalog.

That is why Carter's Tested Seeds are so reliable and true to description.

If you have not examined the 1915 Carter Catalog—American Edition—write at once for your copy.

Your money is not ours until you are a satisfied customer not because we sell them—that is only a bread-and-butter argument—but because they are better producers of profit than other brands if properly grown. We know where they come from; how they are grown; just who grows them, and everything about them. So we write with convictions of actual knowledge when we tell you no better lily bulbs are grown. The price is reasonable and the results excellent. Every florist needs lilies at all times of the year—if he doesn't have lilies for sale he is not properly stocked for business. Lilies cannot be substituted—if you cater to a particular trade you must have them or lose your trade. Get a case every month and you will be surprised how well you succeed. Times are better and will continue so. Write now.

braska so-called pure seed act of 1911 is unconstitutional for the reason, among others, that it contains more than one subject, contrary to the constitution of Nebraska. Of course the decision of the Supreme court of Nebraska will be needed if the case is appealed, to throw this seed law out of use. This would indeed be a serviceable thing to do, as the law is unsatisfactory and unintelligent legislation.

If this decision is upheld by the Supreme court of Nebraska, it will go a considerable way in affecting the constitutionality of several other state seed laws, like Iowa, Maine, etc., because those laws are drawn on the same principle of codification of the commercial feeding stuffs and agricultural seed laws under one law. Curtis Nye Smith.

BULBS AT SANTA CRUZ.

"Santa Cruz is rapidly developing as the bulb-growing center in California," says Colin H. McIsaac in an article in the California Farmer. "At present there are planted in this immediate vicinity some 5,000,000 Purity freesia bulbs, a million or more white callas, and several acres of all varieties of narcissi, both for the bulb and flower markets. Yellow callas, tulips, gladioli and many other bulbous plants are also grown in constantly increasing quantities. Climate and soil offer every advantage for the growing of the bulbs mentioned, and possibly many other varieties of bulbs need only to be attempted here to prove that every condition for their successful culture is at hand. Perhaps the present European war will result in the culture of many varieties of bulbs heretofore imported from Holland, France and other European countries."

FROM LOMPOC, CAL.

Up to date we have had over seven inches of rain in Lompoc and almost all parts of California. About one-half of all our sweet peas are already seeded, and the rest will be in as soon as the soil is fit to work again.

The weather has been ideal this season. Early gentle rains have penetrated the soil down to the base. We have had fine, warm weather, with only a few light frosts, so that almost all

Now is the time to sow some of the Summer Sweet Pea Seed, outdoors or in cold frames, to have good crop for Decoration Day. I have only the best commercial varieties, like: Frank Dolby (lavender), Nora Unwin (white), Gladys Unwin (pink), etc.; 1 lb., $1.50; 5 lbs. of each, at $5.00.

My reselected Pink Spencer, White Spencer, Lavender Spencer, Lilac Spencer, Orange Spencer, Red Spencer, etc., at $5.00 per pound; in 5-lb. lots, at $4.00. Guaranteed over 90% true.

Countess Spencer, White Spencer (Burpee), Blanche Ferry Spencer, C. Routzahn, King Edward Spencer, at $1.50 per lb.; in 5-lb. lots, at $1.00, as long as surplus lasts.

I regret to report that Edwin Lonsdale, the manager of Floradale Seed Ranch, is quite ill. He was taken to the Santa Barbara hospital shortly before the holidays, but has returned to Lompoc without improvement. At present he is unable to leave his bed. He has suffered more or less for the last two years with a complication of complaints, but never so seriously as now. We hope to see him again sound and smiling. Anton C. Zvolanek.

TO EMULATE THE "57"?

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, are careful what they do with their Annual. Although the edition is reported to be 400,000 copies, distribution is managed with care. This year the "Silent Salesman," as Mr. Burpee delights to call the big gun of his season's campaign, is reinforced by a most effective piece of light artillery entitled the "Silent Salesman's Assistant." It is a folder of sixteen pages within an unusually well done cover. It is "sent to all customers of 1914 as a reminder that the Annual has been mailed" and also "to some planters from whom we failed to receive an order last season." The Assistant lists and explains "the reason for seventy-six Burpee varieties." It says: "In 1876, the centennial year of American independence, the House of Burpee began business in a modest way. To commemorate this event and to fix in the minds of our customers this date—'76—we have selected seventy-six Burpee varieties that are, with the exception of Chalk's Early Jewel tomato, all of our own introduction and acknowledged standards of excellence of their kind." The Assistant is beautifully illustrated and printed and most of those who see it will agree with Frank J. Thirkildson, who considers it one of the most effective pieces of salesmanship Mr. Burpee ever has done.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SWEET PEA SHOW.

The American Sweet Pea Society will hold an exhibition in the Palace of Horticulture, on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific exposition, San Francisco, June 4. A premium list has just been issued and may be obtained on request of Frank G. Cuthbertson, 749 Front street, San Francisco. The list, which is handsomely printed, was donated by Lester L. Morse, president of the society, and the work was done in the private printing shop of C. C. Morse & Co. Premiums are donated by Morse & Co., W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Peter Henderson & Co., Waldo Rohnert, A. C. Zvolanek, Hollowell Seed Co., Braslan Seed Growers Co. and others. Mr. Cuthbertson reports a number of inquiries regarding the show and anticipates a successful exhibition.

Morse & Co. are promoting a children's sweet pea contest to be held in the Educational building on the exposition grounds, May 22.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Stock continues to clean up well, owing to funeral work and society entertainments. The Pasadena tournament of roses and the opening of the Panama-California exposition at San Diego made an unusual demand, but even outside of this, trade has been excellent. Owing to the number of better pink roses, Killarney has to take a back seat now, and retailers all are calling for Shawyer, Russell, September Morn and others of the newer ones. Carnations are fine, and there is just about enough stock to go around. Chrysanthemums are still in evidence, but, except from a show standpoint, they are useless. People usually get enough of mums through the regular season, and there seems no good reason for carrying them over into the new year. Small flowers and novelties are scarce. This helps the demand for Cecile Brunner roses, valley and orchids, all of which are plentiful. Collections are decidedly bad, according to both wholesalers and retailers.

Various Notes.

The New Year tournament of roses at Pasadena took place this year under positively ideal conditions. The day was perfect; bright sun with a cool, invigorating breeze and no dust on the roads, owing to the recent rains. The event is chiefly of interest to florists on account of the large quantity of stock used, and on one float, that of the heiress to the Lucky Baldwin ranch, 50,000 white roses were used. The only florists' exhibit to receive a prize was that from The Orchid, of Pasadena. Henry E. Jaeger's two tiny children drove a little pony carriage symbolizing eternal youth. As usual, great crowds visited the city, notwithstanding the great attraction at San Diego, viz., the opening of the Panama-California exposition.

The Morris & Snow Co. has opened in its new location, at the Rosslyn hotel, and has a mighty attractive looking store.

H. W. Turner has the building fever again; this time he is erecting a house in which to try out new varieties, away from the regular stock growing for cut flowers and for producing wood for propagating. The new house will be half the length of the present 300-foot range and wide enough to allow of five benches, or rather solid beds. The whole range will be painted this season, the work having just been started in the No. 1, or oldest house. Over 200 varieties of roses are now comprised in Mr. Turner's list, including all the principal American, Irish and French novelties.

The first monthly meeting of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society was held January 5, at Kruckeberg's hall, and was of more than usual interest. The topic for discussion was "Forestry," the lecturer being J. M. Grant, forester for Orange county. Mr. Grant prefaced his remarks with some of his own experiences in the government forest reserves in India and South Africa. Coming nearer home, he explained his methods of raising trees at Santa Ana. His chosen list of trees suitable for street planting consists of Cedrus Deodara, Sequoia sempervirens, Pinus Halepensis, Cupressus Arizonica, Eucalyptus polyanthemos, Platanus, or native sycamore, and the native live oak, Quercus agrifolia. He deprecated the use of peppers, Lehinus molle, owing to the fact that they were quite expensive to keep clean. Mr. Falkenheim, park superintendent of Long Beach, pointed out that, though Mr. Grant's selections were good for inland points, they were not suitable for seaside planting. An interesting discussion followed, taken part in by many of the members present. The subject of a rose or spring show was up for discussion and was favorably received. A committee, consisting of Chas. Winsel, chairman; J. Dieterich, Henry Kruckeberg, J. D. Meriweather and Jos. McGilvray, was appointed by the chair to take the matter in hand. Everyone was glad to see Mr. McGilvray around again after his accident. For the February meeting, E. D. Sturtevant, the veteran grower of water lilies and other aquatics at Hollywood, has consented to give a paper on his favorite plants. This will be the first time we have had the chance to hear from Mr. Sturtevant, and a bumper attendance is looked for.

H. Reeve Darling says that his holiday business was away ahead of that of last year and that January so far has been good.

J. Menasco is sending in magnificent Ulrich Brunner roses to the retailers, many of them being handled by Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson.

Fred Hills reports the best Christmas and New Year's business in the history of his nursery. As the quality of his stock keeps on improving, there seems to be a good reason for this.

At the Germain Seed & Plant Co.'s establishment, the deciduous fruit tree season has opened up well, earlier than usual, owing to the fine rains. Citrus fruit, too, from the firm's nurseries at PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

It is a pleasure to note that mid-winter conditions in nearly every particular are normal. There is a daily clean-up of cut stock, and of some kinds there is barely enough to go around. No large social affairs have been handled since the holidays, but the run of small orders has been steady. Sales are averaging well with those of former years. There has been considerable funeral work, which used up the cut stock in light colors as fast as it came in and left the market short of everything except Paper Whites. Home-grown roses are less plentiful and some California stock is being brought in. There are no home-grown violets now, but the California-grown ones received are of excellent quality. Enough chrysanthemums come in to make small displays in some of the stores. Pink Maud Dean mums lead and these are of splendid quality. A few Chadwicks are still seen. A few of the small French daffodils and sweet peas of inferior quality have appeared.

Among potted flowering plants, cyclamens still lead by a large margin, with primulas, ericas, potted Romans and azaleas on the list. The supply of orchids about equals the demand, with Cattleya Trianæ, Percivaliana and some varieties of lælias and cypripediums among the favorites. The wholesale growers are getting average prices for all the stock they can furnish and there is nothing wasted after it reaches the hands of the retailers.

Various Notes.

The regular monthly meeting of the Portland Floral Society will be held on Tuesday evening, January 19, at the Masonic Temple.

The holiday display of the Floral Studio, at the branch store, attracted considerable attention. The wreaths, baskets and decorations displayed were made principally of native materials and were of unique design. The firm reports that a good business is being done.

C. C. Ruenitz has some well grown foliage begonias in several varieties at his store in the Masonic Temple.

During the cold spell in December some damage occurred to plants while being hauled about the city. S. Lubliner reports that a load of kentias was considerably injured while being transferred a few blocks.

Max M. Smith grew a large lot of excellent cyclamens and has given them prominence in his fall and winter displays. He says they have sold well.

Clark & Breeze report a fine holiday business at their new store.

S. B. Hendee has closed the store which he opened in the Eilers building in the fall. He found conditions at his location in the lobby unsuitable for a flower store.

Clarke Bros. have a pair of exceptionally fine Cocos Weddelliana in their window display. The palms are about five feet high, perfect in form and without a blemish.

Niklas & Son have been shipping some good-sized orders to interior points. They have had a large supply of valley, grown at the range of Rahn & Herbert, at Clackamas.

A. F. Lalane is showing some good begonias of the Lorraine type at his store in the Orpheum theater building. They were grown by the Holden Floral Co.

The first pussy willows are appearing in some of the store windows.

The People's Floral Shop is selling some excellent small-sized Cincinnati begonias, which were grown by Aug. Zittewies.

The flowers offered for sale at the public market appear to be of low grade and but few of them are sold there. So long as the regular flower market will take all offerings of salable stock, there is no strong inducement for growers to take the time and trouble to retail their flowers.

The Market.

Business has been a little dull. However, there has been a shortage of stock in cut flowers, so that prices have been well maintained. Carnations are in demand, there being an unusual scarcity for this time of year, and considerable of the flowers coming in are weak-stemmed and lacking in keeping qualities. Good Maud Dean chrysanthemums are still on the market, but the season for them is past and they are not often asked for. Roses are scarce and almost entirely of southern origin. Paper Whites and Romans are being cleaned up fast, taking the place of other flowers. Violets are of better quality than they have been; consequently more are being used. Callas are now fairly plentiful and the demand is good. Some fine plants of malacoides are selling well.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

A. M. Dorgan, landscape architect and wholesale nurseryman, has opened offices in the Nicholas building, at Toledo, O.

William A. Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, was reëlected a director of the State Bank of Chicago at the annual meeting January 12.

A certificate has been filed by Ernest F. Coe, Anna C. Coe and Julius E. Neumann, a majority of the directors of the Elm City Nursery Co., of New Haven, Conn., changing the name of the company to the Elm City Nursery Co., Woodmont Nurseries, Inc.

At the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Horticultural Society, to be held at Lincoln January 19 to 21, President J. A. Yager, of the Yager Nursery Co, Fremont, will be in the chair. Rev. C. S. Harrison, of York, will deliver the invocation and give an address on "The Future of Horticulture." Among other speakers well known to the trade will be G. S. Christy, of Johnson, who will give a paper on "Small Fruits for the Home"; Irwin Frey, of Lincoln, on "How to Beautify the Country Home at Small Expense"; C. H. Green, of Fremont, on "Floriculture Applied to Park Planting and Lawn Decoration," and J. S. Wilson, of Des Moines, Ia., on "The Planting and Care of Herbaceous Ornamentals."

At the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the South Dakota State Horticultural Society, to be held at Yankton January 19 to 21, the trade will be largely represented on the program. Elmer Reeves, of Waverly, Ia., will speak on "Growing and Marketing Strawberries"; Clarence Wedge, of Albert Lea, Minn., on "New Advances in Horticulture"; Secretary N. E. Hanson, of Brookings, S. D., on "Some New Fruits" and "The Fourth Trip to Siberia"; George H. Whiting, of Yankton, S. D., on "Planting Cottonwoods for Profit," and E. D. Cowles, of Vermilion, S. D., on "Saving a Winter-killed Vineyard." Other South Dakota nurserymen who will present papers or reports are C. Thompson, of Rapid City; John Robertson, of Hot Springs; D. B. Gurney, of Yankton; Fred Noerenberg, of Cascade Springs; H. M. Dybvig, of Colton, and J. B. Taylor, of Ipswich.

WILL ORGANIZE IN NEW JERSEY.

New Jersey nurserymen will soon have a state organization, if plans undertaken at a meeting January 2, at the close of farmers' week at the state college of agriculture and experiment station, at New Brunswick, N. J., are carried out. As members of a committee to arrange a meeting for the formation of a nurserymen's association, the following were named: L. C. Bobbink, of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford; William Flemer, of the F. & F. Nurseries, Springfield, and J. T. Lovett, of the Monmouth Nurseries, Little Silver.

At the meeting January 2, Thomas J. Headlee, state entomologist, presided. R. M. Beattie, of the Federal Horticultural Board, urged the nurserymen of the state to take advantage of the opportunities which the board placed at their disposal. Henry B. Weiss, assistant state entomologist, discussed the nurserymen's insect problems, and C. A. Schwartz told of common diseases of nursery stock.

Please cut out of my ad for Privet the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.
Charles L. Smith,
Oct. 13, 1914. Pennsgrove, N. J.

FEDERAL INSPECTION REPORT.

The news letter of the Federal Horticultural Board just to hand, covering the results of inspection of imported nursery stock since December 3, shows the countries that caused the inspectors most work were Belgium and Holland. From the former country the receipts were entirely florists' stock, such as azaleas, palms, bay trees, boxwoods, rhododendrons, araucarias and aspidistras. From Holland the receipts were various kinds of nursery stock, largely rose stocks, evergreens and shrubs. The pests and diseases found on these were so various that the findings indicate nothing, unless it is that the same old pests are just as general as ever. England is represented on the list only by crown gall on pear and rose stocks and root gall on roses; France does not appear in the list at all. The distribution of the pests is general through the states, as usual.

NON-RESIDENT CORPORATIONS.

Nursery companies which do business in states other than those where they are incorporated will be interested in a decision lately handed down by the United States Supreme court, to the effect that, although a state may prescribe limitations upon the right of a non-resident corporation to carry on business which is wholly executed within the state, as where a contract is made in a given state for the delivery of nursery stock there, and although a state may even make proper regulations to preserve the public health, morals and general welfare, the right of a non-resident company to sue in the courts of the state to recover the price which a resident has agreed to pay for goods delivered under an interstate commercial transaction cannot be impaired.

In the case cited, an Iowa corporation sued in South Dakota to recover the price of goods shipped between the states under an interstate transaction, and the Supreme Court of South Dakota decided that under the laws of that state suit could not be maintained because the company had not complied with the statutory requirement for the appointment of a resident agent upon whom legal process might be served. But the United States Supreme court reversed the decision, holding that, so far as the South Dakota laws might be construed as fixing such limitation, they were unconstitutional, as interfering with the sole prerogative of Congress to regulate interstate commerce.

dener and by an assistant gardener, members of the N. A. G. The plans of competition are to be arranged by the essay committee and announced at an early date.

The national coöperative committee expects to make an announcement at an early date of its completion of arrangements for correspondence classes in landscaping, forestry and greenhouse management for members of the association. This committee requests that all local societies which have acted favorably on the coöperative plan between the national association and local societies, but which have not yet officially advised the secretary of the N. A. G. of their action, will do so at once, so that they may be placed on the list to receive regularly the bulletins to be issued by the national coöperative committee. M. C. Ebel, Sec'y.

MANCHESTER, MASS.

At the last regular meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society, Frank S. Gifford's lecture on "Breeds of Cattle" was both interesting and instructive. With the aid of a map of Europe, Mr. Gifford traced the course of various breeds of cattle from Egypt and the north of Africa northward and westward through Europe and across to Canada, the United States and the South American republics.

A silver medal was awarded to Vice-president E. H. Wetterlow for six seedling primulas, a cross between Primula Chinensis fimbriata and Primula stellata, all mauve in color, the same as the parent plants. All the plants were well grown. The foliage was of the stellata type, with long stems, and the flowers were large, of the fimbriata type. A certificate of merit was awarded to Ernest Townsend for a fine plant of Cypripedium insigne in a 10-inch pot.

The sixteenth annual banquet of the society will be held in the Town hall in this city, January 27, at 6:30 p. m. The banquet will be served by Jesse A. Dill, of Melrose, and will be followed by an entertainment by professional talent and dancing from 10 to 12 m. Tickets will be $1.50 each and can be obtained from the chairman of the committee, William Till, Magnolia, Mass. Any visitors in this vicinity will be given a cordial welcome.

The feature of the next meeting will be a stereopticon lecture on gladioli by B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Roses are not so good as they might be. The colors are poor and the stems are weak. This is due, however, to the cloudy weather. Carnations are of pretty good size and the yield is good. The market is flooded with narcissi. Business is good.

Various Notes.

The Scottwood Greenhouse has been busy for the last few weeks with several large wedding decorations. Mr. Magee reports business excellent.

Mrs. Freeman had an attractive window this week, a living picture portrayed by having a fine specimen azalea in a birch-trimmed picture, with plenty of green velvet to add the finishing touches.

Mr. Feniger also had a window that deserves comment. In the center he had a large pole, about six feet high, at the top of which was a large ball of white cape flowers illuminated with small electric lights. From this were suspended six white ribbons representing a May pole. Large dolls held these ribbons. There always was a crowd in front of the store, eager to get a glimpse of "the dollies at the May pole."

Frank Schramm reports the season's business as better than ever.

Nick Nusbaum, foreman at the S. N. Peck greenhouses, who was seriously injured this summer in a street car accident, was able to leave his home this week and visit some of the florists. It will be some time before he can resume his duties.

Mrs. Winters, mother of George Bayer and Miss G. Winters, of the George Bayer & Son Co., passed away January 5. Funeral services were held at the family residence January 8, with interment in Forest cemetery.

Among the visitors in town this week was S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia. Mr Skidelsky told the writer he foresees a great year ahead of the florists, and thinks business should be better than ever from the looks of things at this time. G. B. S.

Minot, N. D.—George Valker plans to put in a complete line of fern dishes and jardinieres. His determination resulted from the number of people who bought them elsewhere and brought them to him to be filled and delivered as Christmas gifts.

We invite inspection of our stock.

The Market.

There has been little change in the market during the last week. The weather has been cloudy, and carnations are a little soft, but everything seems to be producing a good cut. Roses continue to be the most plentiful flowers, but there is a better variety than there has been for some time, violets, sweet peas and lilies being more in evidence, while valley is beginning to come in normal quantities. The stores are filled with primulas and cyclamens, and made-up boxes are more in evidence than at any time this winter.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. reports that while the new yellow carnations sold well the first few days, the demand seemed to cease as soon as they came to be considered something that anyone could get. The company will plant none of them next season, but are planting considerably more than a thousand Hoosier Beauty roses.

The McIntyre Floral Co. is busy propagating or working over the beds for next season. The beds for mums are being deepened to about three feet and filled with soil that should produce anything. Then peas are being planted, with the expectation of removing only the top soil when they are done and renewing it before planting next year's mums.

Mr. Waine, who has had a small place as a side line for some years, is talking of selling out, as his other business occupies so much of his time that he is unable to give the greenhouse the attention necessary to make it profitable. He will retain the small house for private use.

J. F. Corbitt, who has been growing vegetable plants as a side line for the last two or three years, will grow a much increased number this season.

Geny Bros. have been busy with funeral work the last few days. They are cutting heavily of orchids at present, considering the limited number of plants they grow. They say that the profit is not in the number of plants they have but in the number of blooms they can cut.

At Hillcrest School Farm the first Buddleia Asiatica is in bloom. The panicles are not so wide as I had supposed and the color is not absolutely white, yet I believe that the plant has a great future, especially where it proves hardy in the open. It seems to be a freer bloomer than variabilis, if such a thing be possible, and it is the most deliciously fragrant bloom that I remember having smelled. F. B.

DECORATIVE and FLOWERING PLANTS

We Offer for Immediate Delivery

Good, strong, well established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly VALUABLE NEW ROSES

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and Prince E. C. d'Arenberg

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA

No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively.

Strong plants on own roots. 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY

This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double, hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG

This variety might well have been termed a Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine, straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh is having most delightful winter weather. Most of the last week the sun shone like spring and naturally the cut flower supply has been enormous; no shortage in anything and now trumpet narcissi and tulips are being added to the variety. Business has shown no inclination to improve, and with the light demand have come cheaper prices. Carnations have been sold on the streets at two dozen for 25 cents. The retail stores are all looking their best and seem to be fairly busy, but have nothing much in the way of large orders—few large decorations are heard of these days.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met January 5 and nominated all the officers for reelection. There were two exhibits of prepared foliage and artificial stock, some really pretty things that would attract and please the eye of anyone, even those who are not the friends of this class of material. There were several talks on the subject of florists handling the stock and the injury it may eventually do the trade in natural flowers, but there was another side to the argument, as many of the artificial flowers are beautiful and can be used in ways and places where it would be impossible to use natural flowers. Then there is always the suggestion that goes with them, to use flowers, which will certainly be a suggestion to use natural flowers, as no one wishing to express sentiment will send anything artificial. The verdict seemed to be that there is a place for the artificial stock and that no amount of objection on the part of cut flower interests will drive it away.

Various Notes.

A slick Greek, supposed to be a valet for a millionaire whose child was dead at one of the hotels, victimized several of our Greek flower merchants for various sums he needed for change while he secured for them the large order for flowers and inquiry failed to find the millionaire or his valet.

The A. W. Smith Co. is showing a new flexible pot cover that is one of the best things offered the trade. It is made of bamboo in all colors. A man can carry under one arm enough for all the plants in a large decoration. The cover fastens around the pot and can be adjusted in a second. With zinc pans under the pots to catch the water, the cover catches the pan and holds it so that the plant can be carried about. Clarke.

A worthy companion to the four best Pompon varieties ever introduced: Golden Climax, Golden West, Golden Harvest and Western Beauty.

This new variety is "Harvest Moon." Clear, bright yellow in color. Comes into bloom October 20th to November 1st, flowering after Overbrook and before Golden Climax. It will cut more sprays per square foot than any variety we have ever grown.

We are introducing it to the trade at $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business slackened up towards the end of last week and is now back in its normal condition. There is a fine assortment of blooming plants, which includes various shades in Dutch hyacinths, Romans, begonias, cyclamens, heather, primulas and azaleas.

The cut flower trade is good and elegant stock arrives daily on the market. The demand for roses of all grades has been good. The supply of carnations is good. Sweet peas are coming in larger quantities. Paper Whites are much used for design work. Easter lilies are quite plentiful and callas are arriving more freely. Valley is good, but does not clear as fast as it should. Violets are moving more readily. Marigolds in yellow and orange shades, mignonette, myosotis and snapdragons complete our stock.

Various Notes.

Mrs. and the Misses Myrtie and Donna Bradstreet are spending the winter in California.

E. A. Kennon, of the Climax Mfg. Co., Castorland, N. Y., was in town January 4 on his western trip.

A special meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at 47-51 Stone street, Monday evening, January 4. The chief business was to select a nominating committee to choose officers for 1915. At the outset John Dunbar, who has been president of the association for the last three years, stated that he would not be able to run for president this year. A committee was then named, with Harry E. Bates as chairman.

Henry P. Neun's West Main street store, next to the Schubert theater entrance, is doing a good corsage trade.

Hugo Teute, after clearing almost all the plants he had in bloom for the holidays, among them nearly 1,400 cyclamens, still has about 500 of these plants, which are coming along in fine shape.

Charles Curtis, Irondequoit, N. Y., is well pleased with his cuts of carnations. His Delights are in fine condition.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The Chattanooga Floral Co. looks forward to a good season as it starts its second year, despite the financial strain in other lines. The company has about 6,000 feet under glass, besides hotbeds and other outside equipment.

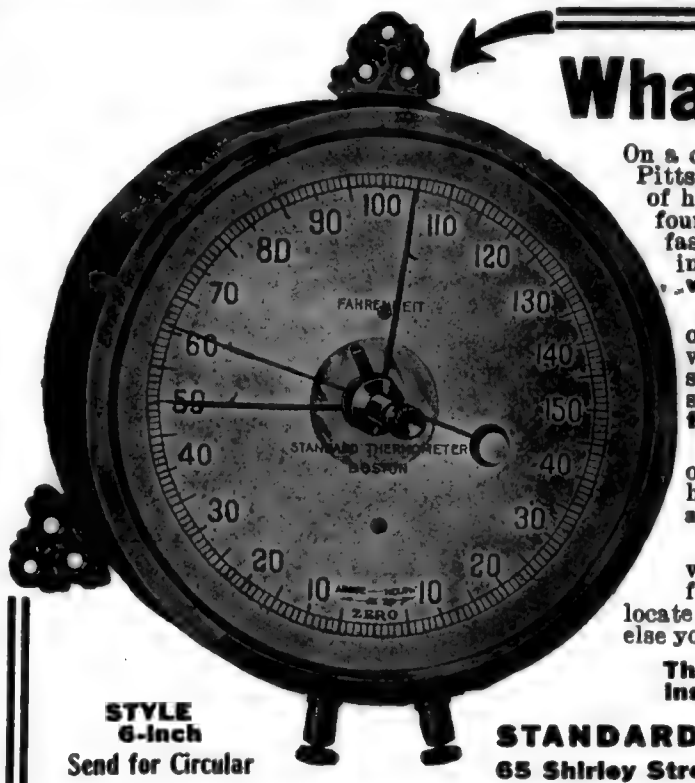
Greenhouse Heating.

SIZE OF BOILER.



I should like to know how large a hot water boiler will be needed to heat two greenhouses, each 15x100, and a dwelling of six rooms, in this Pennsylvania climate. I have been thinking of purchasing a second-hand boiler. What size of boiler will be needed and which would be the better kind, cast-iron or tubular? L. C. L.

The information furnished does not give a perfectly clear idea of what will be required in the way of a boiler. So far as the greenhouses are concerned, it will make a difference of at least fifty per cent whether the houses are used for violets or roses, while the size of the rooms in the dwelling and the amount of exposed window and wall surface should also be known before any definite estimate can be furnished.

In sections where a zero temperature must be planned for, the average 6-room house can be heated by 350 square feet of hot water radiation. When a temperature of 60 degrees must be maintained in a greenhouse 15x100 feet, not far from 600 square feet will be needed. Under those circumstances, for the six-room dwelling and two greenhouses I would select a hot water boiler rated for 2,000 square feet of radiation. Whether a cast-iron or tubular boiler should be used depends fully as much upon the construction of the heater as upon the material used.

NOT ENOUGH HEAT.

I have two connected greenhouses, each 24x55. The side walls are five feet high and consist of three feet of concrete and two feet of glass. Three of the gable ends are glass. Each of the houses is twelve feet high to the ridge. In one of the houses there are two feed pipes, one of them 4-inch and the other 3-inch; also seven 2-inch returns next to the concrete wall and five 2-inch returns along the walk.

What $5 Will Do

On a certain February 11, B. L. Elliott, of Pittsburgh, was awakened by the ringing of his Standard thermostat alarm. He found his previously reliable night man fast asleep, and the temperature falling fast. In another half hour he would have lost $30,000.

Two nights later the night fireman of E. J. Ahern, Wellesley, Mass., met with a fall that rendered him unconscious. He had no Standard thermostat alarm and the entire place froze up solid.

This simple Standard thermostat is on the job night and day. Adjust the hands at whatever point you please and the thermostat sectional boiler, the dimensions of which are as follows: Length, fifty-five inches; height, fifty-six inches; width, forty-three inches; fire-pot, 31x32 inches. The top of the boiler is even with the greenhouse floor, and the return pipes drop two and one-half or three feet from the floor to the boiler. Please tell me whether the boiler and pipes are large enough and whether the pipes are connected right, as I cannot get enough heat in the greenhouses to keep the plants from freezing, when we have our coldest South Dakota weather. A. D.

So far as one can judge from the description given, the radiation is sufficient for 60 degrees in the old house and for 55 degrees in the new one, and the boiler is sufficiently large for the radiation. In fact, there is a surplus of fully fifty per cent in the boiler capacity. It is stated that the feed pipes have a fall of fifteen feet one inch. While this may mean that there is a difference of fifteen feet one inch between the highest part of the flow pipe and the return, I am of the opinion that what it was intended to say was that the flow pipes have a fall of one inch in fifteen feet.

I am not able, from the description, to locate the trouble. I would suggest, however, that in the new house either one 2½-inch main return or two 2-inch pipes be used instead of one 2-inch return. The letter does not state where the flow pipes are carried in the old house. If they are on the wall plates and the return pipes are located on the walls directly under the flows, or well up on the legs of the benches, I would expect a temperature of 60 degrees without a generator, and an extra 10 degrees when the generator is working. Unless a generator is used, I would run the returns as well as the flow pipes as high as possible and connect the expansion tank with the highest part of the system, running the pipes downhill.

All others being sold are imitations of these we advertise, and some of the imitations being sold are made of cheap paper, costing only about half as much as our heavy stock. We sell no experiments. Ours have been tried out by long use in the greenhouse. They will stand up in any wet and heat as long as wanted. Samples of all sizes FREE.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made a GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, and STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,
H. B. Weaver.

Dear Sirs: You may send me 70,000 two-inch Dirt Bands instead of 60,000. I enclose a check for same. If you will send me a few circulars and price lists I will distribute them among my friends. We have a florists' club in our county of about sixty members.

277% MORE BLOSSOMS

on plants raised in Square Paper Pots than on plants raised in clay pots of same size.

There were 456 stems of blossoms on 40 plants raised in 4-inch Square Paper Pots and 105 stems of blossoms on 40 plants raised in 4-inch clay pots.

NUMBER OF STEMS IN BLOSSOM

	June 9	June 20	June 27
On 40 plants from clay pots	45	47	121
On 40 plants from paper pots	105	229	456

When set in the field May 15th, the root systems of the plants from the 4-inch square paper pots were 4-inch cubes (64 cubic inches of soil and roots) and from the 4-inch clay pots the root systems contained 31 cubic inches of soil and roots (the amount that a 4-inch clay pot holds).

The third count of blossoms was made June 27, 42 days after the plants had been set in the field.

The plants from the square paper pots were then more than twice as large and vigorous as those raised in clay pots.

All plants raised in square paper pots are larger and more vigorous than those raised in clay pots, because they have about double root room for the same size pots.

Measure the two pots and you will find that the 4-inch square paper pot holds as much soil as two 4-inch clay pots.

It is the same with square dirt bands, which are square paper pots without bottoms (the bottoms being furnished by old newspapers spread on the bench).

The theory that it is only necessary to have a big top to the plant has been proved misleading.

There must be a big root system to push the top or the plant will grow slow and small.

Try some square paper pots or dirt bands with your clay pots and see if you can afford to use any clay pots.

Some of the florists around Philadelphia are using large numbers of square dirt bands and paper pots.

We have shipped to Mr. P. B. Dilks, Bridesburg, Phila., Pa., 150,000 2-inch square dirt bands and 20,000 3-inch square dirt bands; to Mr. Geo. W. Dilks, Frankford, Pa., 10,000 2-inch square dirt bands and 10,000 3-inch square dirt bands; to Mr. M. H. Hostetter, Manheim, Pa., 20,000 2½-inch dirt bands and 6000 3-inch dirt bands; Mr. H. B. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa., 135,000 2-inch dirt bands.

393% MORE FRUIT

120 early tomato plants reported in Market Growers' Journal, Jan. 1, 1914, raised in 4-inch clay pots (31 cubic inches of soil and roots), had yielded up to Aug. 11 7⅝ peach baskets—$4.75 worth of ripe tomatoes, while 120 plants raised in 4-inch SQUARE paper pots (64 cubic inches of soil and roots), had yielded 33 peach baskets—$23.50 worth of ripe tomatoes—393 per cent more.

PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

This order was not sought or solicited, but came because of the National reputation of our Paper Pots and Dirt Bands.

The Dalles, Oregon, Jan. 4th, 1915.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons.

Dear Sirs: The thoroughly dependable quality of material commends them to users everywhere. Growing and shipping in same pots saves all kinds of labor.

Tomato plants which without your pots sell here for $1.00 per 100, raised in your pots sell at $4.00 per 100.

Yours very truly,
The Dalles Floral Co.

"I raised tomato, cabbage, eggplant and pepper plants in the pots bought of you. They accomplished their purpose of keeping the roots of the plants separate and in their own spaces to perfection. From about 2700 tomato plants I picked 1140 marketable crates of tomatoes which brought me $600." D. B. Moses, Purchase, N. Y.

"We grew about 800 tomato plants in your paper pots for our uncle in Rock Creek, Ohio. There is a canning factory there.

Our uncle says they were by far the best plants set out in Rock Creek last spring. We sent them 16 miles on a platform dray, rather than take a chance on a delay in freight, and the teamster told us he had a dozen chances to sell them on the way down.

We got the Paper Pots so our uncle need not send any pots back. The experiment was satisfactory.

We are impressed with the fact that Paper Pots give so much more root space than other pots.

We hope to use some 4-inch pots for starting 'cukes' and 'toms' for greenhouse work this spring. One firm does greenhouse work only."
Gallup Bros., Ashtabula, Ohio.

"The crop from the plants grown in your dirt bands paid me the best of any crop of tomatoes grown since I have been in the business."
J. M. Gage, Market Gardener, Willimantic, Conn.

"I used the Rochelle dirt bands for early tomatoes and cucumbers with very great success. I had an immense crop of both tomatoes and cucumbers and both started picking fully 15 days before the usual time in this section."
Chas. H. Weaver (Choice Fruit and Vegetables), Dunnville, Ont., Can.

"I used your 4-inch Dirt Bands successfully for tomatoes, watermelons and canteloupes. Had melons much earlier than by planting in open field."
Albert G. Royle, Owner of the Boyle Orchards, Bentonville, Ark.

"We highly recommend your Dirt Bands. We had tomatoes the first of June, and the only tomatoes in Kay Co., Okla., this year, due entirely to using your Dirt Bands and getting them out early."
Nichols & Son, Market Gardeners, Blackwell, Okla.

"We raised several thousand plants in your paper pots and found it a very satisfactory method. This season we are going to use them exclusively. Kindly quote us on 2, 3 and 4-inch paper pots in large quantities and oblige."
Puritas Farm Products Company, Newburgh, N. Y.

"I used your Dirt Bands for tomatoes, peppers and eggplants—also for mignonette, heliotrope and helichrysum. I and my trade were pleased with them. I shall use more the coming season."
Chas. C. Roberts, Lansdowne, Pa.

"I have used your paper Dirt Bands in the hotbed and find them suitable for about everything. They handle nicely and produce fine plants."
F. J. Gallagher, Woodville, N. Y.

"I think your Paper Pots are O. K. I used them for tomatoes and melons. They put me on the market with these about 2 weeks earlier than I have ever been without the pots."
Wm. Terpstea, Hammond, Ind.

"We raised vegetable plants and asters in your Paper Pots. They accomplished their purpose. They gave better plants than those in clay pots and sold at double price."
Mt. Gilead Floral Co., Mt. Gilead, O.

The Market.

The post-holiday slump is with us. It was a little late in getting here, but the force with which it came more than made up for its tardiness. Business is slow, and it is hard to realize that the same class of stock that brought good prices two weeks ago is being sold for next to nothing.

The supply of carnations is heavy and the quality of the stock is good. Prices, however, have not held up at all well, and despite the tremendous drop in price, the cut is moving slowly.

The supply of roses has shortened up considerably. During the first part of the week just past the quantity was so large that it was impossible to dispose of the cut and consequently some fine stock was thrown away. Toward the end of the week, however, the shortening was apparent; in fact, it was not possible to take care of some orders received on short notice. The quality of the stock remains fine, but prices are lower than they should be at this time of year.

Violets are plentiful. After the shortage of this stock so long this season, it is a relief to be able to take care of all orders, but the supply is now so heavy that trouble is experienced in disposing of what comes to the market each day. Quality is good, and the price is low enough, but still sales are none too numerous. Valley is also moving slowly. There is some good stock on the market, but it is mostly decorating the counters. The first tulips and a few jonquils have made their appearance on the market and are as good as can be expected for the first cut of the season.

The Market.

The weather is cold and bright, and stock of all kinds is fine. Carnations, which were splitting pretty badly last week, are now almost perfect, and the supply exceeds the demand. Roses are better than at any time this season, Killarneys predominating. Narcissi are fine, and the market is still overstocked. Valley, orchids and hyacinths are good and plentiful. There is also a good supply of plants, which are selling well. Business has been a little off, as there has been nothing going on to amount to anything, and funeral work has only been normal.

Various Notes.

E. G. Hill, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., and Arthur Zirkman, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade last week, and Gunnar Teilmann, Jr., of Johnson City, Tenn., spent two days in Knoxville.

C. L. Baum is cutting some fine carnations, roses and orchids. He has in stock a large number of fine primrose plants in pots, which are moving fast.

Addison J. McNutt has done a great deal of funeral work during the last week.

Mrs. Rosa Hall Ryno also has been rather busy with funeral work.

A. H. Dailey sold a large number of pot plants last week. He is beginning to cut baby primroses.

The new year started with a rush at C. W. Crouch's, but things have quieted down the last few days. Flowers have been rather scarce since the Christmas rush, but from now on he will have a heavy cut of carnations, roses and sweet peas; orchids also are blooming better, and the demand is great. Several decorations for dances have been put up of late; one especially, of southern wild smilax, was much admired. R. E. M.

TESTIMONIAL

WEVER, IOWA, December 28, 1914.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: We have just been painting the greenhouse material and hotbed sash we received from you, and we wish to write you a short letter in regard to the quality of this material.

We knew, of course, when we first saw the goods you sent us that we had something extra fine in quality, but when we came to paint it and examine it closely we were more than pleased.

In fact, the hotbed sash and greenhouse material was absolutely free from knots, worm holes and sap, and if they were defective in any way we have not found it yet.

We have bought several hundred hotbed sash locally and have always got what we considered first-class sash, but your sash are ahead of them every way, not only in quality of material but especially in construction and workmanship, and, best of all, we saved forty cents on every sash.

If you wish to refer anyone to us, or to print this letter, you are at perfect liberty to do so. Yours very truly, EDGAR BEEBE & SONS.

The above are responsible gardeners and farmers, and it is with pleasure that we print this verbatim copy of their letter, the original of which we have in our office.

The purchase from us was made only after due consideration of the estimates of other manufacturers covering the same material. Their order consisted of several hundred hotbed sash, material for three greenhouses and a carload of pecky cypress bench material. Their verdict is the same as that of many other well satisfied customers who use our material.

Send us your inquiries and be happy, as they are.

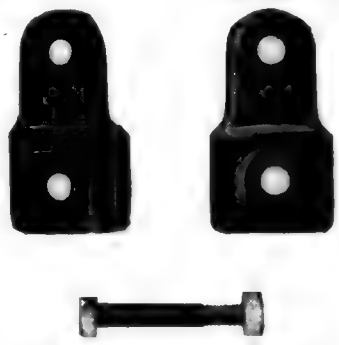
The Through-and-Through Bolt

Correcting an Impression About our Bolted-Through-and-Through Column Fitting.

IT is apparent there is a little confusion in the minds of some as to exactly what we have meant in our ads., in describing our 25-year-old column fitting, which we have been using all these years in our Half Iron Frame house.



We spoke of it as being "bolted through."

Evidently, we failed to make it plain whether the bolt went through only the fitting, or through both fitting and column.

From the above cut, it's plain to be seen that we put the bolt through both the fitting and the column.

We have been doing it this very same way for the last quarter of a century.

To our notion, it has always been one of the strong points of our Half Iron Frame Construction. Beyond all doubt, it has had much to do with the fact that never in all the 25 years we have been using it has the roof of any of these houses been either lifted up or blown down by the wind.

The Hitchings Bolted-through Column fitting has been bolted through-and-through in just this way for a quarter of a century.

In our next issue, we will show you just why our angle iron purlin, used as we use it in our Half Iron Frame house, is better than a pipe purlin.

RICHMOND CEDAR WORKS, Richmond, Va.

The Arthur Cockcroft Range at Northport, L. I. The Four Houses are L. & B. Construction.

One of Uncle Sam's Boys Made a Mistake and Instead of the Plans Going to Arthur Cockcroft at Northport, L. I., They Went Way to Honolulu.

TWO MONTHS after the houses were up, the plans and erection instructions came back from their jaunt to the Hawaiian Islands.

None of us, in the meantime, had heard anything about their going astray. All we knew was that "the houses were going up satisfactorily."

If Mr. Cockcroft can put up our Iron Frame houses without the aid of plans or erection instructions—it certainly speaks well for the simplicity of our iron frame construction and the accuracy with which the materials we furnish must be cut, fitted and drilled at our factory, all ready for putting together.

Don't know how long Mr. Cockcroft was putting the houses up, but in a recent conversation with Mr. Alban Harvey of Brandywine Summit, near Philadelphia, he said that after the posts and eave plates were ready, it took him only 6 days to put up the complete framework of the big long house 72 x 500 he bought of us last year.

To get back to Mr. Cockcroft's houses; he had a bit of previous building experience that, to use his expression, "cut his eye teeth." It happened with his first house—that big one at the left. When he compared our estimate with another builder's, ours looked high. It was higher—considerably higher. So much higher, we lost the order.

Two years afterwards, however, when the house became "wobbly" and we were asked to strengthen and re-support the entire roof, Mr. Cockcroft good naturedly admitted that when he bought another house he would compare constructions and materials, first, and price, afterwards.

The lower priced house he bought, was worth all he paid for it. He got just what he paid for. But!

Mr. Cockcroft now says that "if fewer men cut their eye teeth on just price, and more sharpened their wits on quality, many growers' bank accounts would be larger."

And it's just so in all other kinds of business; for after all, business is just business—no matter what is your business.

So when you are ready to talk over this business of building, with an eye for solidly building your business—we shall be heartily glad to hear from you.

500,000 CARNATION CUTTINGS.

We are devoting our entire plant to the growing of carnation cuttings. Our stock plants are grown cool and not allowed to flower, so all the strength goes to the cuttings. Experience had proved beyond question that these are far superior to cuttings taken from flowering plants. We have an abundance of stock and our propagators are instructed to use only perfect cuttings. These are now rooting nearly 100%.

We invite you to come and see our stock.

GOOD STOCK for you for another season means SUCCESS; POOR STOCK means FAILURE.

Our guarantee goes with every cutting and, if not satisfactory, may be returned and money back.

ROBERT SYDENHAM

is one of fifteen novelty Sweet Peas described in our 1915 Florists' Catalogue.

ROBERT SYDENHAM. (Holmes.) One of the most individual colors introduced into the modern Sweet Pea. It is a bright orange-salmon, self-colored, rather lighter than the Stirling Stent and deeper than Melba or Barbara. It is of immense size and is a grand acquisition; it created a great sensation when exhibited at the Great Annual Exhibition in London. Trade pkt., 20c; 6 for $1.00.

This Catalogue has now been distributed. If you have not received a copy, a post card will fetch one. It contains a full list of Quality Bulbs and Seeds.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Some lily bulbs are profit-makers, and some are detriments. Some pay for the cost of growing them, and some are simply an excess of worry over investment. This difference is due largely to the brand of the bulbs used. Horseshoe Brand may cost more but they are worth more than they cost. Try them. —Ward.

The Clark Wagon Heater

Height 9 inches Diameter 8 inches Price $2.00

This indestructible steel wagon heater is admirably suited to the needs of all who operate delivery wagons for articles subject to freezing.

OPERATION: It burns our Carbon brick. Two or three of the bricks are sufficient in the coldest weather. They yield a strong, steady heat without flame, smoke or odor, and one filling is enough for ten hours' use.

Heater occupies very little space and can be hung in the top of wagon, if desired.

Adjustable ventilators permit perfect regulation of heat. Strong, safe, practical; in use by florists, bottlers, etc., everywhere.

FUEL: We supply our Clark or ABC bricks for this and our other heaters.

Every brick of our Clark Carbon is guaranteed to yield 25 per cent more heat than any other brick on the market.

Our ABC bricks are guaranteed to equal any brick made but our Clark.

PRICES

Clark Carbon, per dozen bricks in carton	$0.75	ABC Coal, per dozen bricks in carton	$0.60
Clark Carbon, per 100 bricks in box	6.00	ABC Coal, per 100 bricks in box	4.80

Above prices are for large, full-size bricks. Bricks may be had in halves or thirds if so specified.

A Visitor to Our Place Last Sunday

A grower of fame—one who wins prizes—complimented us highly on the quality of the roses we were grafting. Roses that are finished and out growing in 3½-inch pots he pronounced as remarkable for so early.

Last year, he told us, he was told because we were comparatively new in the grafting business, that we did not know how, and that he had better pay more for stock at another place. He bought of us, though, and now says that our stock is quicker acting and superior to any he has ever had, because of our method of handling the Manetti before it is grafted.

We are grafting all the new kinds, Ophelia, Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Geo. Elgar, Hadley, Prince d'Arenberg, Shawyer and all of the older kinds.

Why not investigate our quality and prices?

Our $10.00 Boxes Cut Roses

Are gaining in favor every day, and we are booking a lot of standing orders for several shipments a week. A few have increased the order to a $15.00 box. These boxes are made up of assorted kinds and assorted qualities to retail at $1.00 to $3.00 per dozen. Undoubtedly a good way for the store man to get attractive and good roses, at moderate prices and absolutely fresh.

During the next thirty days we will cut 150,000 flowers of GOLDEN SPUR. Everyone knows this large, golden, trumpet Narcissus, called by some Jonquil, by others single Daffodil. Our flowers are from Holland grown bulbs, and are much superior in size and substance to French and English Golden Spur and Trumpet Major.

The price, until further notice, is $5.00 per 100. In lots of 500 or more, $40.00 per 1000. Inquiries invited from those who can use large quantities. I am in a position to take care of your large or small orders, and will prepay shipments and guarantee safe arrival to points as far as Chicago, St. Louis, Washington, New York and Boston. THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

MAKING THE MOST OF OPPORTUNITY

St. Valentine's day is a ready-made opportunity for florists to boost their business. And repeated trials have proved, beyond the shadow of doubt, that coöperative advertising is a splendid way to increase the sale of flowers. What, then, is the most effective form of coöperative advertising? This article contains the answer.

NEXT to Mothers' day, St. Valentine's day has put more money into the pockets of the trade than anything The Review ever has exploited. And 'Valentine's is close at hand again. Time to get busy.

Just by way of refreshing memories it may be well to look back to January 30, 1913, when The Review published a St. Valentine's Day Number in which it was conspicuously stated: "The purpose of this issue is to get 10,000 florists each to do at least a little something to attract the attention of the public to the appropriateness of flowers for use as valentines." That was the real beginning of St. Valentine's as a special flower day.

Perhaps that St. Valentine's Number of The Reveiw fell short of its purpose to get 10,000 florists to advertise flowers for use as valentines, but the results really were surprisingly good. Hundreds took up the suggestions, with great success, and last year literally thousands lent their assistance. The way sales jumped is a matter of common knowledge.

This year still greater numbers will prepare and advertise "For a Valentine, Send Her Flowers." After years of neglect, February 14, with the aid of a little publicity, quickly has become one of the important days on the trade calendar. It has been demonstrated that, as The Review said when it first called attention to the undeveloped opportunity, "all the public needs is the suggestion to send flowers."

The Better Method.

The results which have followed the various methods of advertising flowers for valentines have been so good as to dispel all doubt as to the desirability of the effort; it has been one of the most successful the trade ever has made. The only question, then, is as to the method that produces the most for the money.

Advertising is of two kinds. One kind is designed to enable the advertiser to increase his share of the business resulting from an established demand. The other kind is designed to awaken additional demand. Of course the florist who buys newspaper space does so with the idea of increasing his own individual sales, but advertising the appropriateness of flowers for use as valentines has the effect of stimulating business for all dealers in flowers—everyone in the trade reaps a benefit.

Out of this situation developed the suggestion made in The Review's St. Valentine's Day Number in 1913, for coöperative advertising—advertising paid for by subscriptions from a number of florists in a community. This suggestion was taken up in several cities and used to splendid effect, but nowhere more intelligently than at Columbus, Ohio. Consequently, the experience gained there will be of value in every other city where the conditions are such the trade can get together.

Pooling the Funds.

Experience has shown that, in the average city of a dozen or more florists, better results are to be had by pooling the funds than by individual advertising. Also, it has been shown that the best success has been had where the florists, instead of acting for themselves, called in the advertising manager of the leading paper, put the business in his hands and followed his advice. Indeed, it no doubt is due to the energy and skill of J. R. Hague, of the Ohio State Journal, that the florists of Columbus scored so great a success.

The first time these Ohio florists tried cooperative advertising for St. Valentine's Day a general advertisement carried, in small type, the names of the twenty-one "leading florists of Columbus," who subscribed the funds. It worked so well that when May and Mothers' day came along the paper worked up another flower page, only this time the page was divided into eight spaces of equal size to be sold to the eight largest dealers. The next St. Valentine's day, however, they went back to the original idea. "We found it far better," says Mr. Hague, "to bunch the names and addresses at the bottom of a general ad than to give each florist a small individual space on the page. That method tended to get them 'scrapping' among themselves and we had to watch closely to prevent a cut price war that would have endangered the chances of repeating as other special flower days came along, which we have been able to do."

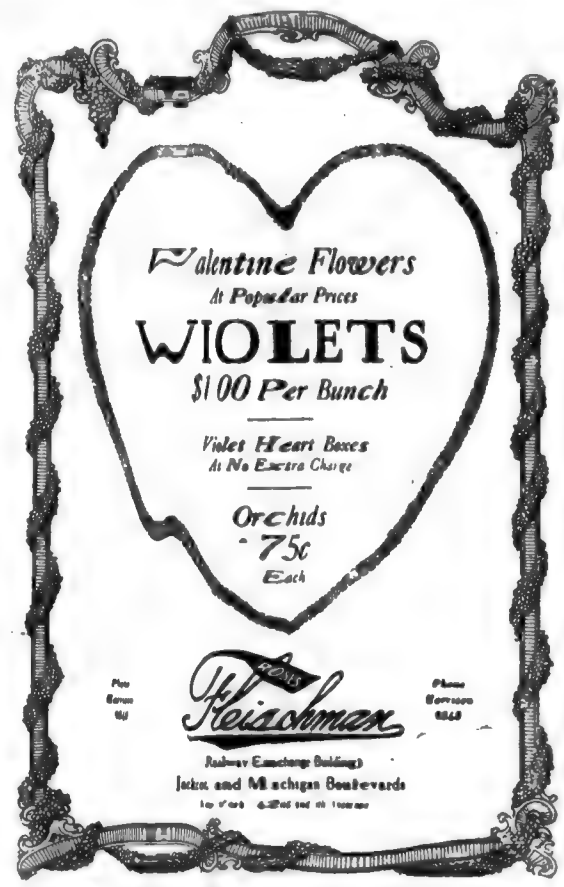
A Page for Each.

The last St. Valentine's page printed in the Ohio State Journal for the Columbus florists is reproduced with this article. Mr. Hague, who designed it, says: "The method of printing the names of those who paid for the ad gives each florist in effect a full page ad. The large design attracted the attention—then a person could select the name that appealed to him, or the one that was nearest, or one that he knew, and the effect on that particular reader was that HIS florist had bought a full page ad. It is also more dignified, and easier for the reader, who can get the sentiment quickly in one reading, instead of wading through the ads of ten or a dozen merchants."

Also, a simple design, little text, not too many names and abundant space permitted printing the avertisement in colors—red and black—which is not possible on a group of small ads ordered separately. The page was purchased as an association and charged to one florist's contract.

"In order to give each florist as much as possible," says Mr. Hague, "I had my artist carefully paste over the entire list of florists signing, and then letter on the then blank space the name of the florist in big type, to hang in the window, which in addition to making a splendid window card for the day, made it appear as if he had had the entire page in the paper himself, as his name alone appeared on the hanger."



Good, but a Lot to Read.

Out of a Review Suggestion.

Mr. Hague got the original idea for coöperative advertising from a Mothers' day article in The Review and has worked it out with much care. The Review has watched what he did for the florists of Columbus, and has told the trade about them, for the reason that the florists of other cities will profit by applying this knowledge. It was probably with this in mind that Mr. Hague wrote to The Reveiw:

"The marked copy of the issue of your valuable publication for April 23 has just come to my desk and permit me to thank you for the clever way you played up the State Journal's efforts in the Mothers' day event of last year. You have the happy faculty of doing the job right in at least every instance that has come to my attention and it pleases me greatly to have received the attention it did at your hands. I appreciate your timely tips and, while I don't expect you to reproduce all of the pages I send you, the ideas may be of some benefit and you may use them as you see fit."

The Minneapolis Method.

Quite another style of coöperative advertising was employed at Minneapopis, where a fund of $130 was expended last February in publishing an advertisement without names. It showed Cupids delivering flowers to a group of ladies and the only text was "For St.

Too Much Text; Hard to Read.

No Loss of Dignity in This.

Cooperative St. Valentine's Ad Used Last Season by Minneapolis Florists.

Valentine's day your greetings with flowers will be best conveyed." The space used was something less than a quarter page and was run one time in all the Minneapolis dailies. The trade expressed satisfaction with the results, but the ad appears to have made no great stir. In the light of what has been accomplished elsewhere it seems clear that such copy is not the best for the purpose; also, it seems quite likely the results would have been better if the entire sum had been used for a larger space in the one paper that reaches the most flower buyers in Minneapolis. Of course this unsigned advertising has no more value for one than for another, no more for the man who helps pay the bill than for the one who declines to come in on the subscription, which is wrong in principle—the names of those who provide the funds should appear in the advertising. But for the plan it should be said that the Cleveland florists used it, with good, plain text, not fussy illustration, to advise the public to "Send Flowers" at Christmas, with such good results The Review's correspondent described the eleventh-hour rush as "a riot."

So it is apparent at a holiday all advertising pays, only some kinds are better than others.

Start Something.

St. Valentine's day is February 14. It falls on Sunday, an especially good day. Advertising for it should be run not later than Friday, February 12, and if an evening paper is used it should be February 11. To do good advertising haste is not desirable—get started early and do it right.

All that it needs, in most cities, is a leader, someone to set the ball rolling. Suppose you, right now, call up the advertising manager of the paper read by the best class of people in your city; show him this article; tell him you will be one of ten to pay for a St. Valentine's page in his paper and that he can use your name with the others. Tell him to go to it, strong. It will pay.

INDIVIDUAL ADVERTISING.

Chicago retail florists are leading the trade in the use of newspaper space to increase the sale of cut flowers and plants, but they are doing the work individually. Conditions at Chicago are such that coöperative advertising never has been tried, although several attempts have been made to organize an effective campaign. One of the difficulties has come from the fact that there are too many people with widely differing ideas and interests, some of them doing so large a business that they feel they can go it alone, while others are so small they can not see the advantages of publicity for flowers. There are eight or ten retailers who are doing for themselves, each in his own way, what is done coöperatively in many other cities. A number of their St. Valentine's day advertisements of last year are reproduced, much reduced in size, in this issue. Something similar is being planned for next month, probably on a more elaborate scale, for the advertising has been increased each year. Boston has one flower store, Penn's, in which a large business has been built up by advertising and a typical Penn St. Valentine ad is reproduced in this issue. Also, Anderson, of Buffalo, has found fine profit in the use of his best local newspaper to exploit the use of flowers as valentines. The advertisement he published last year occupied six times the space it does as photographically reproduced in this issue of The Review. All these ads are worth studying, as they point the way in which others may increase their sales to double, treble or quadruple what they ever have been before.

PROPAGATING SHASTA DAISIES.

I have some 1-year-old Shasta daisies which are good-sized clumps and which bloomed well last summer. I wish to increase my stock of plants and still have as many flowers as possible in the coming summer. Will the undivided clumps produce more flowers than well cultivated divided clumps during the coming summer?

V. R. F.

The undivided clumps would give the best returns the first summer. Had division been made in the fall, the results would have been more favorable to divided clumps. You can sow seeds of Shasta daisies now and get strong plants before spring sale time. Many of these will bloom moderately the first season. C. W.

YELLOW MARGUERITES.

What care and treatment should be given yellow daisies or marguerites? When should the cuttings be rooted in order to get them to bloom by November 1? I have been rooting them in sand about February, then putting them in 2-inch pots. As soon as it was warm enough, I planted them outside until August, when they were put in the greenhouse. Out of 700 plants in the field, about fifty were saved; the rest died in the field. After the fifty plants were removed to the greenhouse, they attained a height of two and a half to three feet before they commenced to bloom. What I am particularly interested in is, how to get the blooms early in the winter. I have only now commenced to cut flowers from the plants which were put in the house in August. P. J. V.

You will never get any success by planting yellow marguerites outdoors and lifting them. Old plants should be carried through the summer in pots. These should be stored outdoors, are better if partly shaded and should be kept somewhat on the dry side.

In order to get flowers in November and December—and I may say only a few growers get many flowers at that early date, and these not of the best quality—propagate your cuttings in early spring, carry along in pots and pick off all flowers and buds. In August, plant them in quite shallow benches. Or, better still, continue to grow them in pots, but stand the pots on benches containing loam into which the roots can push through. Treating them in this way, some growers have good success. On the other hand, one large specialist plants them in solid beds in a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees and cuts plenty of flowers from November onward, which seems to disprove the theory of most specialists in yellow marguerites, that starvation in summer and a limited root run in winter are needed. Try a few plants each way and prove the best system for yourself, but do not plant any more of them outdoors, for it will only mean failure. C. W.

PROPAGATING MARGUERITES.

Can the Mrs. Sander marguerite be grown successfully from seed? If so, please give me a few cultural directions. V. R. F.

I have not seen any reports of growers raising this from seed. It is so easily propagated from cuttings that, even if seed were obtainable, cuttings would be preferable, and seedlings would be sure to vary more or less from the type. Perhaps some other growers may have raised seedlings and can give their experience. C. W.

THRIPS ON SNAPDRAGONS.

I am enclosing a small branch of a snapdragon that is badly affected with some sort of disease. Please tell me what I can do for it. I have a bench of snapdragons in which only a few seem to be affected so far, and I wish to check the disease as soon as possible. R. D.

The shoot forwarded was badly infested by thrips. Probably the affected plants are near the heating pipes and the atmosphere there is too warm and arid. Spray with a nicotine solution and use the hose to keep a moist atmosphere where the pests have appeared. C. W.

DISCOLORED CALLAS.

Can you explain the reason for callas coming with dirty spots? Do you think the trouble is due to diseased bulbs, or is it in the culture? These are old bulbs, probably 15 years old, which did well until last year, when a few came off color, but this year they are worse. The bulbs were gradually dried off after Memorial day and replanted September 1. Some were planted in pots and bloomed satisfactorily, but the majority are in solid beds. We keep the temperature at 60 degrees at night. E. F. C.

Your calla bulbs are getting extremely old, and while pot culture instead of planting in solid beds would insure you cleaner plants, it would not altogether remove the trouble. Calla bulbs are now offered so cheaply that it does not pay to grow old bulbs which are not strictly first-class. Your treatment has been all right and, with a change of stock, your spathes should come perfect. Do not overlook the Godfrey calla. It blooms far more freely than the old calla and is purer in color. C. W.

CHRYSANTHEMUM RICHMOND.

Readers of The Review learned from the issue of January 14 of the good record in England of a new E. G. Hill Co. chrysanthemum, named Richmond. With it Thomas Stevenson secured the first-class certificate of the National Chrysanthemum Society and the award of merit of the Royal Horticultural Society. This variety was raised by the E. G. Hill Co., in Richmond, Ind., and stock of it was sent, with other seedlings, to Thomas Stevenson for testing.

This chrysanthemum, as well as a number of other good results from the same cross, was, unfortunately, too early for the national show at Indianapolis, but it will probably be seen at the shows next autumn. Two blooms of Richmond are shown in the accompanying illustration; the one at the left was developed from the first bud, and the one at the right from the late bud, which, says E. G. Hill, is the best to take on this variety. The color is described as a glowing orange. The commercial possibilities of the variety were recognized by Lowe & Shawyer, Uxbridge, England, into whose hands the variety passes so far as Europe is concerned.

BULB BREAD NOT NUTRITIOUS.

The State Department has published a report from Consul D. I. Murphy, at Amsterdam, Netherlands, denying the report in America of the food value of bulbs, the story having been told of a nutritious bread made in Holland from a mixture of wheat flour and Dutch bulbs. The consul says:

"There went the rounds of the American papers a short time ago a story which told of the excellent and nutritious bread made in Holland from a mixture of wheat flour and Dutch bulbs. Had the story been true, the famous bulb fields in this consular district, which attract thousands of tourists every spring, might be utilized to furnish food supplies in an emergency.

"A recent report of the government chemist, however, leaves but a grain of truth in the story. It is true that a baker in Valkenburg during the time of flour shortage did make a kind of bread from a mixture of two-thirds wheat flour and one-third powdered tulip or crocus bulbs. The chemist after careful analysis and thorough investigation has reported that in bread so made the nutritive properties of the wheat are lessened by the admixture of the powdered bulbs. The percentage of albumen is likewise diminished and replaced by carbohydrates, the consistency of the bread being abnormal, while its taste and flavor are anything but pleasant.

"The chief objection to the use of tulip bulbs, however, lies in the fact that they may readily be mistaken for narcissus bulbs, which are entirely unfit for human consumption.

"The chemist, while noting the same general objections to both tulip and crocus bulbs, points out that while the latter are not positively shown to be harmful, there is reason to believe that their continued use as food would not be wise.

"Analyses were also made of bread made of two-thirds wheat flour and one-third raw potatoes, which was largely used in certain sections of Holland a short time ago. The same diminishing percentage of albumen noted in the wheat and bulb bread was apparent, while there was an appearance as though an excessive quantity of yeast had been used." P.

THE TWO ENDS OF THE WIRE.

A great deal depends upon who is at the other end of the wire. If somebody rings up and somebody's girl answers, somebody is pleased, but if somebody's girl's maiden aunt answers, somebody rings off as promptly as he politely can. To the man who has stock to sell, who is at the other end of the wire is especially important, and upon it depends his opinion as to the service of that particular wire. Now, if at one end of the wire you found there was this:

"We depend to a great extent on The Review for the running of our business, as we buy lots of stock through your Classified Ads."—Poat Bros., Richmond, Va., January 15, 1915.

and at the other end of the wire you found there was this:

"Find enclosed 60 cents in stamps to pay for advertising. The Classified Ad did the business. It cleaned us up, and we could have sold more, had we had them."—Miller & Stroh, Alden, N. Y., January 16, 1915.

and this:

"Please do not publish my lettuce ad until the first of February. My large stock is all sold out, thanks to the Florists' Review."—C. A. Anderson Greenhouse Co., Tionesta, Pa., January 16, 1915.

don't you think that is the wire you want to use?

BEGONIA CHRISTMAS RED.

Is there a variety of begonia called Christmas Red, and is it a winter bloomer? What is the nature of the plants? When should they be started and do they come from seed or cuttings? Also, please state where I can obtain the plants for starting, as I have not noticed any advertisements of them. W. C. K.

The begonia of this name was introduced, I believe, by W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J. It is a fibrous-rooted variety, similar to Vernon and Erfordii, and should be easily propagated from cuttings. Not having grown this variety and only having seen it exhibited on one occasion, I cannot speak as to its value as either a bedding or a pot plant. If you will consult the Classified Department in recent issues of The Review, under the head of Begonias, you will find some advertisements of Christmas Red.

SEEDLING ANTIRRHINUMS.

I have 400 snapdragons grown from seeds which were planted about November 10. Some of the seedlings are two inches high. Will these be better for bedding plants or for cut flowers? If I grow them for cut flowers, when should I bench them, or can I put them outdoors? F. A. D.

The antirrhinums were started too early to be used as bedding plants. Seed sown in February will make plants of ample size for that purpose. Pot your seedlings off singly into 3-inch pots. Bench them before they get too much matted with roots, allowing 8x10 inches, or 10x10 if you can spare the room. They do better in somewhat shallow benches, containing five inches of soil, than in a greater depth.

C. W.

CHEESECLOTH FOR SHADING.

Will the best grade of cheesecloth be all right to protect outdoor sweet peas from the hot sun? E. C.

Yes, the best grade of cheesecloth makes an excellent shade for sweet peas. It is particularly necessary for the scarlet, crimson and orange-pink varieties. C. W.

MORE CARNATION CUT FIGURES.

When record carnation cuts are under discussion, the Iowa Seed Co., of Des Moines, Ia., has figures for consideration. From September 1, 1914, to January 8, 1915, Grower William Dayson cut a grand total of 50,000 blooms, including a Christmas crop of 11,400 blooms, from 1,500 benched plants. This, so far as the company is concerned, established a new record.

In roses, likewise, a new record was established. From 1,500 4-year-old plants of Killarney and White Killarney and 500 plants of Richmond were cut, during the same period, a total of 32,125 blooms. The total cut from 500 Beauties was 4,503. It is the opinion of the company that these figures will stand for some time.

HINTS FOR THE PROPAGATOR.

Selection of Cuttings.

Since my recent article appeared, you have probably begun active operations in propagating. The work should be pushed along as rapidly as possible now, as conditions will be more favorable during the next six weeks than later on, when the sun is stronger and the weather more variable.

There is, perhaps, nothing more important than selecting the cuttings, because next year's success depends so largely on this. Not only should no cutting be taken from any but a healthy plant, but a fine discrimination should be exercised between the strong and the weak shoots. Unless this is done, many cuttings which cannot possibly grow into first-class plants will get into the sand. Especially is this true if the cuttings are all taken from the side of the flower stems, which method is practiced on many places where only cut blooms are marketed. There is, perhaps, no better cutting to be had than those taken from the lower part of the stem, but there is the danger of reaching up just a joint or two too high and getting cuttings which are not fit.

Preparing the Cuttings.

In preparing the cuttings for the sand, have a pail of water to throw them in as they are made. Be sure to make a clean cut at the base; then take off as much of the foliage as you can without leaving a bruised surface. This will usually give one joint of clear stem to be inserted in the sand. We do not leave any heels on the cuttings, because we find that when the heel is hard, the cutting will take longer to root and sometimes will be unable to draw moisture properly. There is no advantage in leaving the heel on, the advantage in the heel cutting being in the fact that the joints are closer together than on the blooming shoot and a bushier plant will result as a rule.

Try to get cuttings as nearly uniform in size as possible, in order to get an even lot of plants. It is not necessary that the cuttings be of large size, but it stands to reason that a large cutting will progress more rapidly than a small one. With a fair start, any medium-sized cutting will produce a strong plant by benching time, if properly cared for.

Avoiding Disease.

We usually say that cuttings should be taken only from healthy plants, but this term must be qualified somewhat in actual practice. If any of us confined ourselves strictly to taking cuttings from plants that are in absolutely perfect health, I fear it would be difficult to secure enough cuttings to plant our own benches, to say nothing of selling cuttings. We have never yet seen the place to which this does not apply. There are, however, several diseases which should be especially guarded against in selecting the cuttings, as they will carry in the stock from one season to the next. Perhaps the most dangerous one of these is the almost everpresent (among certain varieties at least) stigmonose, or yellows, as it is more recently called. This disease seems most prevalent among the Enchantress varieties just at present, but all the heavy-growing kinds seem more susceptible to it than the wiry growing varieties. Another disease is that commonly known as branch rot. Cuttings taken from a plant that has lost a branch in this way will usually show the disease the next season. Certain varieties are more susceptible to this disease than others, but I have not been able to see that any special type of growth is more susceptible than another. Such diseases as rust, leaf-spot, etc., are subject entirely to cultural conditions and any growth that is sufficiently far removed from the spores or germs as not to be affected when removed from the plant might make a desirable cutting. But it is desirable to give all these diseases as wide a berth as possible.

The Tendency to Split.

Another thing that is usually lost sight of while taking cuttings is the plant that has developed a habit of splitting the calyx on all its blooms. While splitting is usually attributed to faulty cultural conditions, there is no question but that a natural tendency to split the calyx may be aggravated by taking cuttings from plants which produce an undue percentage of splits. Granting this, it is only reasonable to suppose that splitting may be diminished by taking cuttings only from plants which show a lesser tendency to split. A good example is the variety Enchantress Supreme, which splits practically none of its calyxes. Loss of vitality will show up first in an increase of the percentage of splits on a variety that normally splits some.

Occasionally you will notice a plant that is apparently growing wild. The growth is exceptionally strong and the cuttings are more numerous than usual. Avoid these, else you will soon have stock that is fit only for making hay.

Care in the Sand.

Pack the sand firmly before inserting the cuttings and give a thorough watering afterward. They will need a good watering daily until the roots begin to strike out, providing the drainage is good. Keep the sun off them for a couple of weeks. By that time they will be drawing water nicely and a little sun during the early morning and late afternoon will help to keep them plump. It may be increased as the cuttings are able to stand it, until by the time they are rooted they may be getting the full sun. In the regulation of the water and the sun is where your good judgment will assert itself.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS.

VALUE OF FORETHOUGHT.

I notice on page 26 of the issue for December 24 that a Mr. Albert had a considerable loss through the failure of his night man to keep up steam. How many times has The Review warned the greenhouse men on this one particular subject? A thermostat can be installed so cheaply that there is no excuse for a happening of this sort. Now, why am I taking the trouble to write this letter? For the simple reason that I do not wish to see some other poor devil like myself going down and out through want of thought, carelessness, or whatever you may wish to call it. December 4, 1913, during the great snow storm in Colorado, three of my six houses were wrecked, and why? Simply for the reason that I did not have what every florist should have, sufficient 2x4's with which to support the roofs in an emergency of this kind. And here you have, gentlemen, an illustration of want of thought. Although carrying fire, hail, boiler and tornado insurance, we were still remiss, and so I write these few words of warning to my brothers in the trade who for years may have been building up a competence for their old age, which in a few moments, for the want of thought, may be lost. When a loss of this kind comes, not one man in a thousand can stand up under the blow, knowing, as he does, the great length of time required and lacking the vim of youth to put him back to where he was. This thought applies to all lines of the florists' business. Traveling, as I have been for the last nine months, never has the fact been brought home to me more forcibly that thought never was more greatly needed in the business we are engaged in than at the present time. Under no circumstances should a man travel the country at the present time looking for employment.

Charles J. Davis.

HERE'S TO THE LADIES!

Under the heading "The Box and the Bagging Needle," on page 39 of the December 17 issue of The Review, I read how the man had to resort to a woman to help him out of the slow, annoying process of tying flowers in boxes which he had followed for years, and she solved the problem instantly, and undoubtedly saved many a cuss word from issuing from his mouth in the future. The same process was followed by the men in my employ until I took charge of the houses myself, ten years ago, when, seeing the struggle my assistant was having in using the knife and string method, I instantly sent for a large needle and have had no difficulty since. My husband thought he had discovered a better tool in the form of a straight affair with a handle and an eye, but that had to be unthreaded and threaded again each time it went through the box, and it was used but little. This is but one instance where men have struggled for years with a problem that a woman could solve at a glance.

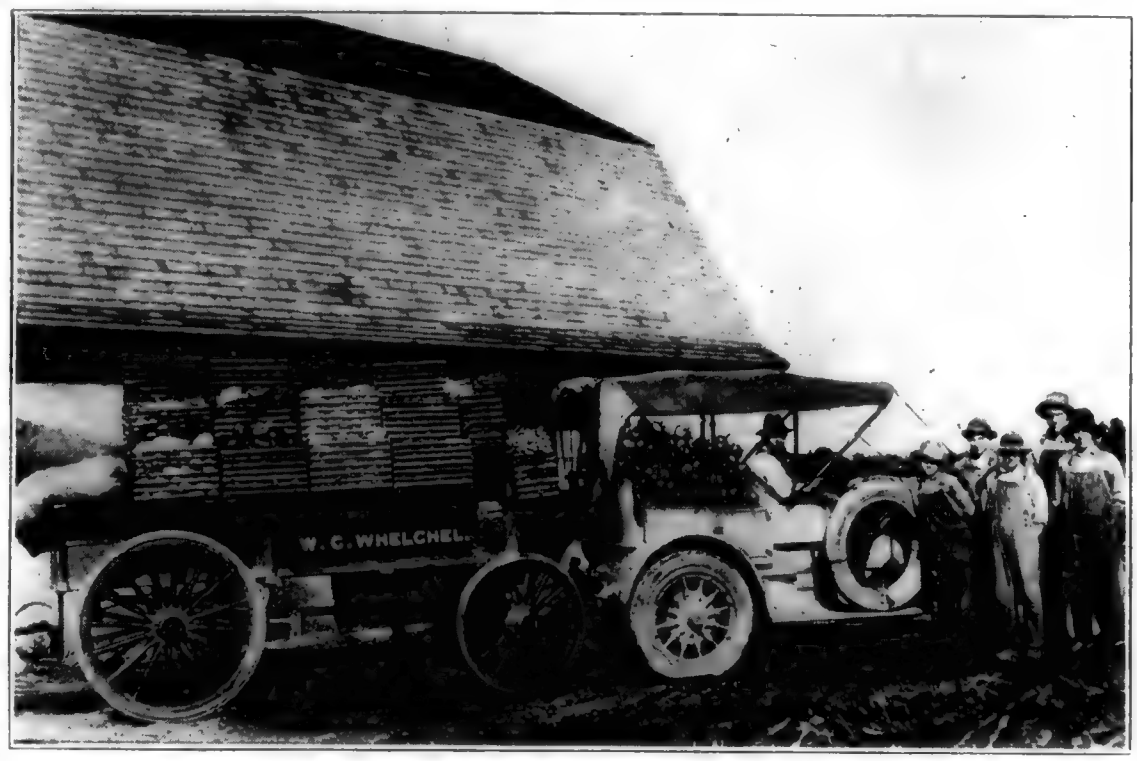
I have tried the several carnation menders, with much expense and no success, and continue to use my own "invention," which is no expense to speak of, and the job is far more satisfactory to myself and consumes less time—for me—than any I have tried. I have no "patent pending" for the use of the mender. M. E. G. Ventres.

START THE BALL ROLLING.

Ralph M. Ward's "Gum and Flowers," in the December 24 issue of The Review, opens the door to what ought to be an interesting and necessary agitation.

Even if we make the sum $20,000 as a start for publicity, it will pay everyone; $200,000 would pay still better. The best way to apportion it would be to make a rate on the glass area, with a minimum of a certain amount.

The influence of the Cleveland and Columbus florists' advertisements help us here in Canal Dover. People who read the city papers largely are influenced by these advertisements, so that when our advertisements are read by them, they have greater results through the cumulative influence.



We must consider this outlay as an investment, not as an expense. It seems to me that the S. A. F. is hardly awake to the greatest interest of the greatest number of our calling.

We must be more aggressively progressive; we must have more boomers who understand thoroughly what "brass tacks" are.

Mr. Ward is right; let us all help boom flowers. Let us get a start now. At least, such is the view of

FROM UNCLE JOE'S TOWN.

A load of produce from the Pleasant View Greenhouses & Gardens, at Danville, Ill., which is shown in the illustration on this page, furnishes to the observer reason for the fact that the season of 1914 has been a fine one for W. C. Whelchel as well as for his fellow-townsman, "Uncle Joe" Cannon. The automobile has literally displaced the horse in this particular case, giving an increase in power and capacity. This method, although not a usual one among truck growers, Mr. Whelchel finds most convenient for putting the produce from his irrigated gardens on the market.

DISEASED LETTUCE.

We are enclosing herewith a lettuce plant that is badly affected with some disease which has a dwarfing effect upon the plant. The soil is light and rich. We are planning to grow tomatoes in the soil after the lettuce. Will the same disease affect the tomatoes? How shall we rid the soil of this disease? Formaldehyde has been recommended as a sterilizer, in the proportion of 1 to 2,000. Would you advise us to treat the soil with this before planting to tomatoes? If it is not necessary, we do not wish to go to the expense. S. F.

The specimen plant arrived much shriveled. Without knowing more about your culture, temperature, soil, etc., it is difficult to say what has caused the plants to be so starved and stunted. Lettuce wants loose, light, but rich soil. It dislikes clay, but likes plenty of sand. The soil, if in solid beds, should be eighteen to twenty-four inches deep. It should never bake, but should hold moisture so well that one good watering will finish a crop, supplemented by a few light sprinklings. The surface soil should be always loose, and even if it appears dry there may be ample moisture below. Be sure your night temperature does not run too high; 45 to 48 degrees is ample, with a rise of 10 degrees on dull days and 15 to 20 degrees on clear days. Lettuce needs a rich soil. After each crop is cleared, give a dressing four inches thick, of horse manure. This need not be completely rotten. In six or eight weeks this food, when well worked in, will be completely used up.

I doubt whether formaldehyde will cure any soil affection. A good freezing would do more good, but the only real cure for fungoid affections is steam sterilization. I do not think that the fungi or bacteria which may be harming your lettuce will be likely to have any adverse effect on the tomatoes. C. W.

TOO HOT FOR RADISHES.

Enclosed you will find a radish leaf affected by some disease which is unknown to me and to all the growers whom I have asked about it. The radishes have been grown in a temperature of about 70 to 75 degrees and are kept on the dry side as much as possible. I have been spraying them with Bordeaux mixture, but it does not check the disease at all. Please let me know what this is and how to stop it.

O. E. H.

You are keeping your radishes much too warm. A night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees is ample, rising 10 degrees on dark days and 15 to 20 degrees on clear, sunny days. Heat will simply ruin them. They cannot be forced like cucumbers or tomatoes. A moderately heavy soil is best. If it is too retentive, add sand or some other gritty material to render it more porous. Never allow the plants to become dry, and then soak them, as it will cause many roots to crack. A solid bed is better than a raised bench for them. Always water with great care in winter. The real cause of your diseased foliage I cannot state, but it is probably due to having the plants in an atmosphere too hot, stuffy and moist. C. W.

Montreal, Que.—Business is good in Canada; everyone heard from had a satisfactory holiday trade. In Ottawa, as in Montreal, all blooming plants were sold out; cut flowers did not move so well.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Rambler Roses.

While it is a trifle early to start rambler roses for Easter, it is well to get the plants pruned, tied down and ready. Where a temperature of 60 degrees at night is not available, it is as well to start the plants at once. A temperature of 45 degrees at night is ample until they break. After that a gradual rise of 10 to 15 degrees can be given. Spray the canes freely, to encourage strong breaks. In dark, cold weather, however, use caution in overhead spraying. The Baby Rambler type can easily be had in flower some time before Easter by starting now. Such varieties as Baby Tausendschon, Erna Teschendorff, Mrs. Cutbush and White Baby are all good. Of the true ramblers, Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, American Pillar, Crimson Rambler, which is less in favor now since the advent of so many fine pink sorts, and Tausendschon, are all first-class. The last named is probably the most popular of all and can be flowered in a little less time than the others named.

Amaryllis.

Amaryllis plants which have been resting since early in October will now have dropped most of their foliage and will in many cases be showing flower spikes. Such plants should have the drainage examined. If the soil is poor a repotting can be given, but usually if the surface soil is removed and a good top-dressing is given they will carry through another season, provided, of course, that they receive some liquid stimulants through the growing season. Do not worry if the plants do not lose all their leaves. I do not approve of severe drying off for amaryllis and would just as soon see some green foliage at starting time. Seedlings which have not yet flowered should be kept growing continuously until they flower. Give amaryllis which are being started a temperature of 55 degrees at night.

Buddleia Asiatica.

From the number of inquiries received through The Review, quite a few growers appear to be interested in the new Chinese plant, Buddleia Asiatica. That it will become popular is certain, for critical buyers are charmed with it. Anyone having any stock plants should cut them back somewhat when they are through flowering. A crop of succulent cuttings will soon appear. These will root in three weeks in a warm cutting bench. Pot these off and give them a warm house until they are established; later a temperature of 50 degrees at night will suffice. They can be moved into coldframes in April. Keep potted along and flower in 8-inch pots or pans. Plunge the pots to the brim in an old hotbed, keep well watered and fed, pinch the shoots until August and you will have fine, bushy plants for Christmas trade. The plants must be housed early in October and given a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night to be in full bloom for the holidays. Cuttings taken from young stock can be rooted up until the end of May and these will make useful stock in 5-inch or 6-inch pots, which will flower freely.

While this plant has been given the name of winter lilac, this is a good deal of a misnomer. The flowers in no way resemble lilacs, but are more suggestive of the racemes of the veronicas or lysimachias. The delightful perfume is distinct from that of the lilac and there is no resemblance in the two plants.

Purchase Seeds Now.

A number of seed catalogues are now to hand. Owing to the war, normal supplies of some varieties are unlikely and florists should place their orders early to avoid disappointment. Dealers appreciate these early orders; they help to lessen the strain when the really strenuous seed season arrives. Each florist knows, or should know, what seeds he will need. Therefore, get your order in as soon as possible. Do not buy cheap seeds, cheap mixtures or any colors which are not salable; the best seeds are always the cheapest in the end.

Seed Sowing.

Some seeds require early sowing, and during midwinter the germination of many small seeds is much better than it is later in the season. Where strong plants of Primula Sinensis or P. obconica are wanted for next Christmas, sow the seeds now. Use scarlet or other bright colors; whites are not wanted at that time, but will sell later in the season. Gloxinias, tuberous-rooted begonias, fibrous-rooted begonias, grevilleas, Aralia Sieboldii, petunias, verbenas, shamrocks, Vinca rosea, snapdragons for spring planting, stocks for bench culture, Aster Queen of the Earlies, Dracæna indivisa and lobelias can all be sown now. If the soil in which they are to be sown is first sterilized to kill vermin, fungoid growths and weed seeds, it will be a great advantage. Soil for the seeds should be three-fourths leaf-mold and one-fourth loam, with sand added to make it porous. Make the surfaces of the pots, pans or flats smooth, and water with a fine rose before sowing fine seeds, later scattering a little fine sand over them.

Coggeshall, England.—E. W. King & Co., well known in the international seed trade, have fourteen of their staff in the army in France and sent each man a Christmas hamper.

Oostdunkerke, Belgium.—The greenhouses of E. Draps-Boudry, one of the principal Belgian growers of American varieties of carnations, were destroyed by shrapnel shells December 14. Mr. Boudry is a refugee in England.

Versailles, France.—Mme. Jean Moser, wife of the head of the nursery firm of Moser et Fils, died December 14, at the age of 62, at her home here. Her two sons, Rene and Marcel, were both at the front with the French army at the time.

Paris, France.—Practically all the horticultural press in France suspended publication when the war broke out, but L'Horticole, the organ of the French nursery trade, has again appeared, reduced in size, but carrying details of the business and transportation situation as they stood on the day of issue.

Boskoop, Holland.—Just before sailing for America, January 6, Harry Koolbergen said: "As regards the war situation in Belgium I can not say much, as I have not been able to pass the borders since the war broke out. Some establishments are reported unharmed, while others, and this includes those of German proprietors, are said to have been ruined."

London, England.—An observer says: "Of course there is a serious falling off in trade to be faced by all of us, but the position has improved week by week for the last month or two, until we are pleased to hear from some of the leading growers that prices for carnations and other flowers were nearly normal last week (Christmas). Though we cannot hear that any of our friends are making money just now, it is a great thing to be able to say that, with the inevitable dislocation of a gigantic war, we are still able to carry on, with the prospect of better times ahead."

Aalsmeer, Holland.—This is a famous lilac forcing center, with several large exporters who find some of their markets cut off this war year. It is reported D. J. Tas & Sons, J. Keessens & Son, D. & J. Keessens and Harmsen & Keesen have commissioned M. R. C. Alberden to make a trip to America for the purpose of reconnoitering the markets there and entering into business relations. Mr. Alberden took a first consignment of forced lilac with him when he left Aalsmeer, and during the time he will stay in the United States further lots of forced flowers will be sent him. It is stated that it is quite possible to deliver cut flowers from Aalsmeer to the American markets. The Holland-America Line must have sanguine expectations respecting the export of cut flowers to America, as the company offered Mr. Alberden a free first-class voyage.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., reports an apparent shortage in rooted cuttings of geraniums, judging by the orders he has been compelled to refuse, including some big ones from Canada. While the percentage rooted is large, the recent severe weather affected the stock plants, resulting in a shrinkage of several thousands. Buchner, Nutt, Poitevine and Ricard are still leaders. Asparagus plumosus is grown in large numbers and is as popular as ever. The only carnations grown here are for trial purposes and occupy a low bed in part of a house. The varieties are Matchless, which is fine; Gorgeous, a great keeper; Philadelphia, exceptionally heavy in bud, and with fine big blooms. As seen here, the last mentioned would be hard to beat. As evidence of continued faith in the divine flower, a house 62x400 feet is being planned for it.

H. D. Rohrer, Lancaster, has met a Waterloo in black-root on the forget-me-not, which has hitherto been a grand thing with him. The beds are quite patchy. Careful study is being made to eradicate the disease. Carnation Enchantress is also giving out; it will be discarded. Their seedling, Scarlet Wonder, is a corker. The chrysanthemums were fine. In their place are sweet peas, with lettuce between the rows and parsley for a border. Primula malacoides is grown in large numbers. Shipped in paper pots, they carry well. They are in good demand for table decoration.

B. F. Barr & Co., Lancaster, are having the same trouble with their carnations, chiefly Enchantress and Matchless, as was mentioned in a previous note with reference to Mann & Brown, Richmond, Va. In the case of Barr & Co., it is believed to be the effect of overfeeding or using unfermented manure. Gorgeous and Enchantress Supreme as grown in other soil are fine—all one could wish. Chas. F. Edgar has resigned his position as manager of the Barr store. He is undecided whether to accept one of several positions offered or to go into business here.

Ernest Ashley, Allentown, Pa., in speaking of the excellent season's business, attributes considerable of it to the F. T. D., of which he is a member and which has enabled him to expand considerably. At the time of my visit Mrs. Ashley was making up some dainty corsage bouquets of orchid sweet peas and valley, incidentally remarking that the order was the outcome of pinning one on an elderly lady patron who had dropped in to pay a bill a short time previously. A Richmond rose was pinned on her escort's coat and the tact and gallantry have their reward. It struck me forcibly. How often have I seen similar opportunities lost, when the ice-box was loaded with stock going to waste and yet not a flower was offered to a customer who was paying a bill, and who might not just then have felt like buying more! There are exceptions and they are profitable ones, but are rare indeed. The business is the gainer, looking at it only from an advertising point of view. W. M.

SAGINAW, MICH.

The Saginaw valley florists held a carnation exhibition January 11, in which there were many varieties shown. Charles Frueh & Sons won first honors. Martin Keit was second and Grohman the Florist third. At our next meeting, which will be held at the establishment of Boehringer Bros., Bay City, February 1, there will be a rose exhibit. Keen competition is expected, as there are some good roses grown in the valley.

Charles Frueh & Sons expect to move, in early spring, the balance of their Hoyt avenue establishment to their new place just over the city line on Genesee avenue and have everything under one roof.

The Wm. Roethke Floral Co. has had an exceptionally heavy run of funeral work. Extensive improvements at the greenhouses are under contemplation.

Cyclamens have been a leader with Grohman the Florist and they had no trouble in disposing of them at fancy prices.

J. B. Goetz Sons are again cutting large quantities of sweet peas, including some of the fancy orchid-flowering kinds.

Desner & Fisher are, as usual, busy with funeral work. Gee.

FIRE OFTEN, FIRE LIGHT

With Apologies to "Power"

IF your boss begins complaining
That his heating bill is draining
Every cent he has remaining
In a fashion expedite,
Take the hint that he's conveying
And remember that he's paying
You for working, not for playing—
Fire often, fire light.

IF the chimney belches gases
That deposit sooty masses
On all nearby greenhouse glasses
In their painted bars of white,
Don't assume a manner humble
And attempt to smirk and mumble
Your excuses. Take a tumble—
Fire often, fire light.

DON'T get hot beneath the collar
If the boss puts up the holler
That you lose from every dollar
Half its purchase power, quite.
Common Sense, the great physician,
Will prescribe for your condition
Just this simple admonition—
Fire often, fire light.

QUIT your dozing and your dreaming;
While you fire, get to scheming
How to cut the cost of steaming
From its economic height.
For the boss will be your debtor
If you follow to the letter
This advice—there's nothing better—
Fire often, fire light.

NEW ENGLAND

Bangor, Me.—The University of Maine has asked for a special appropriation of $4,500 to begin work on a greenhouse to replace the present structure.

Wrentham, Mass.—Earl Metcalfe is putting up another greenhouse, 20x60, at his home on South street. In addition to the 3,000 Easter lilies he has started, he will grow grapes for the Boston and New York markets. He has sweet peas and ferns in his greenhouse in Wampum.

Hinsdale, Mass.—It is reported that all the dealers are losing a great many ferns through spoiling in storage. There always are similar reports at this season, so that jobbers are slow to take alarm, but if the stories one hears are confirmed it seems likely there may be a sharp advance in prices before spring.

Terryville, Conn.—At a hearing in the Probate court before Judge F. A. Scott January 9, the application for a conservator for Clarence W. Fenn was granted and Matthew F. Hayes was selected. An appeal will be taken.

Pittsfield, Mass.—Engelmann & Son have opened a store in the Waite building, on North street, under the name of the Rosery. They are to build an addition to their greenhouses, on Elm street, which will be 28x150 feet.

Rockland, Me.—Albert I. Mather has been confined to his home by fractured ribs, the result of a fall on an icy sidewalk. He was on his way to a meeting of the Claremont commandery, of which he is recorder, and the big book of records which he was carrying was between him and the ground when he fell.

MADISON, N. J.

The nineteenth annual banquet of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Association, held January 19, was a great success, there being 150 present. Robert Craig acted as toastmaster. Among those who responded were Harry A. Bunyard, William Duckham, W. A. Manda, C. H. Totty, Arthur Herrington, F. H. Traendly, M. C. Ebel, J. H. Dick and J. A. Shaw. The speechmaking was interspersed with entertainment by professional musical talent. The decorations included a splendid vase of Hoosier Beauty roses and Alice Coombs carnations from the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Matchless carnations, from the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y.; Buddleia Asiatica and Mrs. Thompson rose, from C. H. Totty, and cut flowers and plants from the Twombley, James and other estates and local growers. The affair was in charge of the triumvirate, Messrs. Duckham, Herrington and Totty. J. A. S.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The tide has turned. The change came on Friday, and continued to the end of the week. Shipments were not so large, buyers increased and prices were better.

Roses again proved the backbone of the market. American Beauties rose to $40 per hundred for the selects and carried the whole market upward. The new varieties were all absorbed, and the rank and file of the regular supply fell in line.

Carnation shipments are somewhat lighter, and though prices have advanced but slightly the clean-up has been satisfactory. Lilies are higher and in lesser supply, and valley remains stationary.

Some splendid gardenias are arriving, and $3 per dozen is easily obtainable. Violets have had a hard week of it; 35 cents per hundred was top. Orchids would not advance above $25 per hundred. There seems to be but little call for cypripediums. Sweet peas of the Spencer varieties are abundant, and for these, good prices prevail. There are plenty of callas, southern gladioli and hyacinths. Narcissi have been a drug, selling as low as 5 cents a bunch. Tulips and freesias are here, and still a few mums and poinsettias; also pansies, wallflowers and daisies.

Various Notes.

The horticultural banquets are now in full swing. The Tarrytown Horticultural Society enjoyed its greatest anniversary January 12; the Morris County Florists' and Gardeners' Association celebrated January 19, and the Mt. Kisco Horticultural Society Thursday, January 21. Monday evening, January 25, the Nassau County Society holds its annual banquet at Glen Cove, N. Y.

Lehnig & Winnifeld, of Hackensack, N. J., are making a specialty of begonias this year, and will grow all of J. A. Peterson's new varieties.

Mrs. Samuel Woodrow is spending the winter at Delhi, N. Y.

Robert Woodrow has, unfortunately, lost one of his twin boys.

At the last meeting of the New York Florists' Club the Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., received for its sweet pea display a cultural certificate.

Ernest Prince now is with Weeber & Don.

Henry Hart had a large decoration January 8, at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, for the Condon-Armour wedding. The church was decorated with palms and smilax, the altar being banked with Easter lilies and the balconies covered with southern smilax and orchids. More than 1,500 American Beauty roses were used by Mr. Hart in decorating the columns of the church, and at each pew end was placed a large bouquet of Easter lilies tied with white satin. On all sides were palms and potted plants, covering the walls of the church. The bouquets also were elaborate.

The committee of the "international" flower show meets weekly, and will do so until the show opens March 17, now only seven weeks away.

Thursday, February 25, has been selected as the evening for the annual Greek ball at Terrace Garden.

Mr. Kelley, bookkeeper for M. C. Ford, is seriously ill.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co.'s auction department will open March 1.

The flower department of Lord & Taylor's, on Fifth avenue, has been closed. It was under the management of W. W. Barnham.

R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., has returned from his western trip.

Percy Rigby, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., is receiving boxes of fine grapefruit weekly from his farm in Florida. J. Austin Shaw.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Though Pittsburgh has been having fine spring weather, the cut of roses has decreased and prices on these have stiffened, but there is still plenty of all other kinds of stock. Yellow trumpet narcissi and tulips are getting quite plentiful. Violets seem to have lost their charm and are not holding their own, especially in competition with orchids, which are arriving in large quantities and selling at low prices. Greens are plentiful. This is the first January in years when there has not been a shortage of Sprengeri and plumosus bunches. Smilax is overabundant.

The wholesale houses seem to be fairly busy and are handling some good stock of all kinds, but there are few of such prices as make the growers look pleasant. Most of the retail stores, to all appearances, are about as busy as they ever have been at this season, though some are complaining of poor trade.

Various Notes.

At the February meeting of the Florists' Club, Emil Kraft, Ph. D., of the Radium Chemical Co., will give an illustrated lecture on radium. He will have with him about $50,000 worth of radium. The club has been having a number of talks on subjects of most general interest, and the members should appreciate the efforts of the officers and turn out in large numbers.

A fire which occurred Sunday night, January 17, was almost too close to David Hill, the Fifth avenue florist, for comfort. He says that when the walls get hot it is time to worry.

The Indiana Floral Co., of Indiana, Pa., opened a new store before the holidays. It is handsomely decorated in white and green and presents as good an appearance as the average store in the larger cities. Trade here was good during the holidays, and is keeping fully up to expectations.

William Schrader, of Johnstown, Pa., who was chased from his store by fire and water a couple of weeks ago, is expecting to have the repairs finished and get back from his temporary quarters about February 1.

Many of our people are predicting that the balance of the winter will be mild, as caterpillars and spiders are active outdoors. Clarke.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

During the early part of last week trade was unchanged, but January 15 and 16 the weather was warm and clear and business was brisk, taking on a "before the war" aspect. There has been a general shortening up of the supply and the wholesale houses were completely cleaned out. Fairly good prices are being realized, quite a contrast to the conditions that have prevailed all through the present season. The best demand is for roses, but carnations also are selling well. Valley and violets go slowly and Paper Whites and Romans also can be bought cheaply. Freesia and bulbous novelties are coming in and meeting a fairly good demand. There is a good call for greens.

Various Notes.

Miss Ella T. McCormick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McCormick, died at the home of her parents in Catonsville January 12, after a short illness. Funeral services were held from St. Agnes church, Catonsville, January 15, with interment at Bonnie Brae cemetery.

Charles Siegwart has a fine lot of cattleya plants in bloom, which he received this season and which are doing remarkably well for young stock. His new carnation, Mrs. Charles Siegwart, is affording good flowers.

Andrew Anderson, of Govans, is sending some fine Radiance and Mrs. Russell roses to the Baltimore Cut Flower Co.

Charles H. Cook was in the market January 16 with a fine lot of Primula obconica.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club, January 25, will be ladies' night. R. Vincent, Jr., will lecture on Scotland and quite a bit of other talent has been secured to take up the balance of the evening. Refreshments will be served and, as an added attraction, F. C. Bauer, John Nuth and M. Thau will sing the famous German song, "Schnitzelbank."

Louis Strunz has a fine lot of Mme. Petrick azaleas in bloom.

Lohr & Fritze are cutting some good Double White Killarney.

Erdman & Ulrich have a fine lot of cyclamen plants in flower, which are easily disposed of.

Samuel Feast & Sons have the plant decorations at the automobile show being held at the Fifth Regiment armory this week. A house of Richmond roses at Beechfield is looking unusually well.

C. E. Akehurst & Co., of White Marsh, are sending some good blooms of their new carnation, Mrs. C. E. Akehurst, to the Pennock-Meehan Co. J. J. Perry, manager of the local branch, says: "If the growers around this city would so arrange their cut flower crops, especially roses, as to cut a good crop between January 15 and February 20, instead of trying to get a crop for Christmas, their stock would be more easily disposed of and average better prices." Mr. Perry has been identified with the wholesale cut flower trade in this city for nearly fifteen years and is in a position to know the needs and conditions of the local market. W. F. E.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Somewhat mild weather for midwinter prevailed last week, making cut flowers more plentiful. Business, however, was not stimulated by the pleasant weather, but lethargy was felt in a great many of the retail stores. Spring flowers are becoming more and more plentiful. Among these are daffodils, narcissi, mignonette, sweet peas, marguerites, Roman hyacinths and lilacs. Carnations are excellent and plentiful. Ward, Enchantress Supreme and Beacon are good sellers. Hadley roses are not so good as they have been, but Taft, Ward, Richmond and Bulgarie are much improved. Roses have been somewhat scarce and the prices remain firm. Beauties are excellent. Harrisii lilies are scarce. There are a few good Formosa lilies to be had, as well as some good callas. There has been little freesia as yet. Valley, gardenias and cattleyas are plentiful. Smilax, asparagus, adiantum and fancy ferns are good and the supply is ample.

Various Notes.

The various committees are hustling to get ready for the convention of the American Carnation Society.

The Lenox Flower Shop had a pretty window of Primula obconica and exceptionally large cyclamens, which made a good display.

H. Keitsch & Sons are growing some good single daffodils, which find a ready sale.

Barney Meyers, of Lancaster, is producing some excellent yellow tulips and daffodils in the Palmer greenhouses.

Joseph Sangster is having a run on plants of all kinds, but business otherwise is rather quiet.

Mrs. Rachael Rebstock Johnson, who was at Anderson's upper store during the holidays, has retired to the quiet, simple life at Williamsville. Mahoney Bros. are pushing business at the stand now.

Walter Leney was on the sick list last week and was absent from work for a day or two.

J. M. McLellan is at Anderson's Elmwood store.

Stroh's Quality Flower Shop made a specialty of tango corsages and arm bouquets for the Shriners' ball, January 11, and sold a considerable number. Tango corsages are winning favor here.

S. A. Anderson had a most unusual display last week. A massive gilt frame lined with a deep green velvet box held several French bouquets, Dresden and French corsages made of valley, roses, orchids, etc. A strong light thrown upon the flowers made them seem wax-like, and brought out the daintiness and color against the green background.

David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., is growing large quantities of Golden Spur daffodils, which are first-class.

Chas. Hock, grower for L. H. Neubeck, has some wonderful cyclamens, which resemble orchids, as a result of cross fertilization. He is planning to do more scientific work later in cross fertilization, since his playful attempts have brought about such splendid success. E. C. A.

OBITUARY.

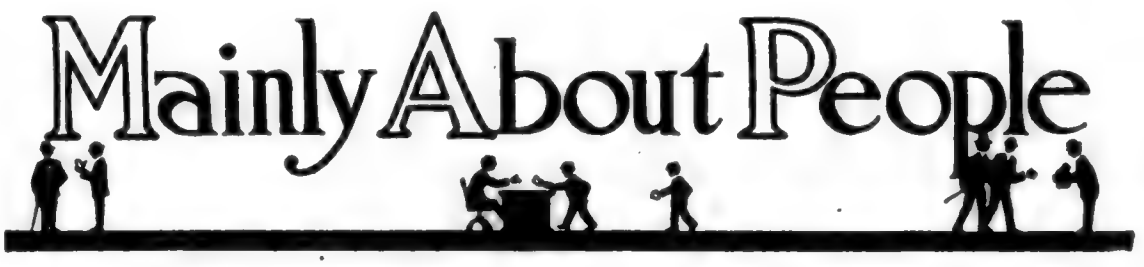
Michael Sweeney.

Michael Sweeney, for more than forty years a florist in Providence, R. I., and a former member of the common council of that city, died at his home at Edgewood, R. I., January 17. He was one of the oldest and best known members of the profession in Rhode Island and, through his frequent attendance at conventions and flower shows and his genial disposition, had a wide acquaintance and hosts of friends throughout the state. He was always ready to assist others, and many a young man owes his early successes in the business that Mr. Sweeney loved so well to the aid and advice of the deceased.

Mr. Sweeney was born in Leitrim, Ireland, June 3, 1844, but came to this country at an early age. He settled with relatives in Providence and in 1873 started in the florists' business for himself by erecting a small greenhouse on Broad street at the head of Pine street, where he has always remained. Located directly opposite the largest cemetery within the city limits, his business grew rapidly and his range of houses increased until he became one of the principal men in the business in that section.

Always of a retiring disposition, although a prince of rollicking good humor among his friends, Mr. Sweeney spent the greater part of his time at home, when not at his business. In 1888, however, he yielded to the persuasion of his friends and was elected a member of the council from the Sixth ward, a position which he held for three years, retiring in 1891 at his own request. He was one of the earliest members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island and was its president for two years. At the time of the holding of the annual convention of the Society of American Florists in Providence in 1893, Mr. Sweeney was one of the hardest workers for the entertainment and welfare of the guests.

A few years ago Mr. Sweeney moved to Edgewood, a residential suburb of Providence. He married Miss Mary Amelia Powers, to whom eight children were born. Of these, four daughters survive, Mrs. William T. Murphy, Misses Katherine P., Mary I. and Nannie M. Sweeney. He also leaves two grandchildren. W. H. M.



Louis S. Williams, Jr.

Louis S. Williams, Jr., of New Bedford, Mass., died at his home, 175 Acushnet avenue, January 7, following an extended illness. He was 19 years of age. Shortly after graduating from grammar school, he entered the employ of Wm. P. Pierce, where he learned the florists' trade. Two years later he opened a store at 180 Acushnet avenue and built up a good business.

He is survived by his father and mother and one brother. The funeral was held at the residence Monday morning, January 11, at 8:30, followed by a high mass of requiem at St. John the Baptist church. Interment was in St. John's cemetery.

Richard W. Allen.

Richard W. Allen died January 10 at his residence on Green street, Hudson, N. Y., at the age of 70. For a week he had been confined to his residence by illness, but January 8, when fire was discovered in his greenhouses, he left his bed to help fight the blaze. He rushed into the greenhouse and was overcome by smoke.

Ottawa, Ont.—E. I. Mepsted, of Scrim's, who is one of the most popular of Canadian florists, recently celebrated his seventieth birthday anniversary.

Bellevue, Pa.—Louis P. Faulk recently lost one of his sons, who met death while employed by the light company. He was 22 years of age. Mr. Faulk's other sons are associated with him in the business.

Centerville, Ind.—E. Y. Teas has had a severe attack of pneumonia, which has kept him indoors for more than a month. Mr. Teas is 85 years old and has been in the nursery and florists' business in Indiana for more than sixty years.

Rochester, Minn.—Ross Bragg, president of the R. Bragg Co., has been confined to his home for the last three weeks by illness. His condition is improved, and he will undoubtedly be back at business again within a short time.

Reading, Pa.—John H. Giles has purchased a 48-acre farm about a mile north of Sinking Spring, for $3,900.

Ottawa, Ill.—R. R. Davis has returned from Morrison, where he had been called on account of a fire at his home. The loss on building and furniture amounted to about $2,000. He has leased the Joseph Garland residence, at 503 East Main street, and will bring his wife here, to make this their home, for the present, at least.

New Orleans, La.—In response to a notice sent out the previous day, a number of florists conferred with the officers of the Association of Commerce January 11 in regard to the campaign for the city beautiful, and added greatly to its probable success by their enthusiastic support. The florists who attended the conference were: C. W. Eichling, Paul Abele, J. G. Schattmaier, J. H. Bierhorst, Peter A. Chopin, E. A. Farley, Herman C. Doescher, J. C. Quinette and E. G. Fleckt.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

FOR the average florist there is nothing easier to do than the Enchantress family of carnations and these will be planted heavily next season, perhaps more heavily than ever before.

H. YOUELL, secretary, advises that the American Gladiolus Society will not follow the S. A. F. to San Francisco, but will hold its annual show at Newport, R. I., August 18 and 19.

E. H. MANN is authority for the statement that next year the E. G. Hill Co. will drop Richmond and all other red roses save one. The reader is given one guess as to which red will be retained.

TIMES haven't changed: there is just as good a call for long-stemmed roses as ever there was—probably better—but the production of long stock is much greater than it was a few years ago, which accounts for the change in the market.

CURIOUSLY, the war first caused a rapid rise in prices but has by now resulted in falling markets in most lines. Imported goods nearly all are cheaper; so are domestic products of domestic use; almost the only commodities that are higher in price than they were August 1 are those that are exportable.

THE preliminary schedule for the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, to be held at Newport, R. I., in June, has been issued. Copies may be had by addressing the secretary, Harry A. Bunyard, 342 West Fourteenth street, New York. Additional special prizes listed are those offered by J. M. Thorburn & Co., Lord & Burnham Co., and Watkins & Simpson.

HERE'S THE HINT.

We, with others, wish The Review would give a hint to advertisers in reference to acknowledging the receipt of an order and stating when it is likely to be shipped. It would relieve the uncertainty as to whether the order can be filled or not.

QUICK ACTION.

The purpose of this and similar notices is to show the trade how surplus stock can be turned into cash. The special effort is to reach those who never have made use of the classified section of The Review to save a loss—to save a few dollars at the cost of a few cents. Like this:

Please discontinue our little classified ad; the first mail cleaned us out, but orders are still coming.—Wm. Toole & Son, Baraboo, Wis., January 18, 1915.

Please stop my classified ad of cuttings, as I am more than sold out as the result of the first insertion.—Herman W. Kropp, Columbus, O., January 16, 1915.

The one insertion of our classified ad in The Review for January 14 has sold the stock out clean, with some orders we can not fill.—Engelmann Greenhouses, Maryville, Mo., January 18, 1915.

The "word to the wise" should be especially appreciated by readers in the east, where many good sized lots of surplus stock went to waste last season merely for the lack of a little inexpensive advertising in the right place.

BUSHONG OWNS GARY NAME.

John Owens, of Gary, Ind., has been permanently enjoined from using the name Gary Floral Co., or any other name substantially identical with this title, in conducting his store at Sixth avenue and Washington street.

The suit was brought by A. T. Bushong, proprietor of the business on West Fifth avenue, conducted under the name of the Gary Floral Co. The complaint filed by Attorney R. B. Patton for Mr. Bushong states that Bushong was formerly in partnership with Owens. The latter sold out to Bushong, who retained the store under the name of the Gary Floral Co. Later Owens incorporated under the same name and then, it is alleged, secretly secured a lease on the store room occupied by Bushong at Sixth avenue and Washington street. Bushong moved to Fifth avenue, retaining the name of the Gary Floral Co. Owens attempted to reopen under the same name, but a temporary injunction was secured. January 8 the temporary order was made permanent, the complaint being amended to forbid the use by Owens not only of the name Gary Floral Co., but any of a similar nature which would tend to mislead the patrons of Mr. Bushong.

The building Mr. Bushong now occupies is a modern one, 25x80, two stories and basement, and he has a ten-year lease. The location is desirable and across the street from a site upon which the new federal building will be erected, the contract having been let recently. It is his intention to build a garage and packing room 25x40 in the rear of the store, with a greenhouse on the second floor and a stairway leading direct from the store to the greenhouse.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

Boyer, J. B., Altoona, Pa.
Williams, George, Upper Montclaire, N. J.
Stevens, Mrs. Chas. T., Plymouth, Mass.
Bath, John H., Omaha, Neb.
Baugert, F. W., Helena, Mont.
Golden State Plant & Floral Co., Santa Monica, Cal.
Then, Anton, Chicago, Ill.
Schweichler, John, North Tonawanda, N. Y.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns sent.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

From a wholesale point of view the market is in much better condition than it was a week ago. Looking at it from the retail angle, the improvement is not so apparent, as the change seems to be due more to a reduction in supply than to an increase in demand. There has, no doubt, been considerable increase in the number of out-of-town orders, as these always are more numerous when crops are light. City retail trade has not improved to any great degree, which leads to the belief that business is running along about the same with the out-of-town buyers, but that they are forced to send to Chicago for a larger part of their supplies than was the case earlier in the season. Prices naturally have advanced. Comparing the last seven days with the same week in 1914 seems to indicate that the market as a whole is more nearly normal than it has been at any time in the last six months. Prices on roses are below those of last year, but the shortened supply still is considerably larger than a year ago. Beauties, on the other hand, are less plentiful than a year ago and are averaging better returns to the growers. Carnation prices were falling rapidly a year ago, whereas they have been on the up-grade during the last week, but they are not yet up to where they were at this date in 1914. Most of the wholesale houses have enjoyed a considerable increase in their sales during the last few days, but in the majority of cases total receipts are not yet quite up to last year.

While there has been a sharp reduction in the aggregate quantity of stock coming to market, there still are enough flowers to go around. The possible exception is short roses. At this time of year no large percentage of the cut is short. At the same time, to an unusual degree the demand is for stock for work. The result is that short roses always sell at this time of year at what seems to be above their real value as compared to the price of fancy, long stock. The buyer who goes out late in the day to find 500 short roses at 4 cents will have more trouble than the one who wants 500 long roses at 8 cents. In the first case, a buyer will find the market bare, while in the second case he will find many an icebox with stock likely to be carried over to the next day. Killarney is unusually good for this season of the year and Killarney Brilliant leaves little to be desired.

Cattleyas continue to be among the most plentiful of items and valley is pressing for a sale. Stevia, which has been in heavy supply all season, is approaching the end; some growers have stopped shipping. There has been a considerable increase in the receipts of bulbous stock. Easter lilies are less plentiful, but there are many times last week's supply of tulips and jonquils also are more abundant, with the result that the price has dropped perhaps twenty per cent. The light supply of Romans is a subject for comment, in view of the supposedly large sale of bulbs last autumn. Paper Whites continue in large supply.

There are all the violets the market can use. A great deal of the stock is of excellent quality and there is no complaint save of lack of demand. Sweet peas are coming in more plentifully, but not enough so to have much effect on the sale of violets. Some of the Spencer peas are so fine that it is no wonder the public buys them in preference to other flowers.

Business continues erratic; one day will bring a rush while the next may see almost complete stagnation. On the average, results are better than they have been and there is a much better feeling in the market.

Various Notes.

James Hancock, who is right-hand man for Frank Oechslin, thinks the trouble many have had with their azaleas this year is due to the longer time the plants were en route from Belgium via Holland. Shipments via Antwerp sometimes have reached Chicago in twenty days, but this year none got in under a month, and many were six weeks in the cases. Under the circumstances it is no wonder some of the foliage yellowed and fell after the plants were potted.

The sale of young stock of chrysanthemums in recent years has been an especially important item with the firm.

It is reported that George Wienhoeber's new store made 140 separate sales January 16, which is considered excellent, even for a loop store, two weeks after the present proprietor took hold.

Felix Reichling says that Peter Reinberg is receiving many orders for the Josie Merle carnation. Many buyers apparently are trying the cut blooms preparatory to investing in cuttings for their own benches.

Erne & Klingel indicate their belief that wholesalers who, like themselves, have been able to do about the same volume of business as last year should count themselves as making a good gain.

To those who question the wisdom of a grower staking his fortunes all on one comparatively new rose, French & Salm, who are starting in March 1 at Union Grove, Wis., cite the adage about putting one's eggs all in one basket—and then watching the basket. The three houses, each 57x350, will hold just 33,000 plants of Mrs. Russell.

J. G. Schumann, formerly of Schumann & Kohout, of Libertyville, now is with Wendland & Keimel Co., at Elmhurst. Before his venture into business for himself Mr. Schumann was for many years a successful grower for Bassett & Washburn.

The establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, where there are twenty-eight big steam boilers, has used nothing but Illinois coal this season.

Henry Haberkamp has bought out his partner in the firm of Homeyer & Haberkamp, Mt. Prospect, Ill. It is understood Mr. Homeyer will build a range for himself in the same town. The old place consists of two houses that can not well be enlarged and is too small for two such good growers of carnations.

J. Byers is assisting Hoerber Bros., at their city store, until something permanent turns up.

The Market.

Market conditions changed greatly last week. The supply slackened considerably, while the call for stock was much better than the previous week. The result was a firm market. Shipping business is good.

Roses are not nearly so plentiful as they were and are cleaning up readily. American Beauties have a fair market.

The influx of carnations is not so large as it was and the receipts that are good all find a fair market. Lilies are plentiful and in demand. Valley is selling nicely. Violets have a fair call, while orchids are not in great de-large flowers on fine, long stems. Now that short roses are scarce these fine lilies make the best show for the money in funeral work.

BEAUTIES—Our flowers are the finest coming into this market. The very short stem Beauties we do not advise handling at this time of year.

ROSES—Brilliant, Rhea Reid, Sunburst, Pink and White Killarney, Richmond, etc., exceptionally fine flowers in all length stems.

FANCY CARNATIONS—Our Carnation houses are the wonder of the trade. The flowers are so large and strong. Lilies, very long stems and large flowers. We solicit orders and ask for a comparison in quality with any flowers in this market. Growing all the flowers we sell, our customers are getting the benefit of the best methods and careful handling in a large modern range of glass. The advantages of buying direct of the grower are immense.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has been much better than at last writing, and it begins to look a little like the days of yore. Funeral work has been quite heavy and there has been some decorating done. Stock is good and plentiful in nearly every line. Beauties have been more plentiful, and the demand has increased since the price came down. Other roses are fine, and the demand has about cleaned them up at all times.

Carnations are coming in heavily, but there are a good many splits. Paper Whites are abundant, but most of them are used up in one way or another; the same is true of Romans. Lilies have been a little scarce. Valley has been plentiful, with the demand about equal to the supply. Sweet peas, after a long lay-off, are coming in heavily.

Various Notes.

Sherman Stephens reports that business is looking up somewhat and that he is having good cuts.

Underwood Bros. have had much funeral work lately, that has used up stock quickly.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. reports heavy cuts of carnations, roses and Beauties. The company has had some fine azaleas, but they are pretty well cleaned up at present.

The Livingston Seed Co. ran a special on carnations at 35 cents per dozen, or three dozen for $1, and cleaned up a big lot of stock.

The Block-Crane Co. reports last week a good one, with some decorations among the business.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Demand and supply are more evenly balanced now than they have been for a fortnight or more. It has been possible to dispose of the heavy receipts of carnations, violets and daffodils at moderate prices. Perhaps it would be fairer to say that the prices have been extremely moderate for the season. There is a tendency toward better things, although this is more noticeable in the average price than in any special advance. Roses are quite scarce. The demand is largely for the shorts, with a moderate call for the highest grades. Orchids are in rather bad shape despite the disappearance for the time being of the mixed varieties, leaving only cattleyas, of which there are too many, and cypripediums. Gardenias have suffered also, but valley shows decided improvement. Sweet peas are selling better, the Spencers especially so. The price has moderated. Callas are in demand. Snapdragon is quite scarce. Easter lilies are too plentiful, requiring low prices to dispose of them. Golden Spur daffodils have arrived. There is a good supply of freesia. Paper Whites continue plentiful and cheap. White lilac is abundant with the specialist. Yellow daisies and pansies are moderately plentiful. Beauties show a tendency to advance under lighter receipts. Russell also has fallen off in numbers, as have Richmond and Ward. With some growers the Killarneys are coming into crop again, although they are not numerous enough to affect the entire market.

A Silver Catalogue.

"Have you looked carefully over our new catalogue just issued?" The question was asked by Henry F. Michell, as he turned with a bright smile of greeting in his commodious store the other morning. Stepping to the counter opposite, Mr. Michell drew a copy from its wrapper, glanced at the handsome cover page and lightly turned the pages. Doing so displayed in rapid succession the history of his seed house since 1890. There were the pictures of the founder, looking as alert as then; of the two stores, from start to present, the improvement apparent at a glance; the men who have helped to make the place what it is, their assistants, their surroundings, the trial grounds at Andalusia, and all that to it pertains. The view in panorama recalls the young man of twenty-five years ago who had been selected for his seventeen years of faithful service with the leading seed house of the day to take up the business cares of an estimable seedsman who had retired discouraged. How he did this, with many difficulties and obstacles to overcome, but with the aid of loyal friends and assistants, is a matter of history that is pleasant to remember.

Michell's had a poultry show in the store last week with over 1,000 entries. Twenty silver cups were among the prizes awarded.

A Private Ball.

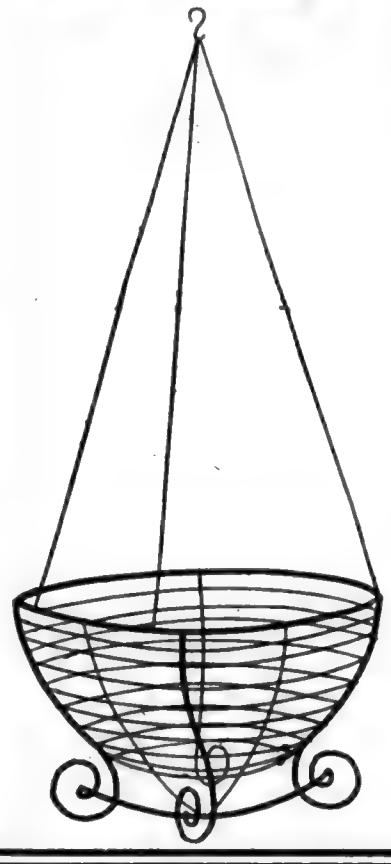
The elevator in the Bellevue-Stratford runs so smoothly that it is the wink of an eye from the street level to the roof garden many stories above. There, on the night of January 18, was a beautiful scene that should be an inspiration to all of us. The roof garden was arranged with the utmost care for a ball, a ball for which no expense consistent with good taste had been spared. The center of the room was devoted to the reception semicircle, as it were, beautifully embowered with graceful green. To the right of the hostess a lovely garden scene stretched through two rooms; opposite, the music; to the left, the dancing floor; beyond, the supper room. The garden was one of the most beautiful that has ever graced the Bellevue-Stratford, every detail perfectly worked out with elaborate care: the approach by grassy paths of mat, the borders of blooming plants and palms, the boundaries of vine-clad trellis were all perfect in form and color and combination. The farther end of the garden was occupied by a summer house approached by a couple of steps. Facing the summer house was a fountain, the triumph of the decorator's art. No water main, no concealed pipes supplied that limpid pool of water; the basin, once filled, sufficed save for evaporation. A concealed motor supplied the power that sent the water upward; gravity did the rest. Electricity colored the falling waters like the rainbow, while in the pool water lilies glowed forth in green, then scarlet, then orange and back again to green, to the wonder of all beholders. To return to practical details, cork bark and ferns finished the outside of the pool. A home-made trellis of birch bark was in keeping with the surroundings. A magnificent Cibotium Schiedei was given a place of honor.

I should like to quote John P. Habermehl's words when he so kindly explained his firm's beautiful decoration: "We are glad to show this to any florist because we believe that we should all help each other to advance our calling to the rank of a profession. To decorate is not merely to stand a few plants around, but to form an original plan that is in keeping with the surroundings and to carry it out with exactitude in every detail."

The supper tables, some fifty in all, were brightened with pink rose buds.

Various Notes.

Many of our leading men attended the special meeting of the Florists' Club, arranged for games and sociability, January 18.



J. J. Habermehl's Sons opened their beautiful new store in the Ritz-Carlton January 18. J. F. Leary is in charge. George S. Faulkner took charge of the Orchid Flower Shop. Herbert Bell assumed command at Twenty-second and Diamond streets.

W. W. Gibson has resigned his position with Pennock Bros., to assume charge of the store of the Hayman Greenhouses, at Clarksburg, W. Va.

L. A. Geiger has resigned his position with Joseph Becker. It is understood that Mr. Geiger, who is a brother of William Geiger, of Oak Lane, is considering taking the place of Ernest Wannemacher, at Overbrook, Pa.

The Market.

The market stands today practically as it did a week ago. Business continues to be fairly good, but, considering the high quality of the stock, the prices obtained are quite small. Roses are bringing low prices, although the quality is fine. Valley is in good condition, but it is dragging. Jonquils are not selling fast, as the supply is far greater than the demand. There is a glut of carnations. Violets are better than at any time this year, but there is no particular demand for them. Tulips are on the market, but, being short of stem, are not used extensively.

Various Notes.

Visitors: John Bubach, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh; John Konig, of Sassenheim, Holland; Chas. Schwake, of C. Schwake & Co., New York; Jos. V. Hyman, of Joseph Friedman, New York; A. Smith, of Wm. J. Boas & Co.,

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:-

A few weeks ago I started a small card in the Retailers' Telegraph Delivery department of The Review.

I have paid you only $3.50 so far. And this is what happened:

I received orders for Wyoming delivery at Christmas amounting to $142.50.

I think that is doing fairly well.

Respectfully yours,

The Market.

After passing through a trying week, with low prices, it was comforting in the extreme to have a decidedly better day January 16, and January 18 started a new week rather promisingly. There are strong hopes that the January slump is nearing its end and that conditions will become more nearly normal. This is a consummation devoutly to be wished, for business has been decidedly discouraging of late for growers and salesmen.

Roses, after a hard week, are doing somewhat better, but with some decline in values. January 16 saw a really good clean-up and January 18 also proved to be a good day. The same varieties which have proved their popularity, such as Ophelia, Russell, Hadley, Killarney Queen and Sunburst, are still in best call. Sunburst, from its superior size, will in large measure displace Ward another year. Carnations sold at low prices nearly all of last week; violets also had a weak market; in fact, nothing sold well with the exception of yellow marguerites, English primroses, trumpet daffodils and one or two flowers which were only procurable in small lots.

Sweet peas are good. So far daffodils have sold satisfactorily. Guernsey Golden Spurs are good. Among tulips, a nice lot of Thomas Moore is now appearing. There is an abundance of fine lilies and callas are in good supply. Much inferior valley comes in, but some of splendid quality appears from one or two specialists. Cattleyas are in good supply, with only a poor demand. Sales of Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus have been somewhat better. There is not much activity among pot plants. Dutch bulbous stock of nice quality in pans is coming in.

Various Notes.

Neil Boyle, of Malden, has 1,000 Formosa and 9,500 giganteum lilies which are looking extremely well. All are for Easter. Mr. Boyle's roses are in excellent crop. He is getting a fine cut of Ward, Sunburst, White Killarney, Double White Killarney, Richmond and Killarney Brilliant. He is well pleased with both Sunburst and Killarney Brilliant.

The Halifax Garden Co. now grows both roses and carnations. Of roses they are growing Sunburst, Taft, Richmond, Ward, Killarney and White Killarney. Of carnations their varieties are Mrs. C. W. Ward, Matchless, Philadelphia, Enchantress Supreme, Beacon, Pink Delight and White Enchantress. They also have Spencer sweet peas in quantity, snapdragons and mignonette. All their flowers are handled by A. E. Walsh. W. E. Lenk, the manager, will attend the Buffalo convention.

J. Koppelman & Son, of Providence, are now represented by Robert Koppelman at the Boston Coöperative Market. Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus are handled in large quantities.

Among those from Boston and vicinity who are planning to attend the Buffalo carnation convention are S. J. Goddard, William Nicholson, John Nelson, Albert Roper, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Strout, E. A. Peirce, W. E. Lenk, Peter Fisher, M. A. Patten, W. D. Howard, W. A. Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Reuter and A. A. Pembroke. Exhibits from here will be more numerous than in previous years.

With A. A. Pembroke, both Philadelphia and Matchless carnations are fine. Champion, Rosette, White Wonder, Benora and White Enchantress are

Mr. Pembroke's other leading varieties and he is sure to be well to the front at Buffalo.

Harry Quint says that business at his Tremont street store is keeping up remarkably well. He showed the writer the lease for a new store on Boylston street, right in the Back Bay district, which will soon be opened.

Edward Winkler is growing 8,000 of his new light pink carnation, Morning Glow. It is in great demand and nets him more to the square foot than any other sort he has grown. He expects to send a vase to the Buffalo convention.

W. S. Phelps, of Lexington, is in the market with an excellent lot of pink and white snapdragons. Phelps' White is admittedly the best of its color on the market today.

At Penn's a special violet window has been quite an attraction the last few days. An enormous number of violets are sold daily. Cyclamens in baskets are another pleasing feature. I noted some well flowered Epiphyllum truncatum. Business continues excellent.

William T. Walke, of Salem, through J. M. Cohen, is disposing of a fine lot of Freesia Purity in pots, beautifully grown plants.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, is having excellent success with Matchless, Gorgeous and Mrs. Ward carnations. The salmon sport from Winsor takes well. Other favorites are Benora, Pink Delight, White Wonder and Beacon.

At H. R. Comley's January 16 I noted, among other plants, Buddleia Asiatica, prunus, epiphyllums and the first Dimorphotheca aurantiaca of the season.

Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn, is just finishing cutting his winter sweet pea crop, which started flowering late in October. His single violets are doing satisfactorily.

Some of the leading shippers of callas at present are J. E. Long, of Holliston; C. L. Pierce and Frank T. White, of Holbrook.

ary 28, at Horticultural hall. The committee is anticipating a rousing attendance; ladies' night always proves popular.

William Jurgens, of Newport, is sending in the best lily of the valley I have seen this season. The special grade realizes $5 per hundred. He is also shipping giganteum lilies in quantity.

Paine Bros. are cutting Guernsey Golden Spur narcissi in quantity. They also have extra fine La Reine tulips and Paper Whites.

Work on Galvin's new store, on Park street, is being rushed. The laying of floors and building of iceboxes commenced January 18. It is hoped to have the store in readiness for opening the first week in February. It will seem strange to pass along Tremont street and not see a Galvin store, but Park street is quite a fashionable flower center now.

F. E. Palmer, of Brookline, had a good audience when he delivered the opening lecture of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's winter course at Horticultural hall January 16. His subject was "House Plants and Their Care." There will be no lecture January 23.

Wax Bros. report funeral orders as quite numerous last week. Among cut flowers trumpet daffodils have been in strong demand.

J. W. Simpson, of Reading, is starting to cut yellow marguerites in quantity. His plants are in elegant condition this season.

Mann Bros. this week are showing fine Thomas Moore tulips. Their lilies for Easter are three to four inches high, even and clean.

Zinn, on Park street, always keeps a nice window. I noticed a fine lot of Roper's new carnation, Miss Alice Coombs, there this week, also good gardenia plants and phalænopsis.

of Lilium giganteum to George Cartwright. He is also getting nice shipments of carnations from H. H. Rogers and East Sudbury Greenhouses, of Sudbury, and the Shepard Gardens, of Lowell.

The Houghton-Gorney Co., on Tremont street, continues to do a good business. I noted some nice camellias here, also epiphyllums well bloomed. Old-fashioned bouquets make a display in the windows. W. N. C.

Mayor Curley has appointed John J. Cassidy, one of the officers of the W. E. Doyle Co., at 6 Beacon street, a sinking fund commissioner, to succeed John W. O'Mealey. Mr. Cassidy is the exalted ruler of the Boston lodge of Elks.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been fair. Stock is plentiful, with just about enough funeral work to clean things up. Roses have been popular of late and are finding a good demand. Sunburst, Ophelia, Hadley, Russell and Richmond meet with the best sale. Beauties are shortening in supply and the quality is not good. Carnations are more than enough to go around and bring from $1.50 to $3 per hundred. Sweet peas are offered in goodly quantities and are finding a ready market. There are Paper Whites enough for everybody. Home-grown orchids are scarce, as are Easter and calla lilies. Freesias, daisies and snapdragons are part of the daily offerings.

State Association Meeting.

The annual meeting of the State Florists' Association was held at the Claypool hotel January 12, with about fifty members present. W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Ft. Wayne, and Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis, were nominated for the presidency, Mr. Vesey being elected by a narrow margin. John Hartje, of Indianapolis, was elected first vice-president over Paul Tauer, of Lebanon. J. D. Conner, of Wabash, was named for second vice-president over Theo. Dorner, of Lafayette. Oliver Steinkamp and Homer Wiegand were re-elected as secretary and treasurer without opposition. Clarence Thomas, with the Hill Floral Co., was elected to membership. It was decided to hold the February meeting with F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette. It was voted to extend an invitation to the American Carnation Society to meet in Indianapolis in 1916. A committee composed of John Hartje, Charles Pahud and J. D. Conner was appointed to revise the state fair premium list.

The Indiana rose trophy was awarded to Frank Bros., of Portland, who showed a beautiful vase of Killarney, White Killarney and Shawyer. The E. G. Hill Co. and W. J. & M. S. Vesey also showed well-grown stock in this class. The carnation trophy was awarded to Baur & Steinkamp, who showed Philadelphia, Enchantress Supreme, White Wonder, St. Nicholas, Pocahontas and Gloriosa. W. J. & M. S. Vesey, the E. G. Hill Co. and Stuart & Haugh also entered in this class.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, sent a vase of the new carnation, Mrs. Akehurst, which showed well. A vase of the new carnation, Cerise Winsor, was shown by E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill. Bertermann Bros. Co., showed some well-grown cyclamens, Boston ferns and Adiantum Farleyense. Baur & Steinkamp had a vase of a new shrub, Buddleia Asiatica, which created quite a little comment. F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, displayed a vase of Hoosier Beauty, which looked better than ever; also a vase of mixed seedling carnations, one of Good Cheer, one of Champion and one of Pink Sensation, which was unusually fine. Light pink seedling No. 271 received honorable mention. F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., sent a beautiful vase of the new deep red rose, Frances Scott Key. Peter Olinger, of New Castle, had a vase of a new red seedling carnation that looked good. A vase of a deep rose pink seedling carnation and one of President Valentine were sent by R. Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati. A fine lot of carnations came from the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., but they arrived too late to be judged.

week. The wholesalers say some days there was quite a demand for all kinds of stock, but on other days the demand was slow, with considerable stock left unsold. Especially was this true of roses and carnations. Carnations ranged from $8 to $15 in thousand lots and roses from $2 to $8 per hundred. The mild weather brought out a big crop. A noticeable feature was the increasing supply of sweet peas. In another week, if the mild weather continues, we shall have heavy consignments of these. Violets are also in greater supply of late. Lilies, Paper Whites, Romans and jonquils are in good supply at all the wholesale markets. Short asparagus in bunches is in demand, with a small supply. Good smilax is plentiful, as also are ferns.

According to the society columns in the daily press, several large functions are scheduled before Lent, which will undoubtedly help trade greatly.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its usual meeting January 14, in Odd Fellows' hall, with a good attendance. W. C. Smith reported for the spring flower show, stating that the local florists show little interest in a spring show, and asked for the discharge of this committee. The request was granted, with a vote of thanks for the work done. W. A. Rowe, chairman of the trustees, who have the club's dance and entertainment in charge, reported that all arrangements for this event are progressing. They expect the affair to be a great success, as tickets have been selling at a lively rate.

The application of Julius Erdmann for membership was reported favorably by the committee and his election followed.

The club voted to invite the American Carnation Society to hold its 1916 meeting at St. Louis and to send a member to Buffalo to extend the invitation. Should the invitation be accepted by the society, the club will be assisted in entertaining it by the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau.

for a state appropriation to be used for advancing floriculture in the state. This report was followed by an interesting talk by J. F. Ammann, on how the Illinois State Florists' Association was formed. A good discussion followed. It was decided that the secretary write to the Kansas City Florists' Club and ask its views on forming a Missouri State Florists' Association. There will be a discussion on this for the next meeting.

The chair appointed Messrs. Fillmore, Young and Guy to pass on the roses on exhibition. There were Hoosier Beauty, from the E. G. Hill Co., which, the committee said, "is an improvement on any red rose yet in commerce," and Ophelia, from the J. F. Ammann Co., which was extended a vote of thanks for the fine blooms.

The question box created some interesting discussions.

The next meeting will take place Thursday afternoon, February 11.

Various Notes.

A. J. Bentzen is counted among the bowling fans each week. When the Bentzen team bowls at the Washington alleys, Papa Bentzen keeps the score and continually roots for his team.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, spent a few days here last week. They attended the Bertig-Pollack wedding at the Planters' hotel. This is Mr. Bayersdorfer's first visit to this city since 1897. Before that time he was a regular visitor, so this time he made the rounds to renew old acquaintances. He found many of them still doing business at the old stands. Mr. Bayersdorfer also attended the Florists' Club's meeting January 14.

The vase of Hoosier Beauty roses exhibited at the club meeting by the E. G. Hill Co. were sent to Mrs. H. G. Berning, who has been confined to her home by sickness for a year. They gave her much enjoyment.

The suburban florists who were in town January 14 were E. W. Guy, W. E. Ogle, J. F. Ammann, Ed. Denker, J. Connon, W. J. Edwards, W. J. Pilcher, Frank Vennemann, W. E. Rowe and Pierre Schneider. All attended the club meeting.

Oscar Huettemann, head of the Tower Floral Co., on North Grand avenue, left last week for a two months' trip to Portland, Ore., to pay a visit to his daughter. He will also take in the ex-

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

F. W. Bolgiano, of F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Washington, D. C., last week was elected a director of the Continental Trust Co., of his city.

Joseph J. Budlong, head of the L. A. Budlong Co., a large grower of onion sets at Chicago, who now devotes much of his time to other interests, was re-elected January 13 as President of the Lake View Trust and Savings Bank.

After two years at its location at 230-32 East Fourth street, the J. Charles McCullough Seed Co., Cincinnati, has found it necessary to increase the size of its quarters and has leased the building at 228 East Fourth street for three years.

W. Atlee Burpee sailed January 16 for his annual winter vacation trip, this time to Costa Rica. Before departure he sent a printed card to his personal correspondents, in which he stated that "The fact is, I have seldom been so crowded with personal work as this fall and early winter, because of the changed and changing conditions in Europe."

CORN CANNERS CONVENE.

The indefatigable secretary of the National Canners' Association, Frank E. Gorrell, rounded up about thirty western packers at Chicago January 20 to organize a corn canners' section of the national organization similar to the pea, tomato and other sections recently formed. It is hoped to merge the Western Canners' Association into the corn canners' section of the national body, since practically all the western packers can corn as their principal item. Most of the western canners also pack peas, so that among the supply men present at the meeting were S. F. Leonard and J. C. Leonard, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago; Arnold Ringier, of W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, and W. C. Langbridge, of Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., each offering a fine line of conversation.

NO EXECUTIVE SESSION.

The inability of Lester L. Morse, president of the American Seed Trade

Association, to make the trip from San Francisco was the reason for declaring off the meeting of the executive committee originally planned for January 20 at Chicago. The business in hand did not seem to necessitate a meeting of the committee in the absence of the president. Plans for the convention at San Francisco next June are well in hand and will go on. S. F. Leonard, of Chicago, is chairman of a committee on transportation. Thus far the committee has taken no action, believing it best to wait until the situation becomes a little more settled. Within a few days an inquiry will be sent out to ascertain what the probable attendance will be. It is hoped to concentrate the eastern representation at Chicago for a trip to the coast with a special train, picking up the western members en route.

CANNERS' CONVENTION.

According to Frank E. Gorrell, secretary of the National Canners' Association, and W. C. Langbridge, president of the Canning Machinery and Supplies Association, the meeting of the canning trade at New York, February 8 and 12, will be of unusual size and interest. The business sessions and headquarters will be at the Hotel Astor, and it is stated that the house already is booked full, though there are plenty of accommodations in the nearby hotels. The exhibition by the Supplies Association will be put on at the Grand Central Palace, about three-quarters of a mile from the headquarters. Two floors will be used, the machinery and heavy exhibits on the first floor, with the seeds and other lighter displays on the mezzanine floor.

BIDS ON GOVERNMENT SEEDS.

Tenders of Stock for Distribution.

Mutual Good

No business can permanently prosper which fails to recognize that its prosperity must be gained by contribution to the prosperity of others. The greatest business institutions in the world serve the interests of their customers just as conscientiously as they serve their own. In the sale of Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs the same principle applies—the benefit derived is mutual. You get a profit from the good value of the bulbs, and we get a profit for our services in securing them for you. The only difference is that the grower's profit is a much larger per cent, if he knows how to handle the article. There is a large margin of profit in growing lily bulbs, and especially so if a florist can use the flowers at retail. In this connection we may also say that just how large the margin is depends upon circumstances, the most important of which is that Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs be used. Prices very reasonable—deliveries any time. Write for a Planting Table, showing when to plant Cold Storage bulbs for seasonable flowers.

THE 1914 PACK.

The National Canners' Association has given out the figures for the number of cases packed in 1914 as follows:

	1914 Pack.	Inc. or Dec.
Tomatoes	15,220,000	+1,000,000
Sweet corn	9,789,000	+2,500,000
Peas	8,470,000	— 700,000

Except for peas the pack was larger than in 1913 and of peas the pack was 2,275,000 larger than the average for the last five years.

The figures will be of interest to seedsmen who sell the canning trade and in a measure explain the recent condition in that field.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

OAKLAND, CAL.

The Market.

Business has been rather quiet since the holidays; with the exception of funeral work, there has been little doing. The call for flowers in the social circles has been below normal. In many cases garden flowers are used; these are available at almost all times.

Roses are not overplentiful, with a sharp demand. Killarneys are off color. Richmonds are fine and the best of keepers. Carnations are equal to the demand and move well. The shipping trade has been rather brisk. Violets are poor and there is considerable complaint on the size of the bunches offered. Orchids are plentiful and of good quality. Valley and Cecile Brunner are scarce. Easter lilies are plentiful.

Various Notes.

F. Aebi has a fine house of Spreckle carnations, and also about 5,000 plants in the field, from which he gets a good daily cut.

H. Hefly, of Portland, Ore., has taken a position with Mr. Ebel, at Sacramento, Cal.

J. A. Carbone sold about 4,000 orchids to the trade at Christmas, in addition to many choice plants.

The family of A. Vanden Abeele has been detained in Belgium on account of the war. He has received notice, through Secretary Bryan, that they will soon be on their way to America.

Roeco Lavagino has a fine crop of Mrs. Shawyer, which is well liked for its keeping qualities.

G. A. Van Linge, who grows valley exclusively, reports sales quite satisfactory. E. R. C.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

While business generally has not been good during the last week or ten days, a large amount of funeral work has kept down any surplus of cut flowers, excepting, of course, the poor ones, which, like those of the human race, are "always with us." Really good roses have been in somewhat short supply and have brought good prices. Carnations are plentiful and good; so are violets and orchids, especially cattleyas. The little Cecile Brunner roses are quite scarce, as are sweet peas, and thus the way is left open for good valley, which is plentiful and in excellent demand. Outdoor roses are in good supply and the quality of Kaiserin, Maman Cochet, red and white, and Ulrich Brunner is extra fine. There has been a strong demand for Easter lilies, a good part of the call coming from San Diego, for the fair, but the supply was short and poor.

Few growers are handling cold storage giganteums here, and that seems a pity, as they show a good profit and are almost constantly in demand. Good Asparagus plumosus is selling well, and smilax is on the scarce list. Plants find a poor market now and a considerable number of good azaleas are left over with the various growers. Cyclamens are not much in demand as plants, but the cut flowers are selling freely, especially good whites and dark reds.

Thanking you for the excellent results we have had to date from our ad. in The Review.—

Various Notes.

During the meeting of the California nurserymen in San Diego last November, Hal Kruckeberg made a number of interesting snapshots, but none any better, perhaps, than that shown in the accompanying picture. Almost everybody on the Pacific coast will recognize the classic features, but those who do not are informed that it is Henry W. Turner, of Montebello fame and the raiser of Rose September Morn. I asked Mr. Kruckeberg how he kept Mr. Turner still long enough to get it, but he said his camera snaps with great quickness. Speaking of September Morn, it is remarkable how quickly this rose has sprung into popularity, but its many good points form a sufficient reason. These good points I need not recapitulate, but rose growers all over the country will be interested in such a magnificent rose and so can hardly fail to be interested in its raiser—no, not creator; leave that to the wonder workers. This is probably the crowning point in Mr. Turner's career as a raiser of roses. At any rate, anything that beats it will have to be a wonder. He is to be heartily congratulated.

H. W. Turner Visits the Fair.

Murata & Co. are moving extra large quantities of fine valley, taking the entire cut of one of the largest growers. This is in line with the policy of the firm to handle nothing but the best. G. Newman says that, contrary to the usual practice of sending out old stock at the holidays, nothing was sent from this house but absolutely fresh flowers, and they are reaping the benefit now in repeat orders from holiday customers.

One of the finest things in O. C. Saakes' window last week was a magnificent bunch of Jonkheer J. L. Mock roses of immense size and substance. Mr. Saakes has been handling large quantities of this variety of late, from the Turner range.

Fred Sperry made a flying trip to San Diego, to the exposition, last week, in company with his wife and son.

Mr. De Graaff, the famous Holland bulb grower, has been calling on the trade in this city. He is such a busy man that we never see much of him, but he expressed himself as delighted with the little he was able to see of southern California.

SEPTEMBER MORN

Our Sensational New Light Pink Rose

Growth of the very strongest of any H. T. yet disseminated, throwing long, strong canes in rapid succession, 2 to 4 feet long; does not require pinching and will produce more high grade blooms than any Rose grown. Buds very large and finely formed, opening well into large, full, double flowers of magnificent size and form; a wonderful keeper, lasting over a week after fully open, and retaining its color and fragrance, which is without question the sweetest found in any rose. The petals are large and of splendid substance, waved or undulated on the edges, giving the bloom a very beautiful and distinct appearance. The color is an exquisite shade of light flesh pink on the outer petals, shading to pure rose pink in the center, with a faint touch of deep golden-yellow at the very base of the petals. Without doubt the most rapturously beautiful color in a commercial rose, selling on sight and called for repeatedly, owing to its splendid keeping qualities and distinct coloring. We have this season 10,000 of it planted for cut flowers, and it has given the most gratifying returns of any rose we have grown. Foliage large, ample and not subject to mildew or spot. A splendid all-year-round rose, giving good returns every day in the year. Does not get soft in extremely hot weather, and will be found indispensable where high grade blooms are in demand during the hot months. We are propagating from selected wood only, insuring good, strong, sturdy plants that will give maximum results.

Own root stock only, from 2½-in. pots, $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000; 5000 for $1000.00.

HENRY W. TURNER, Montebello, Cal.

NOTE—It can be seen growing with MR. C. H. TOTTY, of Madison, N. J., also S. J. REUTER & SON, of Westerly, R. I., and is for sale by them, in both grafted and own root stock.

had the decorations at the recent Merritt wedding and they were exceedingly beautiful. Over 500 strings of smilax were used in the house and these were studded with red carnations, of which about 5,000 were used. The bride carried a bouquet of choice orchids. Mr. Eldred is to be congratulated on the excellent trade he has built up.

It is interesting to note that Shawyer rose has sported to white at the Turner range at Montebello—another case of a sport appearing over widely scattered territory at the same time, or nearly so.

The H. N. Gage Co. is shipping fine Boston ferns in large quantities to this market and outside points. Mr. Gage reports a good demand for stock. The Montebello ranch looks fine now, with the narcissi and other bulbous stock in flower.

Several large Autocar loads of catalogues were included in the first mailing of the annual appeal of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. to its patrons. This year's issue has not been increased in size, but a good deal of condensing had to be done to keep it within limits.

The Hillside Nursery, at Montebello, is an interesting place to visit, Mr. Edlefsen being one of the old school of nurserymen, who like to keep a lot of varieties that are not grown everywhere. A walk through with the genial proprietor is an education and almost every plant has a history.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The most pronounced feature of present market conditions is the shortage of cut stock. There is not enough of anything to go around, except, possibly, Romans. The continuous cloudy weather is holding back the carnations, so that there is a tendency to stiffen prices to the growers. Bulbous stock is affected in a less degree. Roses are off crop, and supplies are coming in from California.

The sale of potted stock is stimulated by the lack of cut flowers, and good sales are reported of cyclamens, cinerarias, azaleas and potted bulbous and ornamental stock. Wild green of good quality is coming in, and pussy willows are more plentiful. Genistas, Primula obconica and malacoides, potted tulips, Romans and Paper Whites, a few begonias of the Lorraine type and still some poinsettias are shown. Formosa lilies and callas arrive in limited quantities.

The seed houses are mailing their spring catalogues. The excessive rain has retarded operations at the nurseries, and but little landscape work is being done. The seed stores have just received shipments of English seeds, which appear to be of excellent quality.

One feature creditable to the dealers is their willingness to divide with one another any sort of stock they happen to have, and it is astonishing that this spirit of friendliness is regarded by visitors as unusual.

Various Notes.

A. T. Reed, for twenty-two years connected with the seed business, was in town last week. For three years he has been located in the orchard district of Klickitat county, Washington, but is planning to return here soon,

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Wilhelm Pfitzer, Stuttgart, Germany.—Wholesale list of vegetable and flower seeds, bulbs, roots and plants; eight large pages, printed in German.

L. E. Williams, Exeter, N. H.—A 16-page catalogue of collected native trees, shrubs, vines and perennials. Mr. Williams makes a specialty, he says, of collecting native tree and plant seeds and has collectors in different parts of the country.

Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, Holland.—General catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds; 125 clearly printed pages, with the prices in English money, but with a table showing the equivalent amounts in United States currency. The introductory pages contain the reminder that during the war period "all telegrams must bear full address and signature and are not allowed to contain code words."

Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, Ill.—A 112-page catalogue of seeds, bulbs, farm and garden implements, fertilizers, poultry supplies, etc. A condensed alphabetical list, with the prices and the telegraphic code words, occupies the first thirty pages, and is followed by a fully illustrated, descriptive catalogue, without prices.

L. L. Olds Seed Co., Madison, Wis.—Illustrated catalogue of seeds, implements and sundries. The vegetable and agricultural list occupies seventy-four of the total ninety-six pages; the grains, grasses and other field seeds are especially conspicuous.

Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.—Thirty-first annual catalogue of "Sterling Brand" seeds, bulbs, perennials, vegetable plants and roots, roses, fruits, shrubs, trees, tools and miscellaneous supplies; an unusually comprehensive catalogue, containing 160 large pages, well illustrated.

Henry Mette, Quedlinburg, Germany.—A 96-page trade catalogue of vegetable, flower and farm seeds. The stock of flower seeds listed is a notably large one and includes several pages of distinctively German seeds, such as German wallflower, larkspur, etc. Among the illustrations are a number of views on the grounds and in the buildings.

James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.—Two catalogues, one from the seed department, the other from the landscape and nursery department. The former, called "Vick's Garden and Floral Guide," contains 104 carefully arranged pages, listing seeds, plants, bulbs and supplies. The nursery catalogue, comprising thirty-two pages and bearing the title, "The Fruit and Ornamental Tree Book," is the first of its kind issued by the firm; it was discovered that "the nursery trade had grown until a separate department had become a necessity." Both catalogues are well illustrated and are attractive in design.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—The fourth of this year's quartet of Burpee seed books. The first to arrive was the general catalogue, known as "Burpee's Annual"; then came the wholesale list "for seedsmen and dealers only"; then "The Silent Salesman's Assistant, an Aid to Burpee's Annual," and now "Burpee's Blue List," containing wholesale prices "for market gardeners, florists and farmers' clubs." Each of the four books is entirely distinct from the others in matter and arrangement, so that each one is well fitted for its own specific purpose, and all have been compiled with a painstaking care that must have involved a vast amount of labor.

Loedle Floral Co., Springfield, O.—"A Tip in Time," or "Proof Pages of Preinventory Prices," a 10-page folder containing a preliminary wholesale list of roses.

J. T. Lovett, Little Silver, N. J.—Thirty-seventh annual catalogue of fruit plants, garden roots, roses, perennials, flowering shrubs, ornamental trees, vines and hardy northern pecans; sixty-four pages, illustrated. The small fruits form a leading feature and occupy the first twenty-seven pages.

E. W. Fee, Albuquerque, N. M.—Illustrated catalogue of "seeds adapted to the southwest"; also poultry supplies, bee-keepers' equipments, garden and field tools and sundries.

HELIOTROPES FROM SEED.

Can heliotropes be grown from seed into salable plants for the spring trade?

V. R. F.

Heliotropes are easily raised from seed and the seedlings will make strong plants in ample time for the spring trade.

C. W.

Eureka, Cal.—R. T. Brown, vice-president and general manager of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., was in the city several days recently, on a business visit to C. W. IT took me six months to grow the plants, but it took The Review only one week to sell them.—Chas. A. Moss, Spartanburg, S. C.

WE have disposed of nearly 100,000 carnation plants this spring. Please discontinue the ad in The Review. The plants were fine, but we think much of the success in moving so many of them was due to your valuable paper.—The Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa.

A FULL LINE OF FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

FRANK JOHNSON, of Normal, Ill., for twenty-five years with the Phoenix Nursery Co., of Bloomington, Ill., now in the hands of a receiver, is contemplating starting a nursery at Heyworth, Ill.

JOHN HALL, secretary of, among other things, the A. A. N., is busy just now preparing for the sixtieth annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society, to be held in his home town, Rochester, January 27 to 29. This is one of the other things he is secretary of.

THE Hereford Nursery, at Hereford, Tex., reports the largest year's business in the last six years for 1914. L. P. Landrum, general manager, says the nursery will be enlarged this coming year. It now covers about forty acres. Joseph Landrum is his father's assistant in running the business.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, of Rochester, N. Y., have, they say, decided not to do things by halves, and so have established a separate department to handle orders for nursery stock. To this end, their "Tree Book" makes its first appearance, a booklet of thirty-two pages and cover, devoted wholly to nursery stock.

NURSERYMEN, and those in many other lines of business, for that matter, would like to see Uncle Sam arrange for delivery, postage C. O. D., by parcel post. It should be possible for a reputable concern to obtain such delivery by a pledge to pay the double postage, to addressee and back, on packages returned.

AT the annual meeting of the Durant Nursery Co., Durant, Okla., the directors chose W. A. Wagner manager, to succeed J. T. Foote, who has resigned and moved to Sherman, Tex. Mr. Wagner has been with the company for a number of years, in different capacities. C. C. Mayhew, of Sherman, Tex., is president of the company.

IN addition to the information on shipment by parcel post which is contained in most of the other nurserymen's catalogues, J. T. Lovett, of Little Silver, N. J., gives, in his thirty-seventh annual catalogue, a list of the average weights of one dozen or 100 berry plants, roots, shrubs, perennials, and the like, when properly packed for mailing.

THE zinc reproduction of an outline map showing the parcel post zones, with the concern's postoffice as the center, is a not expensive and exceedingly convenient addition to the catalogues of nurserymen who look forward to receiving many remittances for postage on packages to be sent by mail. It is surprising in how few catalogues it appears.

ON the program of the annual meeting of the Peninsula Horticultural Society, held at Wilmington, Del., January 12 and 13, were J. W. Killen, of Felton, Del., who spoke on "Nut Culture;" Orlando Harrison, of Berlin, Md., on "Peach Culture on the Peninsula;" Lester Lovett, of Milford, Del., on "Grape Growing;" W. F. Allen, of Salisbury, Md., on "Small Fruits," and F. C. Stokes, of Moorestown, N. J., on "Good Seeds."

Please cut out of my ad for Privet the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.

THE PHOENIX NURSERY SALE.

The real estate of the Phoenix Nursery Co., Bloomington, Ill., was sold at the court house in that city January 16, to B. S. Green, of Bloomington, for the sum of $28,000. The purchase price is considered low by local people, but owing to the terms of the sale, which were cash, and the present stringency of the money market, the bidding was not as lively as it might have been. The purchaser has not stated what he intends to do with the property, nor will he do so until the court confirms the sale when it convenes for the February term.

By the dissolution of this corporation there passes out of existence one of the oldest and most reliable nurseries of the country, whose patronage extended into every state of the Union and many foreign countries. John Y. Chisholm as receiver has conducted the business for more than a year. The nursery was established in 1852 and the company incorporated in 1890.

THE EUROPEAN OUTLOOK.

Even those who, at the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, prophesied a shortage of supplies in the lines of nursery stock imported from abroad, have since been convinced of their error by the arrival of consignments almost, if not fully, equal to the receipts of former years. The difficulty of transportation has delayed French nursery stocks and probably prevented a surplus in those lines such as developed for the seedsmen in Holland bulbs. The advices from France are to the effect that exports to the countries arrayed against her were, of course, nil, and to the allied nations, much less than usual, but to the United States, close to normal.

What will next season bring? is now the question. Obviously, much depends upon how long the war lasts. But there are certain factors which bear upon next season's imports that can be reckoned on with certainty at the present time. Though an attempt has been made by European nurserymen in nearly all places outside the scene of actual conflict to carry on business as usual, affairs have been dull, money is scarce, many have left for the front, and a large number of those who are at home are inclined to be discouraged. It is not to be wondered at if some, under the business burdens, personal privations and general uncertainty which is their lot, become dispirited. Strenuous efforts are being made by the trade organs that continue publication, to encourage those who are at home to carry on work as usual, so as to be ready for normal business when peace is made. But those in this country, where we have had only a faint echo of the business depression that has obtained abroad, can appreciate, by fancying conditions here several times worse, what these hopeful ones have to contend with. How far they can spur on the rest to work, under difficulties and discouragements, as in other years, and make up, as well, the lack of those who are at the front, cannot be guessed at. That affairs will not be normal next season, will not be disputed. The question is, how far from normal will our imports be? Although we can arrive at nothing definite, it is as well to consider now what the situation may be, so as not to be caught unprepared.

As a word by the way, it seems as though this were the time for advocates of American-grown stock for American nurserymen to push their case. Perhaps the production in this country of stock now obtained from abroad may prove a necessity as well as a matter of political economy another season.

PROPAGATION OF EVERGREENS.

What is the best way to propagate coniferous evergreens, such as biotas, retinosporas, cupressus, juniperus, etc., and also broad-leaved evergreens, such as camellias, laurels, tea olives, rhododendrons, etc., all of which grow outside here, in Alabama? F. B.

Such coniferous plants as you name can be propagated in two or three ways. The retinosporas are chiefly increased by cuttings inserted in sandy loam in coldframes or greenhouses in July and August. The frames or houses must be kept close and shaded, and care should be taken that the cuttings are never allowed to become dry. Cuttings are generally in a condition to be planted out in coldframes in the spring, where they can have some shade and be carefully watered. The following season they can be put in nursery rows in the field. R. obtusa is usually increased by veneer grafting. Dwarf forms of retinosporas should always be increased from cuttings, or they will lose their characteristics. The retinosporas can also be increased from seed. The same culture applies to biota and cupressus.

The junipers are usually raised from seeds, which germinate slowly, as a rule not until the second season, sometimes even later. The low, spreading types can be propagated by layering. Cuttings of wood in late summer can also be used.

Camellias can be grafted in small pots under glass, or short cuttings of the preceding season's wood, containing two to three eyes, may be used. Plunging the pots where they can obtain a little bottom heat facilitates rooting. Laurels are most easily propagated from cuttings. Rhododendrons can be rooted from cuttings. Layering is also carried out to some extent, but grafting on another rhododendron stock is usually resorted to. R. Ponticum as a stock would prove quite hardy in your latitude. Graft near the roots. The best time is December to February under glass. Kalmias, or mountain laurels, are raised both from cuttings and seeds. The latter plan is now mostly followed. The sweet olive, osmanthus, or Olea fragrans, is increased by cuttings. The plants in the nursery prefer partial shade. The fruiting olive comes slowly from seed, and usually the ends of the shoots of fruiting plants are used. These will root in a cutting bench under glass even if 2 to 3 years old.

If you have even a small greenhouse which can be devoted to propagation, you can, with a little care, propagate large quantities of evergreens. Full details of culture are too lengthy to be given in The Review, but there are no special difficulties with the varieties you have named. Some, however, take a considerable time to make roots; therefore, do not be of too nervous a temperament and jump to the conclusion that you cannot root them.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market is short of roses. This is nothing new for this season of the year, for always after the heavy Christmas cuts the quality as well as the quantity of roses suffers. Carnations are in oversupply. There is a lot of good stock at prices lower than they should be. Bulbous stock is making its annual appearance, with the quality only fair. The season appears to be about ten days late. New valley is forcing splendidly. Formosa lilies are coming in heavily. All efforts now seem to be to swell the business for Valentine's day. Each year it has shown a slight increase and this year must keep pace with the others and go ahead.

Florists' Club Notes.

The regular January meeting of the Florists' Club was held Monday, January 11, preceded by a supper at the Hotel Hollenden, at which thirty-six members attended. The meeting opened at 8:30, President Knoble giving a blackboard talk. Pads and pencils were distributed to the members and some well known old maxims, also some well worded new ones, were placed on the board, to be copied by any to whom they appealed. An instructive half hour was thus put in, after which the club listened to a talk on advertising by Charles Oswald, an expert in that line.

A general discussion on advertising, both individual and coöperative, was then taken up, after which the club voted on the proposition of taking up coöperative advertising to cover the period of one year, and to carry it out much after the plan of our Mothers' day campaign. A fund of $3,000 will be subscribed among the local stores and growers. Extra efforts will be made at St. Valentine's day, Easter, Mothers' day, Decoration day, Thanksgiving and Christmas to stimulate the trade, and continued advertising will be taken up in the daily papers throughout the year. The results obtained at Christmas, owing to the advertising done through the local press, have encouraged the florists to go further along the same lines and reap further benefits. Let us hope that they will be forthcoming.

The meeting night of the club has been changed from the second Monday of each month to the first Monday. The February meeting will be held the evening of February 1.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society was held at the office of Traendly & Schenck in New York, January 11. Those present were Wallace R. Pierson, Robert Pyle, S. S. Pennock, Louis J. Reuter, Harry O. May and Benjamin Hammond. The decision to hold the annual exhibition and meeting with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Boston, March 18 to 21, was carried. The committee on schedules consists of L. J. Reuter, Thomas Roland and Alex. Montgomery, who will issue the full schedule within a few days. The appointment of a manager for the show was left with the schedule committee. The annual meeting of the society will be held in Horticultural hall March 19, at 3 p. m.

Robert Simpson was appointed a committee of one to confer with the New York Botanical Garden committee relative to a June show at that place.

A communication was received from Philadelphia relative to an exhibition by the American Rose Society in the spring of 1916 and a substantial amount was offered for a prize list. This was gone over carefully and held subject to approval at the annual meeting in March. Benj. Hammond, Sec'y.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

Business continues quiet. There is plenty of stock offered at reasonable prices; in fact, the supply is larger than the demand. The indications are that the supply of roses will greatly decrease within the next week or so. The receipts of carnations are large. Formosa lilies are offered in quantity. The supply of greens is large, with the exception of Asparagus Sprengeri.

Various Notes.

John Coombs has let the contract for a house 54x220 to Hitchings & Co. It will be devoted to roses.

January 8 the Connecticut Horticultural Society held its first meeting of the year. The new president, Warren S. Mason, touched upon several plans for the new year, chief of which was a spring flower show. The following committees were appointed: Executive committee—John F. Huss, G. H. Hollister, W. W. Hunt, Oscar F. Gritzmacher and C. H. Sierman; publicity committee—James M. Adams, Edward Brassill and Alfred Dixon. R. C. S.

The Market.

With the exception of sweet peas, narcissi and American Beauty roses, the supply of all flowers last week was materially lessened, and prices are a little higher. The rainy days of the early part of the week had a bad effect on carnations and roses, and of the former thousands of splits are coming into the market, while there is complaint of mildew with respect to the latter. There are enough gardenias to be had to fill all demands; orchids are plentiful and quite cheap. The price on both single and double violets has dropped to 50 and 75 cents per hundred. Good stevia is to be had. Among the new arrivals are cornflowers and freesias, both of which are moving well. Valley is in big demand, and lilies sell readily because of an increased amount of funeral work.

Various Notes.

John H. Small, Jr., has been reëlected a director of the Farmers' & Mechanics' National bank and of the Union Trust Co. William F. Gude will occupy a similar position with the Munsey Trust Co. and the Lincoln National bank, and Frank W. Bolgiano will serve on the board of directors of the Continental Trust Co.

Among the visitors last week were Benjamin Dorrance, of Dorrancetown, Pa.; Charles E. Meehan, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, and William F. Kasting, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Maggie Pooley, the gypsy who was accused of robbing George Comley of $200, pleaded guilty of the offense and was sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary, but was placed on probation on the proviso that she leave within a week for Oklahoma. The woman is a Cherokee Indian, but has been living with the gypsies.

Z. D. Blackistone has been elected chairman of the florists' section of the Retail Merchants' Association.

Superintendent George W. Hess announces that the botanic gardens will hereafter be open Sundays from 10 to 3.

Standholders in the Center Market are planning to hold an exhibition during the week of February 15. The stands are to be decorated and an orchestra and a band have been engaged. Robert A. Bowdler and Frank B. Slye are members of the committee which will have this affair in charge.

J. Norman Ager, who for the last three years has been connected with the rose growing force of Gude Bros. Co. at the Mt. Olivet houses, has resigned his position and is about to go west with a view to locating in Arizona or southern California. C. L. L.

COTTAGE GARDENS CO., Inc., QUEENS, N. Y.

LANCASTER, PA.

On Tuesday of last week a severe storm with a heavy rainfall passed over Lancaster county. Statistics show that more than 3.11 inches of rain fell. The high winds wrought havoc with the wires and several florists suffered loss from the breaking of glass.

The geranium rooting establishments, in which Lancaster county leads the United States, are running full time and are not nearly able to keep up with the orders. Ricard, Nutt and Poitevine are the leaders.

Geo. G. Goldbach is starting to cut callas in quantity. His window display last week was one of the best seen in the city.

Chas. F. Edgar has severed his connection with B. F. Barr & Co. The best wishes of the club go with him.

Among the visitors noted during the week were: Walter Mott, selling Hammond's Slug Shot; Max Fierstein, representing the Moore Seed Co., Philadelphia, and Paul Kronnell, representing C. J. Speelman & Sons, Sassenheim, Holland.

Buddleia Asiatica is being tried out by several of the local growers, to ascertain its value as a cut flower. Its graceful appearance and delicate odor make it exceedingly attractive. A carnation house temperature seems to suit it well.

H. B. Weaver, of Bird in Hand, is cutting mignonette and Silver Pink antirrhinum of highest quality.

H. D. Rohrer has several houses of Primula malacoides, which are finding a good market. This variety is a valuable addition to the primula family, for, with its dainty pink flowers and pleasant fragrance, it is irresistible to the flower buyer during the dark days of winter. H. K. R.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Frederick W. Smythe has filed a certificate with the city clerk at Newport of ownership of the Newport Nursery Co.

Michael Boyle, who has been gardener of the Robert I. Gammell estate for many years, received a bequest of $400 in the latter's will, filed a few days ago.

Charles D. Stark has resigned his position as gardener for T. Suffern Tailer. He had been in charge of the estate for twenty-eight years, although most of that time with another owner.

Buy for Quality

"Safety first" is perhaps the most extensively used slogan of today and there is none more significant. Well, "quality first" means the same thing to the grower who is buying carnation cuttings. While propagating our carnation cuttings, we always keep in mind "quality first." We are propagating:

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been active. There was an unusually large number of funerals last week, twenty-eight in all, and of course considerable work was done. Flowers are more plentiful than they have been at this season for a long time. The weather has been favorable for their production, as it is mild, with a good deal of sunshine. Roses, carnations, sweet peas, Paper Whites, Romans, etc., are good and the prices are lower than they have been for the last seven or eight years, at least.

Various Notes.

C. L. Niednagel intends to grow only grafted stock this season, and so he is busy grafting. He has been cutting a lot of flowers from the own-root stock, but has concluded that grafted stock will do still better.

J. C. Elspermann has been on the sick list. Business is good and potted plants are selling especially well.

Karl Zeidler is getting a good share of the funeral orders. He has to buy a good many roses and carnations.

W. D. Macer is getting his share of trade, it seems, as he is pretty busy.

E. L. Fenton is attending the poultry show this week, at Evans hall.

Julius Niednagel & Sons have been busy right along. Their carnation crop is fine and the rose production is improving. They are having excellent results with carnation cuttings in the sand.

E. L. F.

GREELEY, COLO.

P. O. Hansen will add two houses to his range next summer. When they are completed he will employ a night fireman.

The added neatness and quality of the stock of the Gardner Floral Co. proves the wisdom of handling less glass after the mum season. A. Gardner's son, Howard, who was formerly connected with his father's business, has taken a position with the leading garage here.

Miss Helen Peary, general manager for Ellis the Florist, recently made a flying trip to Denver on business.

Andrew Epple expects to replace the smoke flue in his vegetable forcing house by hot water or steam next season.

We Offer for Immediate Delivery

Good, strong, well established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly VALUABLE NEW ROSES

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and Prince E. C. d'Arenberg

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA

No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively.

Strong plants on own roots. 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY

This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double, hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG

This variety might well have been termed a Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine, straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000.

SOME RECORD

This week when ordering their third lot of seed of my original S. P. snaps, Messrs. W. G. Moulton & Son, York Village, Me., write:

"Last year we planted a bench 4x40 to your S. P. seedling snaps. They came right for Memorial Day. We began cutting April 12 and in six weeks we sold 1600 spikes, besides what we used and gave away. They were not only very profitable, but a great and showy ad for us, many customers judging them 'great,' 'wonderful,' etc., and all were highly pleased with them. We were compelled to sacrifice the bed after Memorial Day to make room for early mums. Have the same bench planted this year and they are great."

This must be acknowledged a great record, which cannot be duplicated by any other snapdragon. By throwing the plants out so early these gentlemen missed a heavier crop of blossoms, which would have continued several months.

We have plants that will make the same record for you, and to quickly move a block we will add 10 per cent in plants with every order. Price for XX stock only, $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000. Remember, these are SEEDLING plants. Your time and space are wasted if you use cuttings. Other varieties are: Yellow, $5.00 per 100; Garnet Gem, $8.00, and Nelrose, $6.00. Write for complete list.

Don't overlook the importance of early seed-sowing. Have ready a big lot of snaps for spring trade. My seedling Silver Pink does as well in field as in greenhouse, being of medium height and producing three blossoms to one of any variety in existence. Price of seed, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Cultural directions free. All orders cash.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Stock was plentiful last week and business was above expectations. The local growers are cutting fine roses and carnations. Medium-grade roses were scarce. Plenty of carnations are being cut every day, and the stock is fine, considering the cloudy weather. Among the better grades on the market are Philadelphia, Herald and Enchantress.

Sweet peas have improved wonderfully, but long-stemmed stock is scarce and short-stemmed stock is not enough for the demand. Violets and valley are hard to get. Narcissi, yellow and white, have glutted the market, but the rush of funeral work during the last few days has helped to keep the supply down. Easter lilies are fine, and florists are assured of fine crops. There are some jonquils on the market, but they are rather soft yet.

Various Notes.

An enthusiastic club meeting was held Tuesday, January 12, at the store of S. N. Peck. About thirty-five florists were present. The main discussion of the evening was on how to create more interest and liveliness in the regular meetings. The secretary suggested that the meetings start more promptly and close at an earlier hour, after which bowling tournaments be held. As a result, a number of florists, together with F. Lemke, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, rolled a few games. Among the star bowlers were H. A. Mills, Toledo's veteran florist, who has passed the 70-year mark; Max Spanner, Martin Lehman, of Schramm Bros.; E. A. Kuhnke and Geo. B. Schramm.

T. Magee reports business still good, with plenty of decorating to do. Business in general is better than he expected at this time of the year.

Schramm Bros. report business all that could be expected. It is surprising how fancy boxes and plants are selling for hospital trade.

John Barrow has his greenhouses well filled with spring bedding stock and ferns, all of which look well.

Among the visitors last week were: Charles Schwacke, of Chas. Schwacke & Co., New York; Fred Lemke, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; Frank J. Farney, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; F. G. Nelson, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., and E. A. Marxson, of Chas. F. Meyer, Inc., New York.

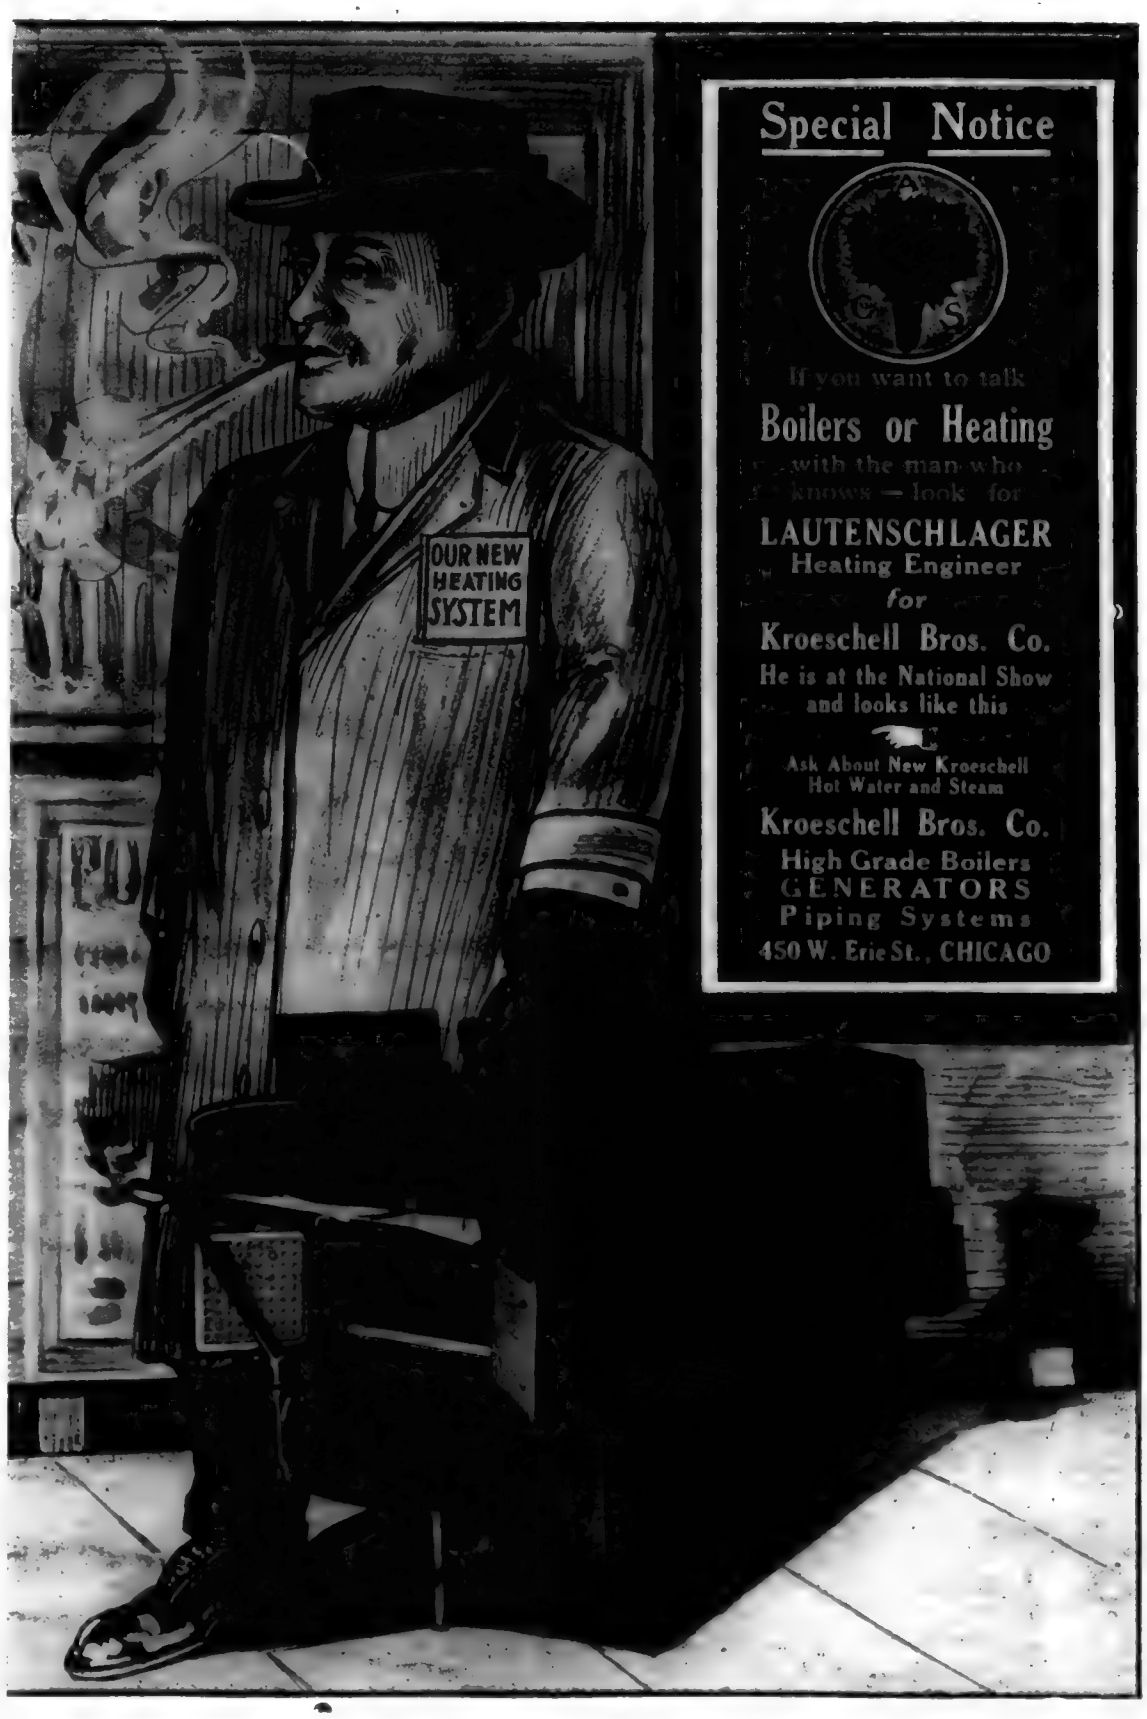
Greenhouse Heating.

"SMOKELESS mines have been, until recently, running but three or four days a week. It would take a mighty increase in demand to bring them up to full time. Until they are running full, it is out of question to talk about a strong market."
—The Black Diamond.

VEGETABLE HOUSE AND HOTBED.

I am building a greenhouse and should like you to tell me the proper way to install the heating pipes. The house is 20x60, inside measurement. It runs east and west, with the boiler room at the west end. The boiler room is four feet six inches lower than the floor of the greenhouse. The greenhouse is four feet six inches high to the eaves and nine feet high to the ridge. There is no glass in the north wall or in the west end below the eave. The south wall has twenty inches of glass. The east end has twenty inches of glass below the eave. There is a door in the east end. The wall under the house and boiler room consists of tile building blocks, except the south wall, which is on posts, boarded up to the glass.

I expect to use steam heat. The house is to be used for growing lettuce and for starting vegetable plants in the spring. I shall use raised benches, one 4-foot bench at each wall and one 8-foot bench in the center of the house. I have a 10-horsepower portable steam boiler and expect to use low pressure in moderate weather, increasing the pressure in zero weather. I want to pipe the house so as to be safe when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero, as that temperature is sometimes experienced in this Pennsylvania climate. I want to use 2-inch pipe for the main pipes and 1-inch for the returns, as I have these sizes on hand. I wish, if possible, to arrange the pipes in such a way that I can use the space under the benches for forcing rhubarb, etc. Please explain how to make the return connections to the boiler correctly.



I have a lot of 6-foot hotbed sashes and want to use steam to heat them in the spring, when I am growing plants. They will be placed just west of the boiler room. How should I put in the pipes? Would it pay me to build concrete walls for these sashes, when I have good lumber that I can use. I have a water tank which holds 2,000 gallons. It is twenty-five feet above the greenhouse and 250 feet away. I shall run a 2-inch line to the greenhouse. Will this give enough pressure to operate an overhead irrigation system in the house and for coldframes? Any suggestions will be appreciated.

H. D. D.

For piping the house described I would suggest the use of one 2-inch flow pipe, located about two feet below the ridge, and ten 1-inch returns. Place one return on each plate, two under each of the side benches and four under the middle bench. To afford an opportunity for using the space under the benches for forcing rhubarb, the returns should be carried about six inches below the bottoms of the benches. Depending upon the arrangement of the benches, it might be possible to place one or two more pipes on the walls and two might be carried on the supports of the center bench.

While I would ordinarily advise the use of concrete for the walls of hotbeds, especially if to be heated by steam or hot water, since the lumber is on hand it might be best to use it in this instance. For a hotbed to be heated by steam, I prefer a width of eleven feet six inches, using an even-span roof. A 2-inch flow could be carried under the ridge and a 1-inch return on each wall. If the hotbed is six feet wide, a 1-inch flow pipe may be placed on the back wall and a return on the front wall.

While a greater pressure would be desirable for a sprinkling system, good work can be done with a head of twenty-five feet.

For gravity steam heating it is always desirable to have the returns at least two feet above the water level in the boiler. If this can be secured, the main return may be connected directly with the bottom of the boiler; otherwise a steam trap should be used to handle the water, but in this case a pressure of about five pounds will be required.

HEATED WITH COIL BOILER.

I am planning to build two greenhouses, one of them 24x75, the other 12x75. The side walls will be five feet high and will contain no glass. The houses will be twelve feet and nine feet high to the ridge, respectively. I am thinking of using six 2-inch flows overhead and two 1½-inch returns for each flow, for the two houses. The highest points will be at the end of the houses farthest from the boiler. The boiler will be built of fourteen 2-inch pipes, ten feet long, arched over the fire-box, with seven pipes on each side of the arch. Each side of the boiler will supply three flows. What size of grate do I need and will there be enough pipes in the houses and boiler, according to my plan, to keep the temperature at 50 degrees when the mercury outside stands at zero? The location is southeastern Pennsylvania. K. D. G.

While it would be possible to heat the house 24x75 feet to 50 degrees by means of four 2-inch flows and eight 1½-inch returns, it would be more economical of fuel and labor if ten returns were used. For the house 12x75, I would suggest the use of two flows and five returns. The foregoing suggestions are made with the understanding that there is pipe on hand of the sizes mentioned. Otherwise I would use three 2½-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns in the house twenty-four feet wide, and two flows and four returns in the 12-foot house. A grate 2x3 feet should be large enough for the two houses. The heating surface in the coil boiler is amply large; in fact, a length of eight feet would answer.

Back to Boiler

SYSTEM

Don't waste the condensation in your steam lines. Return it to the boiler with its full heat content. You can do it with the Morehead System and with your boiler on the ground level. Install a Morehead System in your greenhouse and see how quickly the "Morehead" will show a saving in your coal bills, and maintain a steady, even temperature, not to mention the great improvement in your heating apparatus. There is a Morehead System to fit your needs. Just state your conditions and ask for our proposition.

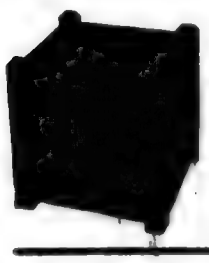
KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The warm, sunshiny weather from January 1 to 16 brought the cut flowers into bloom too fast. This city has already received its average of sunshine for January. Business in general is irregular and it is difficult to report it exactly. On the whole, the demand has improved, but the stock is coming in too heavily, except in red flowers, of which there are not enough to fill orders. As compared with last year, the supply of pot plants has just doubled; this will mean low prices somewhere along the line.

There is a noticeable shortage in red roses and Beauties, with a heavier demand. The reason for the shortage is that the growers have commenced to propagate. Killarneys also are less plentiful, but sufficient to fill orders. The situation in carnations is bad, as they are coming by the thousands. Splits have no show at any price and the market does not nearly consume the receipts, an unusual condition at this time of year. Bulbous stock is plentiful, especially narcissi, which have been a glut in this market for the last three years. Easter lilies, sweet peas, valley and snapdragons are still abundant and only the best of them sell even at low prices. Orchids have sold for less money than ever before, as the supply is far heavier than the call.



Various Notes.

The trade will regret to hear that Luke A. Baumgardner, formerly with W. J. Barnes, died at his home in St. Louis January 6.

The Alpha Floral Co. was busy all of last week with decorations. Corsage bouquets were also in good demand.

Henry Kusik & Co. report that they are short in some lines of stock and the reverse in other lines. Orders for wire work have been heavy.

E. A. Humfeld had a good run on funeral work last week and business in general has been all he could expect. W. J. B.

The Market.

There has been little change in general conditions. Business is quiet, and there are no signs of any immediate improvement.

Carnations are still more than plentiful. The quality is fine, but prices are extremely low for this time of year. Roses, while not exceedingly scarce, are not plentiful by any means, and no trouble is experienced in moving the entire cut. The quality is high, and some fine stock is being disposed of at reasonable prices.

Violets continue in large supply, and there is no deterioration in the quality of the stock. The market is not brisk, however, and it is hard to dispose of all that come to the market. Valley is still in good supply and of fine quality, but is moving slowly. Spring stock is making its appearance and will soon be a large factor in the business each day.

Various Notes.

Currie Bros. Co. has moved from 312 Broadway to the new quarters at 384 East Water street. The company will occupy the entire building, which consists of four floors and basement. The new place has many advantages over the old quarters and the location is central.

C. W. Rockwell, of Whitewater, who has been in the florists' business for a long time, is dead. He was buried Sunday, January 17.

The Market.

With continued favorable weather, stock is fine, even better than last week. Roses and carnations are better than ever before at this time of the year, while orchids, valley, hyacinths and narcissi are good and plentiful.

Trade has been good this last week, funeral work being rather heavy. Society has been on the move and decorations and bouquets for various occasions have been in demand.

Various Notes.

The Knoxville Florists' Society enjoyed a delightful time at a banquet, held at the Imperial hotel, Tuesday night, January 12, which was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present. The decoration was of roses and carnations of the latest varieties, and the society wishes to extend its hearty thanks to E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., for his donation of Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia roses, and for his carnations, which were unnamed; also to Gunnar Teilmann, of Johnson City, Tenn., who sent a nice box of his new pink seedling carnation, Lady Grace.

C. L. Baum is cutting some fine stock. His orchid crop is heavy, and although the demand has been good, he is unable to dispose of them all on the local market.

Trade at C. W. Crouch's has been good. He is cutting a nice lot of orchids, which sell at good prices.

A. H. Dailey has been rather busy with funeral work. His stock is better than usual at this season of the year.

W. R. Ryno's mother died Monday, January 11, suddenly and unexpectedly, and the deepest sympathy of all brother florists has been extended to him and his family.

Addison J. McNutt is cutting some fine stock, principally sweet peas.

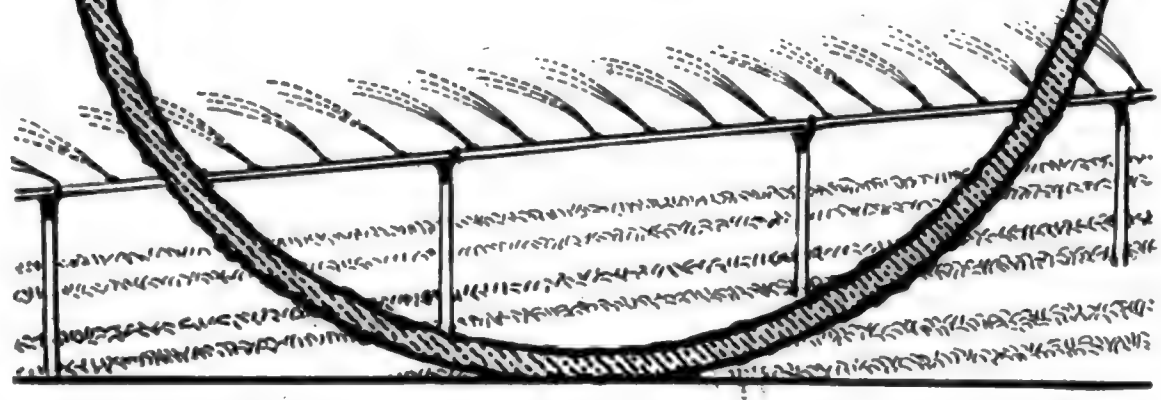
The Way A. V. Broome Figures That the Skinner System of Irrigation Saves Him Money

A. V. Broome, Mgr., A. L. Bush & Co., Fond-du-Lac, Wis., says:

"After two years of use, our experience with the Skinner System can be summed up in one word—"Perfect"—both in the greenhouse and out-of-doors. In the greenhouse we use it daily, and find by actual test it consumes one-third less water to properly water each inch of either bed or potted stock, than it does to do the same work by hose, and when the work is done by the Skinner System, it is all done alike, whereas by the hose this is impossible.



"Then again, if one adds up the time for a year at one hour per day, and deducts that from his payroll, he will find the price of installing will be on the credit side of the ledger. At least, that is the way we found it to be in our little place."

SPECIAL OFFER

To prove to yourself beyond all doubt that our System is the System to buy, and that it will do exactly what we say it will—order one of our Complete Portable Lines, and try it out. It consists of a 50-foot line of pipe, fully equipped with nozzles, turning union, roller bearing supports, and our new quick detachable coupling, on which patents are now pending. We will ship it to you for $11.75 f. o. b. Troy, Ohio. If you send money with the order, we will do one of two things—either prepay the freight east of the Mississippi River, or send you two sets of nozzles, one for greenhouse and one for out-of-door use. State which you want us to do. If you haven't our Irrigation Bulletins, send for them.

Guess Work Cut Out

ONE thing is certain about every certain thing about our construction—there is absolutely no guess work.

We do not use a thing because someone else does. We use it because we have proven it to be the best thing to use. Tomorrow, for example, after the results of a series of tests and experiments, we may prove to ourselves that some other thing which we are not using is better, and it will be promptly adopted.

It may seem, sometimes, as if we changed our minds overnight—when, as a matter of fact, we have been making tests and slowly changing our minds for months and months.

Based on elaborately intricate figuring, by our engineers, of roof stress and strains, we absolutely know that the method of bracing is the best for preventing lengthwise movement of greenhouses

Our salesmen know exactly why we use the things we use, the way we use them. If you but give them half a chance, they can prove up to you, step by step, why our materials and construction are beyond a question of doubt the very best in the market today.

When you are ready for such a talk, say when and where and one of us will be there.

500,000 CARNATION CUTTINGS.

We are devoting our entire plant to the growing of carnation cuttings. Our stock plants are grown cool and not allowed to flower, so all the strength goes to the cuttings. Experience had proved beyond question that these are far superior to cuttings taken from flowering plants. We have an abundance of stock and our propagators are instructed to use only perfect cuttings. These are now rooting nearly 100%.

We invite you to come and see our stock.

GOOD STOCK for you for another season means SUCCESS; POOR STOCK means FAILURE.

Our guarantee goes with every cutting and, if not satisfactory, may be returned and money back.

PELARGONIUMS.

In the Florists' Exchange of Jan. 2, page 18, Fritz Bahr says: "Have you tried that splendid new pelargonium, Easter Greeting? If not, make room for it, for it is a good thing and you will have no trouble selling a good number of plants this spring. It is one of the new things that deserves pushing." That's what view we've been telling you and we are the real pushers, having sold 50,000 in 1914 and not a complaint. C. A. Bitner, Ft. Wayne, Ind., Jan. 13, sends an order and says: "I have a complaint about 'E. G.' I bought 25 last spring for stock, but they bloomed all summer and I got but few, so had to come again. They beat them all." Now do you believe us? We have them in any quantity, 2¼, 3 and 4-in., $10.00, $12.00 and $18.00 per 100. Fine stock; ironclad guarantee; no risk. S. C. Templin, "E. G." The principle—Two layers of glass with a ⅝-inch layer of dry still air

Get ready for your winter garden

Glass must be used whether you garden for profit or simply to enjoy having vegetables and flowers when they are a luxury and sell high.

And you must have Sunlight Double Glass Sash if you want to get the best results at the least cost of money and labor. They have become the standard throughout the best and largest gardens in the country for very good reasons:—

Three reasons why

1 The air space enclosed between the two layers of glass makes a transparent cover that affords better protection than the mats and shutters on the old single sash. And, it never has to be put on and off. It is always there though invisible.

2 This air space saves more than one half the labor.

3 It makes far earlier and stronger plants.

Our inexpensive greenhouse

A handy man can set it up in a few hours. It is framed of cypress and covered top and sides with Sunlight Double Glass Sash which can be removed at will for use elsewhere or for repairs.

The principle—Two layers of glass with a ⅝-inch layer of dry still air

Get ready for your winter garden

Glass must be used whether you garden for profit or simply to enjoy having vegetables and flowers when they are a luxury and sell high.

And you must have Sunlight Double Glass Sash if you want to get the best results at the least cost of money and labor. They have become the standard throughout the best and largest gardens in the country for very good reasons:—

Three reasons why

1 The air space enclosed between the two layers of glass makes a transparent cover that affords better protection than the mats and shutters on the old single sash. And, it never has to be put on and off. It is always there though invisible.

2 This air space saves more than one half the labor.

3 It makes far earlier and stronger plants.

Our inexpensive greenhouse

A handy man can set it up in a few hours. It is framed of cypress and covered top and sides with Sunlight Double Glass Sash which can be removed at will for use elsewhere or for repairs.

The Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

Relative to the White truck that we have been operating for the past six months, will say that it is in a class of its own, far superior in every way to any of its competitors.

We have driven the car about eight thousand (8,000) miles and in that time it has never refused to run and has taken the place of three wagons.

With the exception of the monthly inspection by The White Company, it has not been touched. We believe it to be as economical in the consumption of tires and gasoline as any other make.

Very truly yours,

of our grafting has had years of experience in this work with other firms, and he is well acquainted with the manner in which most of them do it.

He said to me today:—"This is the only place I ever worked where they are so particular with the grafting wood—most of them use blind wood or any old kind, while you use only the choicest flowering wood."

We are particular, and we expect to keep on being particular with every detail of the grafting business.

We are not going to have one customer but what will be entirely satisfied.

Our first 50,000 will all be out of the boxes within a week and they sure are a fine lot, that we will be glad to show to prospective purchasers of grafted roses. If you are thinking of buying some grafted roses this year a trip here might be very profitable to you in many ways. We are grafting all the kinds, but Ophelia and Russell in greater quantity than any others.

Our new "Baby Rose"

while not advertised as extensively as some of the new ones, is sure to make just about as good a place for itself as any of them. The store men like little roses—most any of them will tell you so. They like Cecile Brunner, the little pink one, and they will like Geo. Elgar better, because of better foliage and stem, and its wonderful clear yellow color. The grower will like it because it will pay him to grow it. It's so easy to grow—so free from disease—and brings so many salable flowers that sell so easily. It's good for the small grower, too, the grower that has a small retail business, for he can always, with a couple of hundred plants, cut enough to make one or more bouquets, on short notice. Good own root or grafted. State how many you would like to grow—write us about it, and let us quote you.

OUR $10.00 BOXES OF CUT ROSES

are gaining friends every day. Friends among some of the most discriminating buyers. The largest retailer in one of the largest mid-west cities sent for a sample box last week—He sent back at once for a standing order for several shipments a week.

They are assorted good quality roses--fresh--absolutely fresh.
Why not order one today?

Here are two of last year's introductions that we believe to be good commercial varieties, and we will grow these in quantities ourselves:

Champion, red, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Philadelphia, light pink, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

CARNATION SHOW CHARMS BUFFALO

Twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the American Carnation Society draws large trade attendance and wins favor of public, admitted on tickets issued by Buffalo florists. Display comprises newest and best varieties, all of high quality. Interest centers on new varieties, which make strong, though not sensational, showing.

FOR the carnation specialists the unusual conditions that have prevailed so far this season appear to have added to rather than detracted from the interest attaching to the annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, in progress at Buffalo.

The regulars have turned out almost to a man, but the attendance of those who are not first of all carnation men was not, at the opening, so large as it usually is. The exhibition, staged in the parlors of the Iroquois hotel January 27, is nearly as large as last year's show at Cleveland, in certain classes much larger, the New England representation being especially strong. President Goddard was accompanied by a bodyguard of about thirty from Boston and vicinity. They brought their flowers with them in the sleeper and had the drawing room packed full to the ceiling. A. A. Pembroke, of Beverly, Mass., is the largest exhibitor, staging twenty-four vases, but President Goddard and other New Englanders make large and excellent shows.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., is the largest western exhibitor. It can truthfully be said for this exhibition that, while it is not quite so large as some of its predecessors, the quality of the flowers sets a record.

Quality High.

The exhibitors practically all are carnation specialists, and their flowers all are of superlative quality. Also the varieties are the newest and best. Enchantress does not predominate as it so often does where the general growers supply the bulk of entries. The quality of the stock has captured the Buffalo public, admitted by ticket, and the rooms are crowded during the open hours. It was not possible to duplicate last year's showing of retailers' work, which was the great feature of the exhibition at Cleveland.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

President,
Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.

Vice-President,
J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Secretary,
A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.

Treasurer,
Fred E. Dorner, La Fayette, Ind.

Carnation Alice Coombs.
(Albert Roper's variety which swept the decks at Buffalo.)

The predominant feature, perhaps, is the strength of the flesh-pink and light-pink classes. The raisers of novelties seem to have been working with the blood of Enchantress.

The show has brought out nothing sensationally new. The varieties now grown in quantity by the specialists are so good it is not an everyday matter to bring out something better. Probably the two varieties to attract most attention are Alice, from Peter Fisher, and Pink Sensation, from Dorner, both flesh-pinks and being disseminated this year. Miss Alice Coombs, from Albert Roper, in the same class, shows up strong. Its dissemination has been postponed to next year. Mrs. Akehurst repeats the promise it gave last year at Cleveland of becoming a factor in the markets. Good Cheer, medium pink, from F. Dorner & Sons Co., also looks like a good commercial sort. Laura Weber, from Charles Weber, was entered in several classes and shows up even better than it did at the society's show at Cleveland a year ago.

The Debutantes.

Of the varieties shown for the first time, Cottage Maid, from the Cottage Gardens Co., a flesh-pink sport of Mrs. Ward, commands attention. The same exhibitor has several promising seedlings under number. Albert Roper shows Grace, another flesh-pink of fine promise, and several seedlings under number that will be heard from in another year or two. W. J. Palmer staged Sunbeam, flesh-pink, which he is trying for J. Steidle, of Olivette, Mo. Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, Mass., sent some fine flowers of Morning Glow.

Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, show Belle Washburn, red; Helen Washburn, pink, and a flesh-pink seedling under number. Littlefield & Wyman, Abington, Mass., show Miss Theo and a seedling under number. Others who have promising new sorts not yet named were F. Dorner & Sons Co., Mt. Greenwood Cemetery, E. G. Hill Co., and William A. Dawson, of Willimantic, Conn.

The roses, staged for exhibition only, made a splendid showing. F. Dorner &

Sons Co., La Fayette, Ind., put up a fine vase of well opened Hoosier Beauty, and the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., showed the same variety cut tighter. From Richmond also came a splendid vase of Ophelia. F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., had a center of attraction in a big decorative vase of Francis Scott Key, and also showed Killarney Queen, Ophelia and Prince d'Arenberg in fine shape. S. J. Goddard showed a big vase of Buddleia Asiatica, new to many of those present. J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, staged his new pure white antirrhinum. A. J. Stahelin, Redfield, Mich., had a table of exceptionally good sweet peas, all Zvolanek's orchid-flowering type. J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, O., had a large table of begonias, the varieties Melior and Mrs. Peterson, and cyclamens. W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., had a table of orchids in bloom, Polypodium Mandaianum and other specialties.

The exhibits of F. R. Pierson Co. included a vase of a new pink rose named Rostand, of the Ward type but a longer bud. Jerry Brookins & Son, Orchard Park, N. Y., staged eleven varieties of Zvolanek's sweet peas.

The Awards.

The judges were R. Witterstaetter, C. W. Johnson, Wm. Nicholson and Eugene Dailledouze, assisted by J. F. Ammann and W. J. Palmer, taking the place of the absentee judges, Peter Olsem and E. A. Stroud. They divided into two boards and placed the awards as follows:

Gasport, N. Y.—Lee O. Smith and Burt C. Smith, Jr., whose greenhouses are located near this town, have opened a store in Middleport, where Miss Nellie Knox has charge.

Norfolk, Va.—J. W. Grandy, Jr., is in a local hospital, where he was operated on January 13. He is getting along nicely, but does not expect to be out for another week or two.

Mt. Kisco, N. Y.—The annual dinner of the local horticultural society was held January 21 and was a fine success. Several representatives of New York seed and nursery houses were present to meet gardeners and their employers. W. J. THE PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL ADDRESS

The full text of the address of Samuel J. Goddard, president of the American Carnation Society, delivered at the convention at Buffalo, January 27, 1915.

THE American Carnation Society is recognized as the best managed special floricultural society in this country, and its influence is far-reaching. I am of the opinion that some pressure should be brought to bear on disseminators of carnations whereby they will be induced to use greater care in the selection of stock. I know they are obliged to handle thousands of cuttings when sending out a novelty, as the demand for a winner is tremendous. Nowadays, on nearly every new variety we invest in, we get twenty-five per cent unhealthy stock, which either throws semi-double, curly, or off-color flowers. If they cannot meet the demand at present prices, why not set a price whereby they can meet it and give us guaranteed stock? I believe we should demand guaranteed stock the same in carnations as in insecticides or fertilizers.

Up to Growers.

The carnation has been under a severe test this season, much more so than during any previous year. Some growers claim that it is losing its popularity with the flower-buying public. I cannot agree with this view. It is as popular as ever, if not more so. It is still "everybody's flower," and if it is put on the market or into the buyer's home as fresh as possible, it will not be replaced by any other flower. It often happens that blooms are old when they are cut, and are ready for the ash-barrel instead of the drawing room. It is in our own province to make or destroy the popularity of the carnation.

To Vice-president Anderson and the local florists' club are due the thanks of the society for their untiring efforts in working to make this convention the success I am sure it will prove to be. To Secretary Baur are also due the same appreciation and confidence of the society. No member, except he be an officer of the society, can form any idea of the amount of work the secretary has to perform.

The carnation register that Mr. Baur and Mr. Dorner are compiling will be of inestimable value to the society in years to come, and I hope that some action will be taken at their completion looking toward the preservation of these records, to protect them from fire or other such destructive causes.

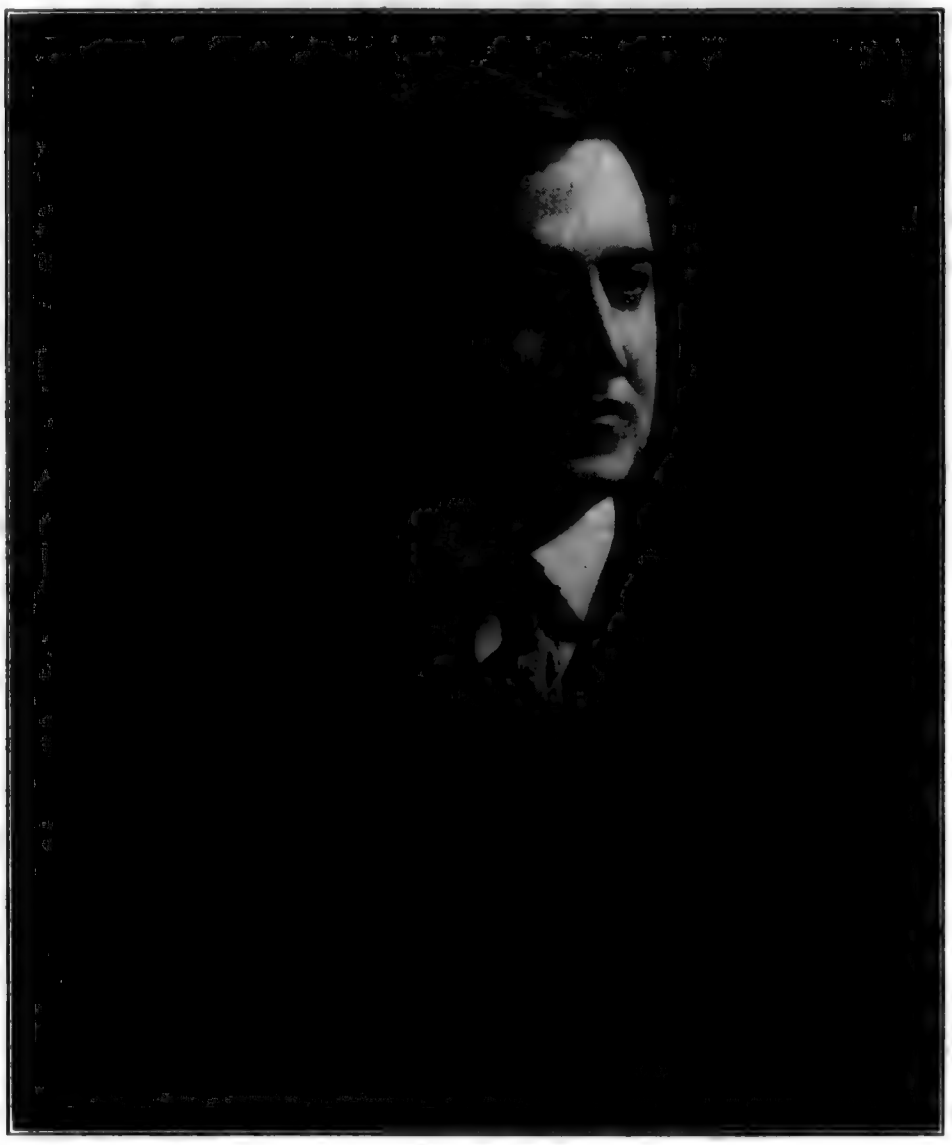
Next year our society completes its first quarter century of existence, a period showing achievement performed never dreamed of by its founders, and I would suggest that suitable recognition be taken to celebrate this event; something added to the premium list that would make it noteworthy, could well be accomplished.

More Members.

Previous presidents have called attention to the small membership of our society compared with the hosts engaged in growing carnations, but no specific way has ever been devised or recommended whereby we have increased our membership to any extent. Thousands are engaged in growing carnations commercially, either as a side line or specialty, and I am sure that we can get our due proportion if we have some influential members to present to these growers personally the benefits they and we jointly shall derive by their joining the Carnation Society.

Why not have appointed one member in each state or section of the country, whose duty it shall be to induce all eligible to become members? Let us all endeavor to help increase the membership to at least 500 on our silver anniversary.

Some few years ago the society had an honorary membership. For some reason or other, this has been dropped, and I would recommend that the names originally on the list be again added, or if this cannot be done under our present rules, that the by-laws be amended, incorporating honorary membership.



Samuel J. Goddard.
(President of the American Carnation Society.)

Assistant Judges.

Another recommendation I would like to make is that assistant judges be appointed to serve with our regular judges. Often some regular judge is absent and an outsider has to be called in to take his place. If assistants were in attendance, they could take the place of the absent member, or in case of a deadlock, as often happens, they could be relied upon to give sound judgment based upon practical knowledge gained while serving with experts. We all can judge by comparison, but it takes the expert to score on points the new varieties that are entered for the American Carnation Society and other medals.

You will be called upon at this meeting to consider at your deliberations the question of affiliation with the Society of American Florists, to accept or reject membership on the board of directors of that society, and I earnestly hope that every member who has views on this vital subject will express them at this time.

Joseph H. Hill.
(President-elect American Carnation Society.)

In closing, I wish to express my thanks to the trade press for the many courtesies extended to the officers of the society during the last year. To the members of the society who have shown such enthusiasm in our exhibition by setting up such a magnificent display of carnations, I extend my sincere thanks. Our society cannot help but prosper while the members continue to back up its officers the way they have done here at Buffalo.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of A. F. J. Baur, secretary of the American Carnation Society, presented at the Buffalo convention, January 27, 1915.]

We are pleased to report a substantial increase in the membership this year, there being now 318 annual members and twelve life members enrolled and in good standing. During the last year there have been added thirty-eight new members, in addition to thirteen delinquents who have been reinstated under the plan adopted in 1912. After deducting those who are delinquent for the year 1913, we have a net increase of thirty-three over last year.

We have collected money as follows:

Dues	$671.00
Advertising	145.44
Dorner Memorial Fund	5.00
Miscellaneous	44.23
Total	$865.67

All of this has been turned over to the treasurer and his receipt taken therefor, except $121.68, which came in while the audit was being taken. The $5 collected for the Dorner Memorial Fund was transferred to the general fund, to replace part of the amount taken out of that fund to make the even $1,000 needed to draw $40 interest per annum.

Accounts Audited.

The books of the secretary and treasurer were audited by a professional accountant, as has been customary. The auditor's report will follow the reading of the treasurer's report, and we are pleased to note that he found the books in first-class order and the society's finances sound and in good shape. All bills are being paid promptly, and no accounts have been lost, except from delinquent members.

The annual report was issued on schedule time and distributed to the members. The same is true of the program and the schedule of premiums for this meeting. We secured twenty-two pages of advertising for this schedule, which we consider quite good, considering that this advertising had to be solicited just when the worst of the present business depression was on.

Twelve seedling varieties and three sports have been registered with this society since the last annual report was issued. Besides these, the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England reports sixteen registrations. A system of exchanging registrations at frequent intervals has been adopted by the secretaries of the two societies, with a view to prevent duplication of names, but there has as yet been no way found to prevent sports which are identical from being given different names in this country and Europe. In time, when the new varieties will be imported as well as exported, this problem will present itself for solution. At this time, what confusion there is, is all on the other side, as few European varieties have thus far found their way over here. Suggestions for handling this situation will be in order.

Carnation Register.

We are still working on the carnation register. We are pleased to report that while our present plan for gathering data entails considerable labor, it is bringing results. It will be only a question of time, and we will have the register as complete as it is possible to make it at this time, and the data will be authentic. We wish here to thank the trade press for assistance in this work, especially in locating persons who have moved away from the addresses from which the registrations were made.

The arrangements for this meeting were planned along the same lines as those followed at Cleveland last year, and with the same degree of success. The local committee took hold with a will and has done its part splendidly. To our worthy vice-president, Mr. Anderson, is due especial credit. To the growers who supplied the blooms used in the table displays is due the society's thanks. The splendid success achieved, so far as we have gone with this department, should stimulate expansion and if the exhibits could be diversified in a practical manner, it would be well to do so. We would like our retail members to offer suggestions along this line.

Directors' Meetings.

The board of directors held its usual meeting immediately following the last convention, also the regular midsummer meeting at the S. A. F. meeting, which took place in Boston, August 22.

At the Boston meeting, the secretary was instructed to purchase whatever blooms might be needed for the table displays, in addition to those secured from the disseminators of new varieties. Blooms of three varieties were purchased, with the idea of having the retail display cover about the same range of colors as is found in our section A.

According to arrangement made with the New York Florists' Club, we took charge of the entries and the staging of the carnation section of the international flower show, held in New York March 21 to 28, 1914. A splendid exhibit of carnation blooms was staged by both commercial growers and private gardeners, the large groups, covering 150 square feet of space, being the finest arrangements of carnations ever seen in this country. A report of the awards will be read at this meeting.

PROBABLE PROFITS.

I should like to find out approximately what could be made on two houses, each 36x200, properly handled, one planted with carnations, the other with roses, in the vicinity of Kansas City, Mo.

About how many flowers could be cut on an average in a season from the Enchantress carnations—that is, one plant on the average—also from American Beauty, Killarney and Sunburst roses? How much extra help should be needed to keep the two houses, one planted with carnations, the other with roses, in first-class order, considering that the fireman and foreman in our present range could do their part in the new houses? It would be a great favor to me to get this information from some of your experts, as the information I have received through The Review has always been reliable.

S. C. C.

I can answer your questions only partly, but you will be able to secure the rest of the information you are seeking by making inquiry in your local market. The conditions in the market where you will dispose of your stock will have a strong bearing on the earnings of your houses. The best growers figure an average of from twelve to fifteen blooms per plant from the Enchantress varieties, from October 1 to June 1. Your local growers can give you an idea of what the blooms ought to average in price for the season. I might add that your blooms might make a higher or lower average, according to the quality you succeed in producing. So much for the receiving end.

The cost of operating is even more perplexing, when you come to actual figures. One man will run a place on far less expense than another and do it better. I would suggest, however, that it should require the time of a grower and a helper most of the time to run these two houses. If the two houses are to be added to an establishment already in operation, you might put in a grower and then supply him what help he needs from time to time, but you will find that he will need a helper most of the time. Just what you will be required to pay a grower in your locality, I am unable to say, but would suggest that it will pay you to get the best man you can find. He will make for you several times over the extra sum you might have to pay him. Cheap, inefficient help is undoubtedly the most expensive economy.

One large grower has figured that each carnation plant costs him 23 cents during the season, counting the cost of the plant and all expenses from the taking of the cutting. This may or may not be of value to you. You may be able to do it for less and, again, it might cost you more. A. F. J. B.

ASTERS FROM SEED.

I am going to plant about 1,000 aster plants next spring. Will you please tell me how much seed to buy? What colors shall I plant? The variety will be Crego and I wish to grow fancy stock. How many good flowers will this variety average per plant? Could I make two sowings, so as not to have all of them coming on at the same time? When shall I sow to have flowers by August 1? E. C.

An ounce of aster seed of good quality should give 4,000 plants. In order to have an ample supply, I would sow half an ounce. Be sure to buy the best quality of seed; it is always the cheapest in the end. You can make several sowings if necessary. Make the first about March 15 and a later one at the end of April. The first sowing will flower by August 1. If you want extra early flowers, make a sowing of Queen of the Earlies about the middle of February. White is the best selling color among asters; next in popularity come pink and lavender. For dark blue and red the demand is limited. C. W.

Tampa, Fla.—An Easter lily plant with twenty-six blooms has been an attraction in the window of the seed store of Crenshaw Bros. It was from a bulb grown in Florida.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Callas.

The calla plants are now thoroughly rooted in the pots and, as they are gross feeders, need liquid manure at least once a week and in addition a top-dressing of fine bone or similar fertilizer. It is surprising how these top-dressings bring the roots up to the surface and how greedily they seem to devour the plant food applied. It need hardly be said that, given good drainage, there is little likelihood of callas being overwatered. The Godfrey calla, once grown, is sure to displace in a large measure the old Æthiopica. It is pure white in color and much more floriferous. It is necessary, however, to get strong plants before its real free-blooming qualities are apparent.

Lilacs.

Of course the pot-grown lilacs are the only ones really adapted for forcing. Those from Holland are arriving later than usual this season. Occasional plants are seen in bloom as early as Christmas, but the average florist will find them of more value later in the season. It is yet much too early to start plants for Easter, but it is well to have a few plants in flower before that time. For early forcing it is an advantage to start lilacs in a hot, moist and dark shed or pit, but after this time it is just as well to place them in the warmest greenhouse at once. Spray freely and the plants will soon start to grow. Move them into a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees at night as the flowers develop, to give them substance. Marie Legraye and Mme. Lemoine are the best white varieties. Michael Buchner, Ludwig Späth and Charles X are fine colored varieties for forcing.

It often happens that florists have a few unsold plants which are set out in the field. After a couple of years these become well budded again, and, if put in large pots, boxes or tubs before the ground freezes, or lifted even now during an open spell of weather, they will give a fine lot of flowers for cutting. Stand them in a doorway not generally in use in winter or in some other place where they will not interfere with other plants.

Rhododendrons.

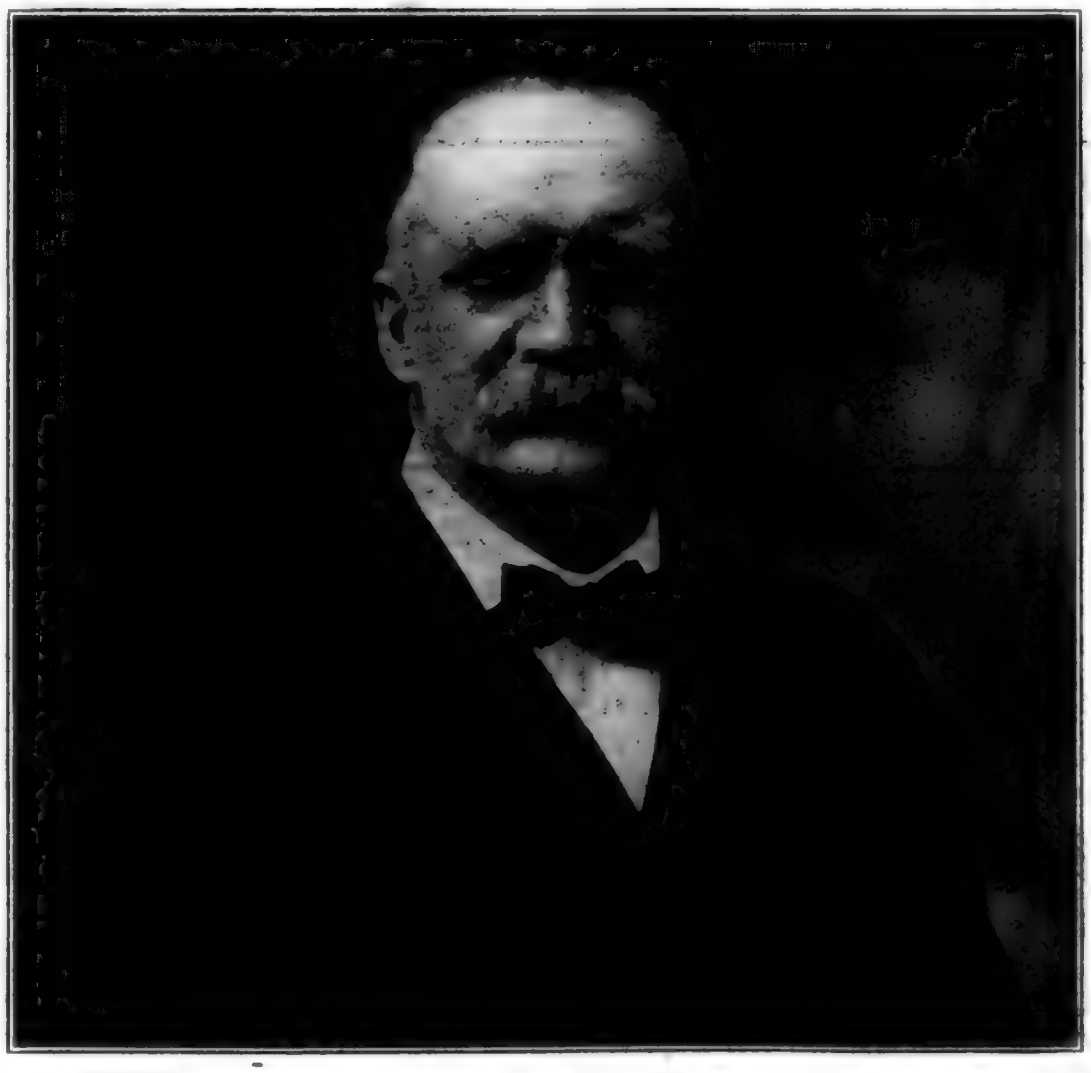
That beautiful rhododendron, Pink Pearl, and its nearly white companion, White Pearl, are unquestionably away ahead of all other rhododendrons for forcing purposes. The trouble is that they are as yet somewhat high-priced for the average florist, who can secure good plants of the older rhododendron hybrids for at least half their price. The rhododendrons do not sell freely, like azaleas, but there is, nevertheless, a fair call for them, particularly those having pure white, pink or lavender shaded flowers. It is too early to start them for Easter, but plants can be stood in a cold house in readiness. Place a few in heat with the lilacs. If you have a trade in flowering plants, which all should try to have, they will prove a useful addition.

GLOXINIAS AND BEGONIAS.

When is the proper time to plant bulbs of gloxinias and begonias in order to have them in bloom by the latter part of May? D. R.

In order to have gloxinias and tuberous begonias in flower as early as the end of May, you must start them at once. It will take them all the time to bloom, even if started now. Put the bulbs in flats of leaf-mold and sand and give them a temperature of 60 degrees at night. Pot off singly as soon as the plants are making good roots and growth. C. W.

INJURY FROM PAINT FUMES.



Are hot water pipes, painted with asphalt paint which contains benzine and turpentine in unknown proportions, harmful to soft plants, such as plumbagos, achyranthes and Boston ferns? I have three benches in a house 25x80. There are eight 2-inch pipes under the center bench and five under each side bench, and there are two 5-inch returns. The pipes were painted last fall. I keep the temperature at 60 to 62 degrees at night and 70 to 72 degrees in the daytime. The achyranthes plants were the first to show the effects and looked as if they had been frosted. Then other plants suffered and now the ferns have commenced to curl and turn brown. I have changed the soil, but with no better results. I have been quite particular about the watering. O. R. H.

It is unlikely that benzine or turpentine used in asphaltum paint would injure greenhouse plants, since they would evaporate in a short time after being applied. This does not imply that asphaltum paint containing benzine or turpentine might not injure the plants, but the harm would be due to other ingredients, such as coal tar, which might be used in cheap grades of asphaltum. Just how long the effects will be noticeable will depend upon how much coal tar and similar ingredients are contained in the paint. The safest way would be to take out the piping and burn off the paint. T.

PLANTS AROUND FOUNTAIN.

What varieties of plants, grown in pots, would be likely to succeed during the growing season under a fountain which has a fairly heavy spray falling all the time? A. B.

A few varieties which would succeed under the conditions named are: Cyperus alternifolius, Acorus Japonicus variegatus, Richardia, or Calla Æthiopica, Asparagus Sprengeri, aspidistras, Caladium esculentum, Isolepis gracilis, Richardia Elliottiana, Richardia albomaculata, and, if the location is not too sunny, some of the hardier ferns, such as nephrolepis and pteris. CARNATION CUT FIGURES.

There is an old saying to the effect that confession is good for the soul—and The Review has this week to confess that an old friend has "put one over" on this paper, his previous reliability permitting a report of cuts to get into print without the scrutiny it should have had. Because the figures published last week as the cut of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, were preposterous on their face, M. Kurtzweil, president of that company, kindly permits the publication of the following record of the actual number of plants on the benches and the cut from them from September 1 to January 1:

Carnation plants on benches	9,758
Cut for the 4 months ending Dec. 31, 1914	40,718
Rose plants other than American Beauties	2,006
Cut for the 4 months	27,880
American Beauty plants	500

RUST AND RED SPIDER.

We are in need of some advice. There is a lot of rust on our carnation plants. It only bothers one kind, Enchantress. What can we do to stop it, or at least check it? We have been careful not to water overhead during the winter and only on bright days early in the fall. In fact, we need to water or spray for red spider, but cannot do so on account of rust. What can we spray with to get rid of red spider, or can we get rid of it without spraying? The other varieties in the same houses are free from rust, but we are afraid the trouble will spread. Do angleworms in the benches do any harm? We have noticed in the morning the little holes where they had come up at night.

S. B.

While spraying is sometimes the cause of the appearance of rust, and excessive spraying is no doubt injurious to carnations during the winter months, yet it is not always the cause of this trouble, nor will abstinence from spraying insure immunity from this disease. Excessive watering at the roots or a heavy mulch, either of which will cause excessive moisture in the atmosphere and even foulness, will start the trouble. It has also been stated that excessive humus in the soil will aggravate the trouble, and this sounds reasonable.

Most growers make a practice of syringing their carnations with a sharp spray from the hose once each week, if the weather is at all fit. That is usually enough to keep away red spider. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture helps to keep spider in check. One of the best remedies I have ever run across is the following: Take one-half pound of arsenic and five pounds of white sugar. Mix them dry. Then add enough water to make a thick syrup. Mix one drug ounce to one gallon of water and spray through your compressed air sprayer. By adding nicotine at the same rate as you use for aphis, this remedy will also be found effective against thrips.

While angleworms are not especially injurious to plants unless they are present in large numbers, yet they are of no benefit either. You can clear them out with a top-dressing of air-slaked lime, watered in. A. F. J. B.

IT IS DRY ROT.

We are enclosing some carnation plants which are badly diseased. What is the disease and how can it be checked? The plants were grown outside, with the usual treatment, and two of the benches were planted between August 1 and 10. It is only in these two benches that the plants are affected. We used for these two benches some soil in which we had grown one crop of fairly good carnations, losing about twenty or twenty-five plants during the winter of 1913-14, apparently from stem-rot or something of that sort; otherwise the plants were all right.

With the old soil we mixed a liberal quantity of cow manure and the plants started nicely. We lost a few plants at that time, about one per cent, but did not see any sign of disease until about the middle of October, when the Beacons began to wilt slightly. We used air-slaked lime, dusting all the plants with it, and kept the plants on the dry side, but this did not do much

Callas.

The calla plants are now thoroughly rooted in the pots and, as they are gross feeders, need liquid manure at least once a week and in addition a top-dressing of fine bone or similar fertilizer. It is surprising how these top dressings bring the roots up to the surface and how greedily they seem to devour the plant food applied. It need hardly be said that, given good drainage, there is little likelihood of callas being overwatered. The Godfrey calla, once grown, is sure to displace in a large measure the old Æthiopica. It is pure white in color and much more floriferous. It is necessary, however, to get strong plants before its real free-blooming qualities are apparent.

Lilacs.

Of course the pot-grown lilacs are the only ones really adapted for forcing. Those from Holland are arriving later than usual this season. Occasional plants are seen in bloom as early as Christmas, but the average florist will find them of more value later in the season. It is yet much too early to start plants for Easter, but it is well to have a few plants in flower before that time. For early forcing it is an advantage to start lilacs in a hot, moist and dark shed or pit, but after this time it is just as well to place them in the warmest greenhouse at once. Spray freely and the plants will soon start to grow. Move them into a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees at night as the flowers develop, to give them substance. Marie Legraye and Mme. Lemoine are the best white varieties. Michael Buchner, Ludwig Späth and Charles X are fine colored varieties for forcing.

It often happens that florists have a few unsold plants which are set out in the field. After a couple of years these become well budded again, and, if put in large pots, boxes or tubs before the ground freezes, or lifted even now during an open spell of weather, they will give a fine lot of flowers for cutting. Stand them in a doorway not generally in use in winter or in some other place where they will not interfere with other plants.

Rhododendrons.

That beautiful rhododendron, Pink Pearl, and its nearly white companion, White Pearl, are unquestionably away ahead of all other rhododendrons for forcing purposes. The trouble is that they are as yet somewhat high-priced for the average florist, who can secure good plants of the older rhododendron hybrids for at least half their price. The rhododendrons do not sell freely, like azaleas, but there is, nevertheless, a fair call for them, particularly those having pure white, pink or lavender shaded flowers. It is too early to start them for Easter, but plants can be stood in a cold house in readiness. Place a few in heat with the lilacs. If you have a trade in flowering plants, which all should try to have, they will prove a useful addition.

GLOXINIAS AND BEGONIAS.

When is the proper time to plant bulbs of gloxinias and begonias in order to have them in bloom by the latter part of May? D. R.

In order to have gloxinias and tuberous begonias in flower as early as the end of May, you must start them at once. It will take them all the time to bloom, even if started now. Put the bulbs in flats of leaf-mold and sand and give them a temperature of 60 degrees at night. Pot off singly as soon as the plants are making good roots and growth. C. W.

INJURY FROM PAINT FUMES.

Are hot water pipes, painted with asphalt paint which contains benzine and turpentine in unknown proportions, harmful to soft plants, such as plumbagos, achyranthes and Boston ferns? I have three benches in a house 25x80. There are eight 2-inch pipes under the center bench and five under each side bench, and there are two 5-inch returns. The pipes were painted last fall. I keep the temperature at 60 to 62 degrees at night and 70 to 72 degrees in the daytime. The achyranthes plants were the first to show the effects and looked as if they had been frosted. Then other plants suffered and now the ferns have commenced to curl and turn brown. I have changed the soil, but with no better results. I have been quite particular about the watering. O. R. H.

It is unlikely that benzine or turpentine used in asphaltum paint would injure greenhouse plants, since they would evaporate in a short time after being applied. This does not imply that asphaltum paint containing benzine or turpentine might not injure the plants, but the harm would be due to other ingredients, such as coal tar, which might be used in cheap grades of asphaltum. Just how long the effects will be noticeable will depend upon how much coal tar and similar ingredients are contained in the paint. The safest way would be to take out the piping and burn off the paint. T.

PLANTS AROUND FOUNTAIN.

What varieties of plants, grown in pots, would be likely to succeed during the growing season under a fountain which has a fairly heavy spray falling all the time? A. B.

A few varieties which would succeed under the conditions named are: Cyperus alternifolius, Acorus Japonicus variegatus, Richardia, or Calla Æthiopica, Asparagus Sprengeri, aspidistras, Caladium esculentum, Isolepis gracilis, Richardia Elliottiana, Richardia albomaculata, and, if the location is not too sunny, some of the hardier ferns, such as nephrolepis and pteris. CARNATION CUT FIGURES.

There is an old saying to the effect that confession is good for the soul—and The Review has this week to confess that an old friend has "put one over" on this paper, his previous reliability permitting a report of cuts to get into print without the scrutiny it should have had. Because the figures published last week as the cut of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, were preposterous on their face, M. Kurtzweil, president of that company, kindly permits the publication of the following record of the actual number of plants on the benches and the cut from them from September 1 to January 1:

Carnation plants on benches	9,758
Cut for the 4 months ending Dec. 31, 1914	40,718
Rose plants other than American Beauties	2,006
Cut for the 4 months	27,880
American Beauty plants	500

RUST AND RED SPIDER.

We are in need of some advice. There is a lot of rust on our carnation plants. It only bothers one kind, Enchantress. What can we do to stop it, or at least check it? We have been careful not to water overhead during the winter and only on bright days early in the fall. In fact, we need to water or spray for red spider, but cannot do so on account of rust. What can we spra with to get rid of red spider, or can we get rid of it without spraying? The other varieties in the same houses are free from rust, but we are afraid the trouble will spread. Do angleworms in the benches do any harm? We have noticed in the morning the little holes where they had come up at night.

S. B.

While spraying is sometimes the cause of the appearance of rust, and excessive spraying is no doubt injurious to carnations during the winter months, yet it is not always the cause of this trouble, nor will abstinence from spraying insure immunity from this disease. Excessive watering at the roots or a heavy mulch, either of which will cause excessive moisture in the atmosphere and even foulness, will start the trouble. It has also been stated that excessive humus in the soil will aggravate the trouble, and this sounds reasonable.

Most growers make a practice of syringing their carnations with a sharp spray from the hose once each week, if the weather is at all fit. That is usually enough to keep away red spider. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture helps to keep spider in check. One of the best remedies I have ever run across is the following: Take one-half pound of arsenic and five pounds of white sugar. good. On pulling up some of the plants and examining the stems close to the ground, we found brown stripes below the outer skin. All plants pulled up so far have shown the same marks. Is it a fungous disease, or stem-rot, or the so-called dry rot? The plants in two other benches, filled with fresh soil, are all right. The varieties affected are Enchantress and Beacon.

R. & S. F. S.

The plants submitted are undoubtedly affected by the disease commonly known as dry rot, which in all probability was caused by planting in the old soil. You can do little more to check it than you have already done, except to spray thoroughly with Bordeaux mixture. Running them dry would not help matters any; in fact, it might work harm if carried to excess. Under such conditions, a plant needs all the encouragement possible to make growth, and a fair amount of moisture is essential to this. Do not propagate from the plants in these benches, as you would be likely to carry the disease over to next season by doing so. Use only new soil in the future.

A. F. J. B.

STIGMONOSE ON ENCHANTRESS.

I am sending you, under separate cover, one of my carnation plants. I should like to know what is the trouble with them and what I can do for them. I notice the disease on my Enchantress plants. They look vigorous and thrifty otherwise and seem to be doing well in spite of the disease. They are planted on benches, in about five inches of soil. I have not used liquid manure as yet, but wish to do so as soon as I hear from you. I have put on a dressing of wood ashes and rotted cow manure; the manure was about two years old. The temperature in the house has been 50 to 55 degrees at night. A. G.

The specimen forwarded is full of the disease first known as bacteriosis, but later known as stigmonose and still more recently called yellows. If your plants are all in a similar condition, I would advise you against propagating from them for your next year's stock. It would be better to buy new stock from some reliable source.

These plants may give you a fair lot of blooms during the rest of this season if you handle them carefully; in fact, they should improve somewhat in condition as the season advances and the sun gains strength. Water carefully, giving them plenty, but not too much. Refrain from what is commonly termed feeding, confining your operations to an occasional light mulch of well rotted cattle or stable manure. Run the temperature evenly, about 52 degrees at night, giving all the ventilation possible. A. F. J. B.

CARNATIONS FOR OUTDOORS.

Please tell me when is the best time to buy summer-blooming carnations for outdoors. Also state which varieties are the best. R. D.

If you want the perpetual flowering carnations, such as are grown under glass, purchase rooted cuttings at once. Pot them off and later shift into 3½-inch pots. Give only one pinching. Plant outdoors early in May. Good varieties to plant are Enchantress, White Enchantress, White Wonder, Beacon, Winsor and Mrs. Ward.

If you refer to the hardy carnations, good varieties are Countess Knut, yellow, shaded orange; Snow, pure white; Her Majesty, pure white; Grenadin, scarlet, and the various forms of Dianthus plumarius. Purchase plants of these as soon as the frost has left the ground. The improved marguerite carnations are also useful. These are easily raised from seed, which can be sown in February or March. C. W.

La Crosse, Kan.—Mrs. Mary Crock, in business here for several years, has sold out to Mrs. Andress, of Larned, Kan.

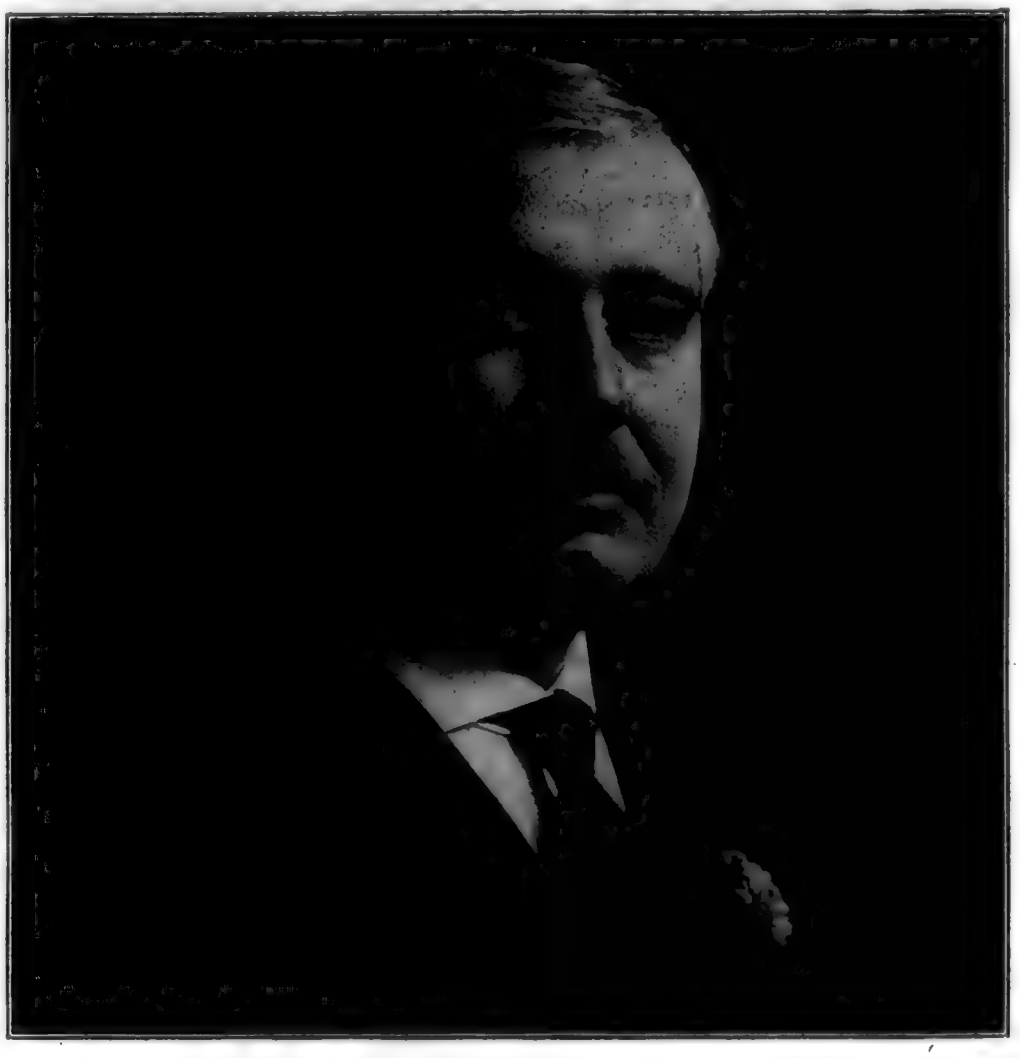
Hutchinson, Kan.—The framework is up for the new greenhouse for N. T. Barrett which is being erected on First avenue, east.

Waterloo, Ia.—Frank Billings, an employee at the greenhouses of Charles Sherwood, was badly burned about the hands and arms recently, when a lantern he was filling exploded. Gasoline had been placed by mistake in a kerosene can.

Hastings, Neb.—C. B. Tanner has filed suit against the Union Pacific Railroad Co. and the Hastings & Northwestern Railroad Co. for $10,000 and accrued interest from September 1, 1914. The amount represents the damage done his greenhouse property as a result of the new road and the switching done at the forks of the road near by. C. W. Sidles has filed a similar suit.

Minot, N. D.—H. H. Valker, son of George E. Valker, has just completed a fine residence, eight rooms in the English style of architecture, everything modern.

Independence, Mo.—S. Bryson Ayres Co., like most others, was unfortunate in missing the Christmas crop of sweet peas; the buds dropped because of the dark weather. Recently conditions have been more favorable and a good pick has been sent to market, mostly in Kansas City.



Muskogee, Okla.—In spite of business depression in other lines Robert Bebb, proprietor of the Muskogee Carnation Co., has had the best holiday trade in his experience this season. As he attributes this to the good quality of the stock, some credit belongs to J. O. Smith, his grower. M. R. Bebb, one of the proprietor's sons, is manager at the greenhouses. Another, Forrest Bebb, is in his third year of floricultural work at the University of Illinois.

CARNATIONS IN A LEAN-TO.

I want to grow carnations in a lean-to house which is part of a range of vegetable houses. One side of the lean-to is five feet high, the other about seven feet high. It is heated at the sides and ends. The watering would be done by the hose. Can I use ground benches with good results? Please state, also, what varieties of carnations would be likely to do well in this locality, seven miles south from the center of Toledo, O. S. R.

There is no reason why you should not grow first-class carnations in that lean-to house, provided the light and ventilation are good. It is, of course, needless to tell you that the house should get a fair amount of sunlight, or only inferior quality will result. If the sides of the houses are boarded up to the eaves, then by all means raise your beds, but if there is glass in the sides, so that the sun will strike the plants, then the ground beds will answer well.

Any of the standard sorts ought to prove satisfactory, as far as quality and production are concerned. Your own particular market should determine for you what varieties would prove most profitable for you. You can find out more by inquiring among the trade in your city than I could possibly tell you. However, in white I would suggest White Wonder, White Enchantress and Matchless. In flesh-pink I would recommend Pink Delight and Enchantress Supreme, as being superior to the old Enchantress. Gloriosa, Rose-pink Enchantress and Mrs. Ward are good in darker shades, Beacon, Champion and St. Nicholas in scarlet, Pocahontas in crimson, Yellow Prince in yellow and Benora in variegated.

William F. Kasting.
(Chairman Finance Committee for the Buffalo Carnation Convention.)

If you propose to sell your stock in the wholesale market, do not make the mistake of planting those varieties which are the most common. By doing that, you would probably only add to an already crowded condition of the market. Try to get something the other fellows haven't got, thereby supplying something for which there will be a good demand. A. F. J. B.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE DISEASED.

I am sending some geranium foliage under separate cover. The plants seem to be diseased, and I should like to get some information in regard to the cause. The stock plants are growing well and the roots are healthy, but the cuttings will not do at all.

W. A. G.

The leaves were frozen on receipt, but showed numerous small blotches, a common disease on geraniums. Perhaps you might get some information from an article on geranium disease which was written by R. A. Vincent, and which appeared in The Review of November 19, 1914, page 16. If the stock plants are healthy, some incorrect treatment is responsible for the cuttings taking disease. Too much humidity in the atmosphere is bad; so, also, is spraying the cuttings overhead. Geranium cuttings are naturally sappy and root with the least loss in a dry house. It is not easy without knowing more of the cultural conditions to tell why your cuttings have come diseased.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

MOSQUITOES IN WATER TANKS.

In a recent issue of The Review a correspondent inquired the best means of exterminating mosquitoes in water tanks. If he will examine the water in the tanks, he will find myriads of larvæ, or "wiggle-tails." These, on emerging from the water, are full grown mosquitoes. Here in Georgia we have mosquitoes all the year around outdoors. During the hot months we put a mixture of kerosene and gas tar on the surface of the water. This forms an oily surface, through which the larvæ cannot pass. I have also found muriate of potash effective, but I would not advise your correspondent to try either of these remedies, as the quantities needed would mean death to all plant life. If he can have a stream of running water in his tanks, he will not be troubled with mosquitoes, as they only breed in stagnant water. I have found it so by experience here.

FLOWERS AT FUNERALS.

In the attached clipping, from the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph of January 18, you will note that in discussing "The Funeral Services," before the weekly session of the United Presbyterian ministers of the county January 18, the Rev. Clarence J. Williamson, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church of New Brighton, denounced the present manner of conducting funerals by some ministers. He said "there should not be flowers in profusion," and closed by stating "that many funerals were simply carnivals for florists and liverymen."

I think, in behalf of the florists of the United States, we have a right to come back at a man that will make such statements and degrade a business as has the Rev. C. J. Williamson. And if there is a florist in New Brighton, I hope he will have the backbone to call the reverend's attention to this one thing, that he has not the right to judge the things that God creates. The flowers are the smiles of God's beauty; they are not the creation of man.

If the friends of the dead wish to buy flowers created by God and cared for by his servant, man, to show their respect and to ease the sorrow of the bereaved, no minister of the gospel can find between the lids of the Holy Bible the law given by God to call the florists' business a carnival and belittle the honest men in this business. This gentleman should look up the ten commandments and see where it says, "Thou shalt not covet."

I have been in the florists' business five years, and I grow just as nice flowers as my wisdom permits. I have 4,000 square feet of glass; I build 300 different designs; I do an honest business. It netted me $1,014.84 last year. I work eight hours each day for the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., as telegraph operator, at a salary of $804 per year. I have honestly increased my salary. I sell flowers for funerals and any occasion for which the public demands them, and it is just as honest a living as preaching. In behalf of our business, I think we are entitled to come back at such statements.

J. G. Gamble.

LINCOLN AND WARD.

Abe Lincoln read everything he could get his hands on that was worth reading, and some on the side that was not. He did so to benefit himself. If florists were a little more like Lincoln they might pay similar dividends. I am sorry to say that many florists do not interest themselves in their trade papers as much as the good of their business requires. This paper circulates to 12,000 establishments and is no doubt read by three times as many people. After you read this just think how nice your ad would look if it occupied the same space. Not alone that, but a great many florists would know of you and whatever you have for sale. All that is vital in the florists' business is contained in these journals. If they were suppressed for a year, the loss to florists would be enormous; and you would see some tall scrambling for business material, you can bet your sweet life.

It is better to be bathed in intelligence than to go dirty in the ignorance called bliss. The most appropriate motto to advertising is the old story: "Cast thy bread upon the waters and it shall be returned to you after many days," and as times have changed a little since this was said, you may add, anent advertising, that your bread will be returned shortly—and buttered. Read your trade papers, advertise in them, and see the advantage to your business it brings.

IRIS SUITABLE FOR SOUTHWEST.

There are thousands of homes scattered all over the dry farming regions of the great west and there is a great demand for flowers, but it is hard to find any that will live there. After years of testing, however, we have found what is needed. The resplendent iris fills the bill. We have had immense quantities go through the driest seasons known without losing a plant. Arizona has the most trying climate for flowers, yet Prof. J. J. Thornber, of the University of Arizona, writes that he has known these plants to grow on the dry mesas in that scorching sun, where the rainfall is exceedingly scant. In the heavy red clay soil in the cemetery of one of the larger Arizona mining towns, irises are much planted and succeed beyond expectation. When established there, they grow and blossom year after year with little care. They have come to be known to the children there as Easter lilies. I know of no other flower that would thrive so well under the same trying conditions.

Mrs. Jennie Dean, of the Dean Iris Gardens, of Monita, Cal., is probably the best informed person on the iris in America, and she is demonstrating the fact that this flower is wonderfully adapted to California. It can be so nourished by winter rains that with good cultivation it will go in triumph through the rest of the season without irrigation.

We often dig them for shipment in August. The ground is as dry as powder, yet the roots have gathered the moisture and hold it so that they are fresh and fleshy, ready to take hold as soon as planted. It is the German, or rhizomatous group which thus succeeds. The water iris, the Siberian and Japan, will not endure hot, dry weather so well. C. S. Harrison.

SCHIZANTHUS FOLIAGE DYING.

Under separate cover we have sent a plant of our schizanthus. As you will see, the leaves are turning white at the edges, and in a short time they will die. We have a large number of 6-inch plants of these, and are anxious to know the cause and the remedy for the failing foliage. We grow the plants as cool as possible, 45 degrees at night, but in the daytime the temperature goes up to 70 degrees. Any information you can give us will be much appreciated. J. B.

It looks as though the foliage had been injured by fumigation. Schizanthus foliage is delicate, and the use of tobacco stems or hydrocyanic acid gas would cause the scorching of the leaves. If grown cool and carefully watered, schizanthus is of easy culture. Either fumigation or an overdose of some chemical fertilizer is the most likely cause of the burning. C. W.

HABERMEHL'S HANDSOME HOME.

When J. J. Habermehl's Sons, then the leading uptown florists of Philadelphia, invaded the downtown district by opening a flower shop in the Bellevue-Stratford, there was much head-shaking. They had done well uptown, but it would be quite a different thing downtown, it was said. The Habermehls did not seem alarmed; they just went ahead and sawed wood. If it was hard work at first, they never said so. Then came Founders' week, with its immense possibilities for original work, turned into a triumphant success by these enterprising brothers. Their ability to handle any kind of decoration was established beyond peradventure. By this time the Habermehls discovered that Philadelphia is the only city in the world where everything—railroads, hotels, shops, theaters, residences, stock exchange, courts—have one center, Broad and Chestnut streets. They soon opened another store, the Orchid Flower Shop, in Kugler's restaurant. Now they have added still another, the third within two blocks, the fourth in all.

This new shop was opened last week in the new addition to the Ritz-Carlton hotel. The illustrations, both of the exterior and the interior, are so good that no description is needed. The manager, J. F. Leary, wishes me to add that the furniture, when finished and in position, will give an air of coziness besides heightening the handsome effect. Phil.

PANSIES FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

When is the proper time to plant pansy seeds to have them in bloom for Memorial day? D. R.

You should have sown pansy seeds last fall. It is too late now to sow seeds and have the plants in flower for Memorial day. Better purchase plants from some reliable specialist; then you will be sure of plenty of flowers. C. W.

WHY NOT YOU?

Pretty nearly everybody now recognizes that the classified ads in The Review are wonderful little business bringers—they have been widely imitated—but there are a few who seem to think they only are good for the other fellow:

Please discontinue our classified ad; it surely brought us business; we are entirely sold out.—Kent Bros., Newark, O., January 15, 1915.

If it does so well for others, why not for YOU?

Danville, Ill.—The police, through Sherlock Holmes deductions, have come to the conclusion that the burglar who entered the store of Smiths the Florists, at Vermilion and North streets, December 28, and took several dollars from the cash drawer, is left-handed. He has not, however, been caught.

New Varieties Registered.

The nomenclature committee of the American Gladiolus Society has approved the application of Herman H. Baer, New Hyde Park, N. Y., to register the variety Hyde Park, and the application of Dr. C. Hoeg, Decorah, Ia., to register Jack Frost, Pocahontas and Zingari. The descriptions follow:

Throat, lemon yellow, slightly shaded deep rose-pink; petals feathered same color, which is especially noticeable when grown under glass. Stamen filaments, white with pink tips. Anthers, white with lilac sutures. Bloom, medium size; tube, curved, slender, long. Segments, unequal, connivent; the upper horizontal and broad, the lower reflexed and narrow. Midseason. Spike, tall, erect, branched; often two spikes per corm. A fair number of flowers per spike. Growth, vigorous; well furnished with medium broad leaves. Corms, medium large. Cormels prolific. Bloom, large; tube, curved moderately, slender and of medium length. Segments, unequal, connivent; the upper horizontal and very broad, the lower reflexed and narrower. Season, early September. Spike, medium tall, erect, not branched; frequently two spikes per corm. A fair number of flowers per spike. Growth, good; well furnished with medium broad leaves. Corms, medium large. The color of this variety is excellent, deep and attractive. The bloom is compact and has excellent substance. Originated with Dr. C. Hoeg, Decorah, Iowa.

Zingari (Hoeg's No. 90). Color, Rose Neyron red, with the edges of the petals lighter; blotch, carmine purple, with a dash of lemon yellow at the tip of the blotch. Stamen filaments, white. Anthers, lilac. Bloom, medium size; tube, curved, slender, long. Segments, unequal, connivent; the upper horizontal and broad, the lower reflexed and narrower. Mid to late season. Spike, medium short, erect, not branched; often two spikes per corm. A fair number of flowers per spike. Growth, vigorous, well furnished with broad leaves. Corms, medium size. A compact bloom of good substance. An especially good pink variety at the trial grounds. Originated with Dr. C. Hoeg, Decorah, Ia.

PEELING GLADIOLUS CORMS.

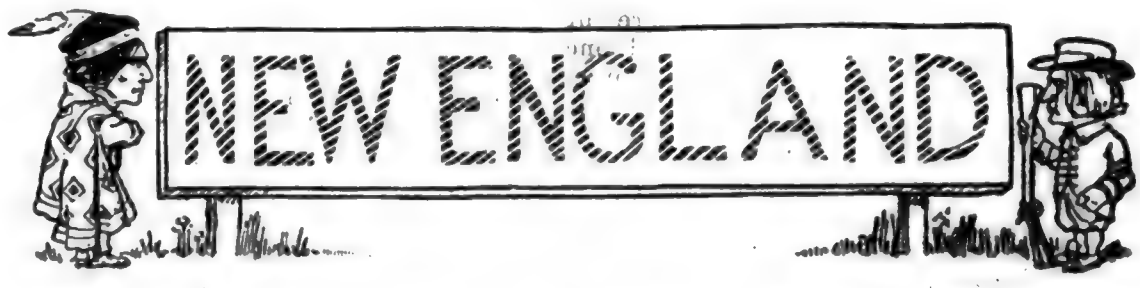
Will you kindly describe the method of peeling gladiolus bulblets and the object of the practice, which, I infer, is intended to hurry the development of the gladioli? J. A. G.

The small gladiolus corms, or bulblets, should be kept hung up in bags, or in drawers, and not allowed to shrivel. A cool, dry cellar, such as common potatoes are stored in, suits them. It is not necessary to do any systematic peeling of these small corms; simply remove any loose or rough covering. To peel them bare will injure rather than benefit them. Sow the corms in rows, just as you would garden peas. Some will flower the same year, and nearly all the following year. C. W.

ANALYSIS OF WATER.

Please note the following analysis and state whether the water is adapted for our use in greenhouses filled with Killarney roses, carnations, snapdragons, lilies, etc., and the different kinds of potted plants. We drilled a well and obtained a water supply which we cannot exhaust at thirty barrels per hour, and which we are using in our greenhouses. We have had a sample analyzed and the laboratory analysis is as follows:

Sanitary analysis—Free ammonia, 2.35 parts per million; albuminoid ammonia, .45 parts; chlorine, 560 parts; nitrites, none; nitrates, none; sulphates, none. Mineral analysis—Silica, 1.17 grains per U. S. gallon; iron and aluminum oxides, a trace; calcium carbonate, 7.71 grains; magnesium carbonate, 2.46 grains; sodium chloride, 53.87 grains; sodium carbonate, 19.38 grains; loss on ignition, 2.10 grains; total solids, 86.69 grains.



If this water is not suitable for our use, is there anything that we could add to it that would counteract the hurtful qualities? We shall greatly appreciate you opinion, and possibly there are other growers who are up against the same trouble. J. C. W.

So far as the use of the water in the greenhouse is concerned, the only indication of its being injurious to plants, as shown by the analysis, is in the amount of common salt, or chloride of sodium, which is given as 53.87 grains per gallon. While a single, or even an occasional application of water containing that amount of salt might not be noticeably injurious to most plants, the effects would be cumulative, and long before the plants had reached their growth serious injury would result and the plants might even be killed outright, unless great care is taken in the use of the water.

The effect would be not unlike what has happened in some of the irrigated regions in California and other western states, where, as a result of the excessive use of water on the land, the alkali with which the water was charged has accumulated in the surface soil to such an extent that only salt-loving plants will grow.

The sanitary analysis also indicates that the water is dangerous for drinking purposes. The following parts are found per million: Free ammonia, 2.35; albuminoid ammonia, .45; chlorine, 560. Sanitary authorities agree that when water contains, per million parts, more than .08 part of free ammonia and .10 part of albuminoid ammonia, it should be looked on with suspicion, and if in addition it contains more than 71.4 parts of chlorine per million it is a clear indication of the presence of sewage, decaying organic matter, etc., and it should be condemned for drinking purposes. The sample in question contains nearly thirty times as much free ammonia and four and one-half times as much albuminoid ammonia as is safe, to say nothing of eight times as much chlorine as is allowable in drinking water.

Hamilton, O.—Karl W. Heiser, proprietor of the Heiser Nursery & Floral Co., has opened a flower and seed store at 22 High street. He will handle aquarium supplies, and in the planting season will use the large basement under the store as a nursery department. At the greenhouses an entirely new heating plant has been installed, a bad freeze-out in December making the change imperative.

Concord, N. H.—C. V. Kimball has sold an interest in his business to S. R. Baker, of Belmont.

Lowell, Mass.—A greenhouse, 31x79 feet, is to be built by the John S. Haynes estate, at 1328 Gorham street. This house will be detached from the present range. It is to be heated by hot water and will cost about $750.

Pittsfield, Mass.—To observe the store's fifth anniversary, Stanley Barnes, manager of the Flower Shop, on Fenn street, will put up special decorations and present a flower to each visitor Saturday, February 6.

Worcester, Mass.—A schedule of premiums offered for 1915 has been issued by the Worcester County Horticultural Society. Anyone interested can obtain a copy by addressing Leonard C. Midgley, secretary, 18 Front street.

Norway, Me.—W. F. Estes, who came here from Poland, Me., two months ago and opened a store, has closed out the business and left town.

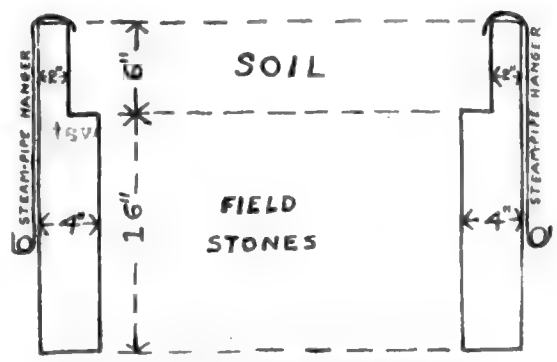
Springfield, Mass.—H. J. Smith and John Abbott, Berkshire county fern dealers, have most of their stock this season stored in the local warehouse of the Eastern States Refrigerating Co. Other dealers use the warehouse at Pittsfield.

Pittsfield, Mass.—The Rosery, in the Waite building, at 348 North street, opened for business January 16. The company is made up of R. Engelmann, from whose greenhouses on Elm street the store will be largely supplied; A. Hoffmann, who has had a large experience as a flower salesman in New York, and H. S. Weidemann, for several years with Chas. Thorley, New York. Mr. Weidemann will have charge of the store.

CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION

CONNECTICUT CONCRETE BENCH.

In The Review for December 24 appeared an article about concrete benches in reply to an inquiry from a subscriber, whether they were satisfactory or not. We have had considerable experience both in building and in using concrete benches and are more than willing to give anyone the benefit of our experience.



We have used solid concrete benches for the last six years, raised benches for only about two. We find both styles of bench give fully as good satisfaction as wood, either for carnation or rose growing. The larger part of our roses are grown on concrete benches, and we are replacing our wooden carnation benches with concrete as fast as they need replacing. We have on our place now about 5,000 lineal feet of concrete bench and feel safe in saying that we plan to use concrete in preference to wood hereafter.

All of our solid benches are built on one general plan, and as it has given perfect satisfaction for the last six years we continue to use it. In our last two rose houses, each 35x200 feet, we are using solid benches throughout. In one house the benches are sixteen inches high and are the least expensive we have yet constructed. The sides are four inches thick, as shown in the sketch, and are made of ten parts of ashes as taken from the boiler, not screened, to one part of cement. On top of this 4-inch work we put our regular sideboard, two inches thick and six inches high, using a mixture of three parts of screened ashes and one part of cement. We use no reinforcement whatever. The 4-inch work is not tamped, but left as porous as possible; the 2-inch work is tamped with a small stick, merely to make it smooth. The bench is filled with field stone to the top of the 4-inch concrete and covered with one inch of ashes. In our other rose house the first bench is sixteen inches high and each successive bench about three inches higher, the last one being about twenty-six inches high. As before stated, these benches have been in use about six years and we have had no repairs whatever. Owing to the scarcity of stone, we are now filling our solid benches with ashes, and we think they are fully as good.

As to our raised benches, we are using a bench materially different from the Chicago bench and, I think, different from the one described in the issue of January 7. I have seen Poehlmann's benches, and, while they are much heavier and, of course, stronger than the ones we have, I do not see how they can give any longer or better service. The first cost must be, as he states, fully double.

We have just three members in our bench—legs, bed, or cross-piece, and the planks. The planks are 2x10x36 inches and are reinforced with two pieces of 5-16-inch round iron. We use a mixture of eight parts screened ashes to one of cement for all parts of the bench. The legs are 4x4 inches, not reinforced, and the bed pieces are 4x4 inches reinforced. The sides of these benches are the same as those used in our solid benches and are put on after the bench is set up. Having a continuous side in this way gives strength, as it holds everything rigid. Our forms are crude. For planks, we use 1x2 strips nailed together and laid on a smooth board floor. For legs and bed pieces, we use two 4-inch boards about twenty feet long and put blocks between at the desired length.

We estimate the cost of this bench to be the same as stated by J. L. Johnson in the issue of January 7; that is, $25 worth of concrete will build as many linear feet of bench as the same value in wood. As to the different items of expense, cement costs us 34 cents per bag; iron for reinforcement, $25 per ton. The ashes, we figure, cost only the expense of screening. Our forms have not cost us over $5 and we still have them. The cost of erecting is not more than, if as much as, that of erecting a wooden one.

If M. B. S. would like any further information, I shall be glad to give any he may want. Edw. J. Taylor.

ANOTHER KIND OF BENCH.

Permanency the Object.

The old adage, "What is worth doing, is worth doing well," certainly applies to greenhouse construction. Where other things are equal, permanency should be a desirable feature, for, added to the expense of repairs, there are many unpleasant and costly experiences leading up to the time of necessary repairs. The life of a wooden greenhouse bench is perhaps seven years. If a bench can be built as cheaply to last for thirty years without repairs, then what excuse for the former?

In building two houses last year, each 35x140, the one thing always in mind was permanency. As a result several florists have told me that they are the best constructed houses, in every detail, they ever saw.

The posts are 4-inch boiler tubes set in concrete three feet and built in an 8-inch concrete wall two feet high and filled within fifteen inches of the top with concrete. In the top of each post, set in concrete, are two ½x1½-inch steel bars, sixteen inches long, bent like an inverted L, with their backs together and the outer ends bent up one and one-half inches. These were set to a form, fitted to the pipe, so that they formed a bracket just the width of the gutter-plate. A hole was drilled through the short angle, through which a short, heavy spike was driven into the edge of the gutter-plate. This holds the gutter-plate absolutely solid in every way without affording a lodging place for water to cause decay. The part extending into the top of the post and held by the concrete would be perhaps nine inches long, depending upon the width of the plate. Fifteen inches of the lower ends of all sashbars were boiled twenty minutes in oil and were nailed to the gutter-plate with tenpenny copper nails. All supports and purlins are of pipe. The lower ends of supports are protected by a cone of concrete brought well above the ground line.

Framework for Benches.

The posts of all benches are 1-inch pipe set in twelve inches of concrete and filled with the same. The posts are four feet apart. The crosspieces forming the bottom of the bench, also 1-inch pipe, are attached to the post by means of split tees. In order to relieve the strain on the tees, a quarter-inch hole was drilled in the posts, by means of a chain drill, into which was driven a heavy wrought nail, the head of which affords a rest for the tees. The posts extend above the crossbars the depth of the bench. Inside of them the side-boards are fastened by means of purlin clips. Thus the side-boards can be easily removed, when they give out.

Taking a 5-foot bench as a basis, eight cypress stringers, 1x2½ inches, were laid on the crossbars, lengthwise of the bed, the ends tacked together so they would remain on edge, and evenly spaced. On these stringers was spread wood veneer one-tenth inch in thickness. The veneer is the same as is used for handles on common market baskets. On this temporary bottom was spread one inch of concrete composed of two parts of soft coal ashes, such as rattled through a ½-inch grate, two parts of sand and one part of cement, mixed to the consistency of paste and leveled. This was then reinforced with No. 9 galvanized wire every four inches, dropped into grooves made with the corner of a board and then given a final smoothing. In say three hours, when partly set, this was cut into blocks.

For benches desired for carnations and roses, veneer should be cut one foot wide and separated with 1-inch lath, one-fourth inch thick. Then trowel the concrete to the lath. When the concrete is partly set, remove the lath. This affords proper drainage.

As to Cost.

Now, as to cost, a bench 5x140 requires twelve sacks of cement and can be laid by two men easily in nine hours. My son and I laid side benches forty inches wide and 190 feet long in a short January day.

To add to their durability, all pipes were thoroughly covered with linseed oil and painted. The moisture that may leak through, catches the edges only, where it dries out quickly. The concrete is shaped around the posts well above the ground line, to make for permanency at that point. Viewing these benches at short range with our long-range "specks," we firmly believe these benches will be benches in thirty years, without repairs or cuss words in the meantime.

As stated, the side-boards can be easily removed. These benches harbor neither insects nor fungi, are smooth and exceedingly porous, holding lots of moisture in reserve, and are quite strong. The cross-wires hold in place any pieces that may be cracked by rough usage. We believe, everything considered, that this is the last word in a greenhouse bench. The concrete benches as usually built are too clumsy and too expensive. Where the sides of benches are concrete, much valuable space is wasted.

Anticipating some inquiries, I will here say that the veneer may be beech or maple. It adds no strength to the bench and serves only to hold the concrete in place until hard. In making a bench over forty inches wide, I would advise using the veneer in two pieces, having it slightly more than half the width of the bench, so that it will lap in the middle. In this way a perfect fit is secured along the side-boards. This veneer, I think, could be furnished at about $6 per thousand square feet, and could be shipped in rolls. Wire for reinforcing can be secured of any wire company, cut to length desired.

A word about concrete mixture, particularly in regard to the formula. The writer has had forty years' experience in the use of coal ashes in concrete and would not now dream of using concrete without them. There is no question about the superiority of the concrete containing ashes. For walks, floors, walls and everything else, it has no equal for durability. It never dusts out in spots from wear, like sand concrete. Once used, always used. Where hard service is required, I would make the formula 1½, 1½ and 1.

S. C. Templin.

HIGH LIFE FOR SOW BUGS.

The average florist knows the good things of this world—none of the simple life for him; he sets his table with all of the season's delicacies. Why, then, should he expect cut worms to accept a diet of bran in preference to succulent young growths? As a matter of fact, bran is a failure as a lure for any pest one seeks to poison.

Corn meal is what should be used to entice the cut worms, according to the experience of Frank Felke, whose experience is worth repeating, since so many growers still have trouble. While Mr. Felke used bran in his poison mash his stock was devastated. Carnations, mums, pansies—indeed, about everything he grew—seemed to appeal to the palate of the destroyer more potently than did the prepared food. Watching his colony of unwelcome boarders steadily increase, Mr. Felke concluded to set a better table for them, so he tried poisoning corn meal. The destruction was wonderful. Never since then has he had a visitation of cut worms but that he promptly got the upper hand.

"Use corn meal, mix it with Paris green, just enough to color; at nightfall scatter among the infested plants; don't water for six or eight hours before or after and you will have no further trouble from cut worms," he says.

Rye flour is a delicacy much relished by sow bugs, sometimes called wood lice; according to Mr. Felke, the little pigs will gorge themselves with it, if it has been sweetened to their taste, and roll up and die of the poison also included. He uses two parts rye flour, two parts sugar and one part Paris green, mixing only so much as is to be used at one time, as it deteriorates if it stands any length of time. The mixture is scattered along the top of the edge-board of the bench in the evening, being careful to see that the board is dry, else the mixture will become lumpy and unpalatable to even the most voracious of sow bugs. "Try it," says Mr. Felke, "and you will be surprised to find how many it will kill; you wouldn't have believed there were that many on your place."

PINCHING BACK VINCA ROSEA.

Kindly advise me when flowering vinca, or Vinca rosea, should be pinched back to make the best plants for Memorial day. W. G. K.

Vinca rosea should not be pinched at all. Sow the seeds from the middle to the end of January in order to have strong plants for Memorial day.

OAKS FROM ACORNS.

You may have heard the saying, not at all uncommon, that "great oaks from little acorns grow," but did you ever consider how applicable it is to the classified ads in The Review, and the results? Like this:

I enclose 70 cents to pay for the classified ad. Have had to turn away orders for thousands of cuttings.—R. H. Workman, Loudonville, O., January 12, 1915.

NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS

Esjberg, Denmark.—Julius Hansen, the well known nurseryman of Pinneberg, Germany, has opened an establishment here, from which he expects to be able to supply his lines of stock to customers of neutral nations.

Enkhuizen, Holland.—In spite of the difficulties, the 1914 seed crops were harvested in excellent condition and demand is unusually good, particularly from the countries in which German competition is prohibited.

Veendam, Holland.—Attention is being drawn to the fact that supplies of young fruit trees and like stock, now imported by United States nurserymen from France, may be obtained from this region in case the old source is closed.

Brussels, Belgium.—The trade in flowers from Nice, in ordinary years a most active one, has ceased entirely. The blooms offered by local growers are scattered over the graves of the Belgian soldiers who have died in the hospitals.

Oostdunkerke, Belgium.—Em. Draps-Boudry, whose presence as a refugee in London was reported in The Review for January 21, has returned to try to put to rights his greenhouses here. The houses in which he grows American carnations are now safe from bombardment. Four bombs fell in the establishment, shattering all the lights. Another fell only two yards from the residence, but, fortunately, failed to explode.

Scarborough, England. — During the recent raid on the coast a German warship dropped a shell in one of Walshaw & Son's houses. The fatalities were many, among the Easter lilies.

Edinburgh, Scotland.—In their 1915 book Dobbie & Co. say: "Since the war started we have not reduced our expenditure by a single sovereign. We are keeping things going on the old lines, and in the catalogue we now send you we have concentrated on British produce, supported by French and American.

Haarlem, Holland.—There still are large quantities of bulbs on hand through the district, and it develops there is great irregularity in the preparations for next season. Some growers have cut down their area, but others have planted as large a part as possible of their surplus. The outlook is highly uncertain.

Paris, France.—The association of retail florists of Paris passed resolutions declaring that the organization should remove from the membership list anyone employing a German, and boycott any concern receiving supplies from Germany. The association also forbade members, under pain of expulsion, to deal in lilies of the valley, as essentially a German product, but this ban was raised when it was found that some growers in France cultivated the pips and that they were also to be had from neutral sources with a guaranty of origin.

SEPTEMBER MORN.

It is safe to say that a large proportion of the readers, on noticing the title of this article, thought at once of the already rather well known new rose, September Morn, and not of the much exhibited, much discussed picture which bears the same name. Or, if the thoughts strayed at first to the picture, they immediately jumped from the picture to the rose, with that unbeatable nimbleness of which thoughts are capable. As applied to the rose, the name seems to be a catchy one and it is also appropriate. Not being an art critic, the writer does not presume to say whether the name fits the famous picture or not, but it apparently does fit the rose. All the poets, you know, from Milton down, have spoken of the "rosy morn," or the "rosy dawn." And the color of this rose, according to the raiser's description, is "an exquisite shade of light flesh pink on the outer petals, shading to pure rose pink in the center, with a faint touch of deep golden yellow at the base of the petals." Aren't those shades and tints of pink sufficiently like the hues of morn—of runrise?

The rose is shown in the illustration, to such extent as a rose can be shown in black and white. It was originated by Henry W. Turner, of Montebello, Cal., who has made this bold statement about it: "We confidently prophesy that it will fill the same place for the rose growers that Enchantress did for the carnation growers." Then he proceeds to show on what grounds he bases his confidence. If he does not overestimate the rose's merits, he has reason for his great expectations. C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., and S. J. Reuter & Son, of Westerly, R. I., are aiding Mr. Turner in the dissemination of the rose.

MARECHAL NIEL NOT FLOWERING

I have some Marechal Niel roses which have been growing in one of my houses for three years, without blooming. The roses are planted in a raised concrete box a foot deep, at the back wall in a rose house, with good drainage and with heating pipes underneath. The plants are perfectly healthy, with strong roots and heavy growth. I gave them a good drying in July and August, but have got only a few flowers. I have dried them off again in the last six weeks and the canes are now almost without leaves, but are healthy and have good buds. How can I make them flower, or must I give it up? I believe a temperature of 58 degrees is too high for this rose when it rests.

T. N.

I think the principal cause of your lack of success is that mentioned at the end of your query, viz., too high a temperature. You cannot successfully force this rose unless you give it a rest with a low temperature for at least a few weeks. This may not be practicable if you are growing other tender plants with it, but if you could let the house freeze for even a week or two, it would greatly improve the prospect for flowers. C. W.

CHEROKEE ROSE AS A STOCK.

I intend putting out from 7,000 to 10,000 rose stocks in February, to bud on in September. The Cherokee, white, is common in this part of Texas and grows like a house afire. It was introduced from the southeastern states years ago. Can I not use this for budding on? F. A. D.

I have never used the Cherokee rose as a stock. Perhaps some Review readers may have done so and I hope, if they have, that they will favor us with their experience. Rosa canina, R. Banksiæ, R. Manetti and R. Carolina are the stocks which have proved most useful. C. W.

GREEN FLY ON ROSES.

Will you please tell me what will kill the green fly on my greenhouse roses? The plants are only a little larger than when I put them in the benches. The green bugs seem to work on the under side of the leaves or on the tender growth. I have sprayed with tobacco solution, sprayed with water containing a few drops of peppermint oil and smoked with nicotine papers, but all without success. E. E. K.

Any of the nicotine solutions or papers on the market will kill green fly if properly applied. The directions that accompany these preparations generally provide for a strong enough dose to have the desired effect.

If the houses are heated by steam, the nicotine solution can be painted on the center pipe in the evening after the ventilators are closed, at the rate of an ounce to 4,000 cubic feet of air space, for the usual forty per cent solution. Then, if the plants get a good syringing the next day, the pest will usually be cleaned out for the time, but sometimes it is advisable to repeat the operation the following night. After that, an application once in one or two weeks should keep the place clean.

If the houses are heated by hot water, the extract may be evaporated on small alcohol stoves that are manufactured for this purpose, or the fumigating can be done with nicotine papers. If these are used according to the directions accompanying them, they should give the same results. W. J. K.

Vegetable Forcing

QUANTITY OF SEED POTATOES.

I have a piece of land, 60x95 feet, which I intend to plant with potatoes. Will you tell me how much land there is and how many pounds of seed potatoes will be required to plant it, running the drills two and one-half feet apart and allowing fifteen inches between the potatoes in the rows? My location is south-central Massachusetts. H. M. M.

Your piece of ground comprises about an acre and a fifth, viz., 5,700 square yards, an acre being 4,840 square yards. The quantity of seed potatoes needed will depend much upon the size of sets cut. You will need about 13,800 sets per acre. If these are cut to a single eye, ten bushels of seed per acre will suffice. If cut with two eyes, a proportionately larger quantity will be needed. I would advise making the rows three feet apart and planting the sets twelve inches apart in the rows. In your latitude you will find Green Mountain the best main crop potato. Aroostook Pride and Irish Cobbler are useful as early varieties. C. W.

CUCUMBERS IN LETTUCE HOUSE.

I want to grow cucumbers in the early spring and summer. I shall have a house, 32x200, empty about March 1 and wish to plant them at that time. I want to plant the seed in pots and then set the seedlings in the ground. At what temperature should they be kept? What pests trouble them most? The house is used for forcing lettuce and has fine lettuce soil. F. G.

Cucumbers require a night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees in winter. In summer this can be increased advantageously. During the daytime the temperature can be allowed to run up to 95 or 100 degrees with sun, and, provided the plants are sufficiently moist at the roots and the atmosphere contains plenty of moisture, they will take no harm. Violent fluctuations in temperature must be guarded against at all times.

Among the pests and diseases which trouble cucumbers are the following: Green and black aphis. This must be kept in control by frequent fumigation. Where steam is used it is easy to evaporate some nicotine liquid on the pipes. Cucumbers will not stand heavy fumigation. Root-gall is sometimes troublesome; sterilization or thorough freezing of the soil is the best cure. A small mite that attacks the under surfaces of the leaves can be controlled by persistent use of the hose, using a fine spray nozzle when directing it. Some of the oil and soap sprays are also useful. Red spider will not appear unless the atmosphere has become too arid. Once it appears it is a hard pest to control; the plants attacked are usually ruined. Mildew is the fungoid disease to be dreaded. Unsanitary conditions breed it. Keep a nice, buoyant atmosphere. Avoid cold drafts and a close but too cold house. Boiled sulphur or powdered sulphur, applied to the foliage through a powder bellows, is the best remedy. With fire heat at your disposal when cold, damp spells of weather occur, mildew should not trouble you.

The soil for cucumbers must be rich. Add plenty of well rotted cow or horse manure to the soil. When the plants have set fruit freely, a mulch of cow manure will prove beneficial; it also prevents the soil from drying out so rapidly. C. W.

MILDEW ON LETTUCE.

We have lettuce about half grown, some of the leaves of which have yellow spots on them, and the under sides of the leaves are shrunken and have white, moldy spots on them. Can you tell us the cause of this? There are few if any insects on the plants. We have not fumigated to excess. The weather has been cold and dark during the last two weeks; could that be the cause? This trouble is spreading all over our houses. S. & K.

I am afraid your plants are attacked by mildew. This usually comes from violent changes in temperature, careless ventilation and an atmosphere too heavily charged with moisture at night. When once the plants are badly attacked, you can do little toward saving them. By boiling sulphur in the house you can get it under partial control. Your lettuce should have a minimum temperature of 45 to 48 degrees; if higher, it is too warm. A rise of 10 degrees can be allowed on dark days, and 15 degrees when it is clear.

Lettuce soil should be light, rich, loose and porous. Heavy soil must be treated with sand or other gritty material. One soaking watering with a few surface dampings should carry a crop through. Hot or cold night temperatures, overwatering and bad ventilation will soon cause mildew to appear. C. W.

CLUB ROOT ON TOMATOES.

We are enclosing some tomato roots with galls or knots on them. We want to plant another crop in the same soil in which these were grown, and, as we are not in a position to sterilize the soil with steam, we would like to know if there is any kind of gas we could use for sterilizing. We have seen in catalogues several things recommended for sterilizing soil for worms and maggots. Are these of any use for this kind of worm? J. J. C. & S.

The roots are attacked by club root, also called club foot. Various remedies are suggested to take the place of sterilization with steam, but none, so far as my observation and experience have gone, have proved particularly successful. You cannot check this disease on your growing plants, and, if the trouble is acute, I would advise pulling up and burning the tomatoes. Then give the soil a good dressing of lime. Work this well into the soil, and plant some crop which is not attacked by club root. Lime is only a partial remedy. C. W.

McKeesport, Pa.—Edward Frederick is planning to build some additional greenhouses.

Canby, Ore.—Joseph Sutherland is erecting a greenhouse, in which he will force vegetables for market.

Denver, Colo.—Conrad Lengenfelder has obtained a permit to erect a greenhouse at 3260 West Colfax street. It is to cost $2,000.

Farmington, Mich.—Preparations for the erection of an addition to the Farmington Greenhouses are being made. It will be used as a plant house.

College Point, N. Y.—Two large greenhouses of the most modern construction are being added at the establishment of Anton Schultheis, on Nineteenth street.

Tiffin, O.—Plans for new greenhouses are under consideration by the management of Ullrich's Greenhouses. A representative of a Chicago construction firm was here recently to confer with Edmund Ullrich on the subject.

Scranton, Pa.—Plans for an addition to the Cleland greenhouse in Nay Aug park, to cost $7,000, have been prepared by the William H. Lutton Co., of Jersey City, N. J. There were not sufficient funds to include the building of the greenhouse in the budget, and it is not known whether it will be recommended for the bond issue; so its erection is not yet being definitely considered.

Raleigh, N. C.—J. L. O'Quinn & Co. have obtained a permit to build a greenhouse on Swain street to cost $2,500.

Kansas City, Mo.—E. L. Clemens had a good year in 1914, finds trade holding up well and plans to put up another house this summer.

Denver, Colo.—W. C. Walker has obtained a permit to erect a greenhouse, to cost $3,000, on Columbine street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues.

Media, Pa.—The King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y., has been awarded the contract for the erection of a greenhouse for the Glen Mills school. This structure is to cost $2,785.

Columbus, O.—Plans have been completed by Architect J. N. Bradford, of Ohio State University, and approved for a new greenhouse for the university, to cost in the neighborhood of $7,000. The greenhouses will be used for growing commercial vegetables and will be connected with the university heating plant.

Fairfield, Ia.—E. H. Montgomery has let to the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, the contract for two iron-frame truss houses 29x209, to be heated by a battery of two Moninger cast-iron sectional hot water boilers. The benches will be constructed of pecky cypress with the exception of the legs, which will be made of a special glazed tile. H. M. Berner represented the John C. Moninger Co. in the transaction.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Fulton, N. Y.—Among the assets of the Fulton Flower Shop Co., which went into bankruptcy January 13, the most important seems to be 3,500 Holland bulbs, imported by Theodore Foederer, proprietor of the company, early in the season. Appraisers T. G. Spencer, Thomas F. P. Farrell and Delos A. Northrup are fixing the value. James W. Boyce has been appointed receiver of the concern.

Birmingham, Ala.—The G. B. McVay Seed Co. has been sold by its receiver, Dr. R. B. Mobley, to J. H. Purdue, with the approval of the court. The company has been reorganized as the McVay Seed & Floral Co., and is ready for business at the old location, 2018 First avenue. The officers of the new company are: President, Dr. R. B. Mobley; vice-president, J. H. Purdue; secretary and treasurer, R. V. Harris. Of the capital stock, $10,000 has already been paid in.

Paris, Ky.—R. B. Hutchcraft, a wholesale seed dealer and a prosperous farmer up to the time he made his assignment to James McClure, cashier of the First National bank of Paris, following the collapse of the Geo. Alexander & Co. state bank, of which he was a large creditor, has been declared a bankrupt by United States Commissioner Arthur Cox, of Cynthiana. At the time of Mr. Hutchcraft's assignment certain creditors instituted proceedings to force him into bankruptcy. The case was fought stubbornly and settled finally by the decision of the referee against him.

Washington, D. C.—Alleging that the Washington Florists' Co., 1408 H street, northwest, is insolvent and that it committed an act of bankruptcy in paying to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. $85.40, and to the Leo Niessen Co. $53.12, making them preferred creditors, a number of creditors of the concern January 23 filed a petition wherein they asked the Supreme court of the District of Columbia to adjudge it a bankrupt. Charles F. Diggs is the attorney for the petitioning creditors, whose names and claims are as follows: J. Louis Loose, Washington, D. C., $39,000, being the amount due on bonds of the company held by him, and $7,454 for interest thereon; T. F. Burroughs & Son, Alexandria, Va., $49.86; Benjamin Einstein, Washington, D. C., $19.80; W. A. Smoot & Co., Alexandria, Va., $186.63, and Thomas Somerville Co., Washington, D. C., $5.97. It is alleged the total liabilities are $46,716.

SOFT COAL SOOT.

Kindly have one of your experts answer the following questions: Is soft coal soot of value as a fertilizer? If so, what are the beneficial effects, especially in regard to carnations and ferns? Should it be applied as a mulch or in the form of a liquid, and in what quantity for the best results?

C. P. H.

The analysis of soft coal soot shows that it contains no elements which are generally supposed to be needed by plants and are likely to be lacking in the soil. On the other hand, soot from wood fires, although largely made up of finely divided particles of carbon, contains about one per cent each of potash and phosphoric acid and is a valuable fertilizer for plants of all kinds. However, the use of soot from soft coal really seems to benefit the growth of greenhouse plants, giving the foliage a darker color and improving the texture of the leaves and flowers as well as the strength of the stems. Just what the benefit is due to cannot be definitely stated.

Soot may be mixed with the soil at the rate of a quart to a bushel, or it may be used as a top-dressing, using a pint to a square yard, or as a liquid application with either mineral or animal manures at the rate of a pint to three gallons of water. T.

PROPAGATING ARAUCARIAS.

Will you kindly inform me how I can propagate Araucaria excelsa? I have a large, thrifty plant, six feet high, and cannot sell it; so I thought I would cut it up if I could start the cuttings.

H. E. H.

Araucaria excelsa is usually propagated either by means of seeds or by grafting, but may also be increased by means of cuttings. The leading shoots are the only cuttings from which there is certainty of getting symmetrical plants, and in order to get such shoots it would be necessary to cut out the top of your plant and then wait until the young growths reach a length of about four inches; these latter would be the cuttings. The cuttings should be planted singly in small pots filled with sand; they should be watered thoroughly and placed in a shaded propagating frame in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. If properly cared for, these cuttings should root in eight to ten weeks, and may then be potted off in soil.

Cuttings from the side branches have little value, from the fact that they seldom make shapely plants.

Buffalo, N. Y.—A. C. Paddon, of Englewood avenue, has just completed the first of a range of greenhouses at Highland Acres.

Miss Elsie E. Longenecker.

Miss Elsie E. Longenecker, daughter of I. K. Longenecker, of Harrisburg, Pa., died Monday night, January 18, at her home after a ten days' illness. The funeral was held at the home January 21, and the body taken to Middletown for burial.

Richard W. Allen.

Richard W. Allen, of Hudson, N. Y., whose death was reported in last week's obituary column, was born near Truro, Cornwall, England, April 10, 1848. He was the son of John Allen, for nearly seventy years gardener for Lord Falmouth. He served his apprenticeship, starting at the age of 15, at Killion, England, at the Lyon House Gardens, London, and at the Royal Gardens, Windsor.

Sailing for America, April 18, 1872, he engaged on his arrival with John Henderson, of New York. Later he was in the employ of David Woolford, at Catskill, and then of James Clarke, at Hudson. After working three years for R. L. Monell, James Clarke's successor, he went into partnership with William Brocksbank, who owned the Prospect Hill Nurseries. He married his partner's daughter, Miss Ida C. Brocksbank, September 3, 1877, and bought out his father-in-law in 1888. When he sold the nurseries to the city for cemetery purposes, he erected greenhouses on Green street, where he built up a large business.

Mrs. Allen died in 1883, leaving one daughter, Edna, who survives her father. He is also survived by two brothers, William, in England, and John, of Detroit, Mich., and two sisters, Angeline and Fanny, both in England.

B. W. Speece.

B. W. Speece, for the last sixteen years in the florists' business at Carthage, Mo., died at his home January 18 from bladder trouble, from which he had suffered for the last three weeks.

Mr. Speece was born in Dayton, O., nearly eighty-five years ago. When a young man he moved to Delphi, Ind., where he married Miss Nancy Jane Dull, October 27, 1859. In 1869 he moved to Carthage, Mo., and engaged in the grocery business. He later became a gardener and then owner and manager of the greenhouses on South Garrison avenue. He is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. E. M. Pierson, of Webb City, Mo., and Miss Aura Speece and Karl A. Speece, of Carthage.

Funeral services were held at the residence January 19. Burial was in Park cemetery.

Lucius King Mallock.

Lucius King Mallock, who conducted a florists' business at Highland, N. Y., until compelled by ill health to give it up, died January 12 in the Middletown state hospital, at Highland, at the age of 69. He was born in Andes, N. Y., in 1845. He had a good business when poor health obliged him to give it up. He was a patient sufferer for years, and about a month ago was taken to the hospital for treatment. He is survived by his wife, one sister and two brothers.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

FOR the exploitation of the New York show, to open March 17, E. F. Horbel, professional press agent, 1790 Broadway, New York city, has been employed. F. R. Pierson is chairman.

MEMBERS of labor unions henceforth will have nothing on members of the S. A. F., as Secretary Young this year is supplying as a receipt for dues a typical union card certifying that the bearer named is a member in good standing.

JOHN YOUNG, secretary of the S. A. F., is sending out reprints of the drawings showing the standard flower pot sizes as approved by the society in 1889. These never have been printed before save once, in The Review for September 24, 1914.

THERE have been many reports this winter of losses through illuminating gas filtering into greenhouses as the result of the ground outdoors being frozen solidly. The colder the weather the more numerous these losses become. They rarely occur in summer.

THE question, "Is my growing stock taxable?" comes in with increasing frequency. Regretfully, it must be said that the courts generally hold that florists' stock is assessable under the same laws as other personal property. Apparently a majority of the trade have been escaping assessment, but more and more are being assessed each year. The effort should be to obtain reasonable valuations rather than to escape altogether.

EDWARD WINKLER, Wakefield, Mass., last week sent The Review by parcel post a dozen blooms of his new seedling carnation, Morning Glow, a shade of pink that fits the name. The blooms were badly crushed when received, but when put in water freshened up most delightfully and stood on the editor's desk in fine shape for four days after their 1,100-mile journey.

A HUNCH.

Do you want some orders?

Well, here's how to get them, quickly, easily, cheaply.

Run your eye through the Classified ads in this paper. Note the items of stock you can offer that are NOT listed there, or not offered by anyone in your part of the country.

Slip in a little ad next issue, or several little ads if you have the stock.

The Review and its readers will do the rest.

THE BUSINESS WEATHERVANE.

Here are some of last week's news items that show how the business wind is blowing:

Wheat reached $1.45 per bushel, with one-third the great crop of 1914 still in farmers' hands.

Steel mills busier than at any time in 1914. After long series of dividend reductions, Bethlehem Steel Co. adds two per cent to its preferred stock payment.

Government reports December exports $246,266,047; $13,070,419 greater than in 1913; $131,863,077 greater than the imports for the month. The trade balance in favor of the United States in the last four months reaches the unprecedented sum of $284,246,720.

IN THE EYE OF THE WORLD.

Every now and then some thoughtless person voices his surprise at finding what far corners of the world are penetrated by The Review. But nothing could be more a matter of course than that The Review should go to the ends of the earth—wherever men are interested in the broader phases of trade activities. Leading houses in the trade the world over read The Review for the same reason stated by these widely known Holland exporters in renewing their subscription:

We are convinced that everybody who wishes to keep in touch with trade wants in your country has to read The Review, it being the leading paper in America for florists and seedsmen.—Van't Hof & Blokker, Akersloot, Holland, January 7, 1915.

ROOM FOR BETTERMENT HERE.

"The more I see of the advertisements in the horticultural papers," says an observer writing in the Horticultural Trade Journal (British), "the deeper becomes my impression that what the trade requires is the aid of expert advertisement writers—not the ever importunate general advertising agent whose greatest genius sometimes appears to lie in the direction of securing commission and discounts, but expert, practical horticulturists, whose knowledge of the trade is coupled with the rare ability to condense into limited space, appeal, suggestion and persuasion; who can, in short, make the best possible use of advertisement space. I am not one of those who worship everything in the shape of American ideas, but in this respect Uncle Sam can and does give us points."

TENNESSEE FLORISTS TO MEET.

In connection with the annual meetings of other state societies, the Tennessee State Floral Society will hold its yearly convention Friday, January 29, at the Maxwell House, Nashville. Reduced railroad rates, an attractive program, etc., lead to expectations of a good attendance. The program, which begins at 7:30 p. m., is as follows:

Address of welcome, by T. C. Joy, Nashville.
Response and president's address, by Charles Baum, Knoxville.
"Tennessee's Floral Interests," by G. M. Bentley, Knoxville.
"Looking Toward Closer Coöperation," by L. Haury, Nashville.
"Design Making," by Mrs. G. H. McNeill, Jackson.
"What We Can Make Our State Society," by Carl Baum, Knoxville.
"History of the Knoxville Florists' Society," by A. J. McNutt, Knoxville.
"Who Will Be Benefited by the State Organization of Florists?" by Alex. Dailey, Knoxville.
Election of officers.
Appointment of committees.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

Jurgens, Wm., Newport, R. I.
Spiwak, Wm., Woodside, L. I.
Kerpen, Frank, Jersey City, N. J.

Pennock, Herbert A., Jupiter, Fla.
Schleider, J. S., Owosso, Mich.
Carbone, J. A., Berkeley, Cal.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns sent.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The change in the market reported last issue became more pronounced as the week advanced. Supplies in the principal lines continued to go down and the demand, especially from out of town, continued to increase, with the result that by the end of the week conditions had become almost normal. There still are rather more flowers than there were at this date last year, but in its main characteristics the market is almost the same as it was a year ago. The somewhat larger supplies and somewhat better quality of stock apparently are due to fairly favorable, bright January weather; there are dark days, but there are occasional long hours of sun.

The shortage, of course, is of low-priced roses. The growers who were in heavy crop at Christmas now are pretty well off. It is impossible to fill all orders for short and medium-stemmed roses. The buyer who is willing to pay the price usually can find long-stemmed roses of the variety he wants, but a large percentage of the business now being done in the retail stores is funeral work and the trade cannot use 10-cent to 15-cent roses for this. The result has been to turn a considerable part of the demand to carnations. While the receipts of carnations are lighter than they were, there is no shortage except for the man who is unwilling to accompany the rise in the market. It is almost the first time this season carnation growers have had a chance to take in any real money and they are not disposed to let it slip by. Even the low grade carnations that a fortnight ago were difficult to sell at any price now are moving nicely, finding their use in funeral work. On the whole the quality of the carnations is excellent. There do not seem to be so many splits as was the case earlier in the winter.

Aside from the decrease in the supply of roses and the increase in the demand for carnations, the principal change in the market has had to do with bulbous stock. Jonquils have sold splendidly. The supply is large enough so that all orders can be filled, but seldom are many jonquils left in the iceboxes when the closing hour comes. There has been a large increase in the receipts of tulips and considerable improvement in the quality; stems are longer. The yellow varieties sell best. Also the retail stores are showing tulips in pans, supplied by the local greenhouses, not through the wholesale market. Paper Whites are abundant. Freesia is more plentiful than has been the case, but it is selling splendidly. The supply of Easter lilies is erratic, some days large, some days light. There are so few callas that the buyers seem to have forgotten them and the light receipts are slow sale.

The weather has been too severe for the wearing of flowers on the street. This always hurts the sale of violets; they are cleaned up only at extremely low prices. Cattleyas are in heavy supply and prices are too low for profit; everybody would be better off if they were higher. Only a few gardenias are received in this market and the demand is not steady, except that a few stores use them regularly. The sweet pea is the principal corsage flower. The supply is increasing slowly. Good Spencer peas sell well, but it seems probable that the supply this season will not be so large as last spring, one of the largest growers of last year having planted no peas this season. Stevia is disappearing. There is not much snapdragon or mignonette. The green goods situation remains unchanged.

It should be noted, perhaps, that the city business has not increased greatly; the local buyers object strenuously to the rise in prices. The increase in demand comes from outside, from buyers who are no longer able to get enough stock at home.

Leaking Gas Plays Havoc.

P. M. Brodbeck, between Evanston and Chicago, has six connected ridge and furrow houses of roses that give unmistakable evidence of the presence of illuminating gas. He knew what it was before he called in the experts, because he has had the same trouble twice before. The foliage has lost color and is falling; it will be many weeks before he can cut anything to speak of in any of the six houses. The gas main is quite a little way from the houses, but there is a conduit for electric wires running close beside the houses which has served to bring the leaking gas quickly to the open ground beneath the greenhouses. For previous losses Mr. Brodbeck received no recompense, so this time he consulted his attorneys before notifying the gas company or destroying any evidence.

N. J. Kruchten's place gradually is working out of the disaster of several weeks ago, when gas killed many of the sweet peas, scorched the carnations and touched up the chrysanthemum stock plants. There was a heavy loss on the peas, but the carnations suffered the worst. The Christmas crop was cut, counted and dumped; what then were buds now are developing curiously streaked, mottled and deformed flowers; the new growth is pitifully weak. John Kruchten says the claim filed with the gas company, backed up by figures and photographs, represents only actual loss and yet runs to a goodly sum. For instance, there were clumps of five or six sweet pea plants growing around each of 575 purlin posts and the claim is made that last season these averaged a return of $1 per clump. The gas company officials have been attentive and courteous, have promised prompt consideration of the claim, but as yet have made no offer of settlement.

A Pat Hand.

Here are four of a kind, almost:

John Poehlmann, president of Poehlmann Bros. Co., has been invisible; reason: a boil on his face.

A. L. Vaughan has been scarcely recognizable; cause: neuralgia and an ulcerated eye tooth.

C. W. McKellar has been irascible, and nobody blames him: carbuncle on neck.

T. E. Waters doesn't know what did it, but his face swelled till both eyes were closed; half open now.

Various Notes.

The Chicago party to the carnation convention had a special car on the Lake Shore Limited January 26. Those present were: J. A. Valentine, Denver; Wilbur Gullett and wife, Lincoln, Ill.; Nic Zweifel and Wm. R. Schroeder, Milwaukee; P. W. Peterson, Joliet, Ill.; Fred Lautenschlager, A. Henderson, W. N. Rudd, George Asmus, C. W. Johnson, M. Barker and H. B. Howard.

An adjourned meeting of the Horticultural Society of Chicago was held at the Art Institute January 26, resulting in a further adjournment for two weeks.

A. H. Budlong is much improved in health and puts in every day at work in the J. A. Budlong greenhouses, where propagating is being busily prosecuted. P. C. Schupp states that the valley pips are all in from Germany except one lot of 100,000. While there are reports that some of the pips that came via Rotterdam made growth in transit and are useless for cold storage, Mr.

Schupp says the Budlong stock apparently has come through in excellent condition. Because of steadily increasing demand, 150 feet of bench now is kept constantly filled with pips in process of forcing.

How many carnations have you cut per square foot this season? If you are a grower compare your record with that of Nick Thinnes, who has twenty-four benches, each 6x136, or 19,584 square feet. In October he cut 65,000 flowers. When met at Zech & Mann's January 23 he said his total pick for the season to that date was 220,000. Mr. Thinnes' son is entitled to a good part of the credit.

Zech & Mann doubled their telephone equipment last week. They now have two lines and four stations. A cashier also has been installed at a convenient window near the city ticket machines, so that no money need in future be handled by the salesmen.

The A. F. Amling Co., Maywood, already has started replanting operations for next season. Beauties have been thrown out of some of the houses that are being put in shape for the early planting of Mrs. Russell, using grafts supplied by Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Funeral work made several spurts last week with the Fleischman Floral Co. Baskets of spring flowers are attractively displayed in the store. No manager has as yet been appointed, Mr. Ashton, for years the floor man, being in charge for Dr. Rubel, president of the company.

N. J. Wietor thinks Killarney Brilliant will give a better account of itself next season than it did in its first one, which was good enough so that Wietor Bros. will triple the space given it, carrying over 3,000 plants and planting 6,000 young stock.

The new French roses of the South Park Floral Co., George Elgar and Souv. de Guillard, have been featured recently in A. Lange's work and advertising. They are reported to have taken well with his trade, especially Elgar.

At the Peter Reinberg establishment there are two new carnations that originated with W. T. Symonds, Decorah, Ia. Josie Merle, pink, already has been mentioned in this column. Decorah is a dark red, almost maroon, from which some good blooms are now being cut. There are only a few plants.

The Cook County Florists' Association held its usual monthly meeting January 21. There was a small attendance and the only business of importance was adjournment subject to the call of the officers.

Arthur Eichel, 4228 North Fortieth avenue, makes no complaint as to business. Mrs. Eichel runs the store and the selling, Mr. Eichel the growing and buying. The houses are full of carnations and pot plants and of course the business pays.

dall Co., made a flying trip to Pittsburgh, New York and Philadelphia last week. He says he found business steadily improving with all those he called on.

A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., returned January 21 from a trip of six weeks to New York and south to Virginia. He says he took more orders than when he covered the same territory last season.

The Montrose Floral Co., 3747 Agatite avenue, conducted under the name of William Wallace, has had good success this season with cyclamens and ferns.

John Michelsen says the sales of the E. C. Amling Co. have not only come back to normal, but recently have been running ahead of the best previous January record.

Bassett & Washburn sent an exhibit of their new carnations, Belle Washburn, red, and Helen Washburn, pink, to the Buffalo convention of the American Carnation Society. Attention to one of Mr. Washburn's outside business interests prevented his accompanying the blooms.

Winterson's Seed Store reports good business in cannas; the advance orders were shipped last week.

A. T. Pyfer, of the Chicago Carnation Co., is pleased with the call for rooted cuttings of Peerless Pink, sent out last season; it seems to have caught on. In general the orders for cuttings, according to all reports, have been a little below normal this January.

The political activities of Peter Reinberg are of never-failing interest to the public, but especially so to his friends in the trade. They were much pleased at the support given his first veto, nullifying the unanimous but ill-considered action of the county board. At a carnation ball given in Mr. Reinberg's home ward January 22, Mayor Harrison and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Reinberg led the march and Mr. Reinberg presented every person present with a carnation.

The will of Harriet B. Northrup, wife of Charles W. Northrup, of La Grange, was probated last week. It leaves an estate valued at $9,000 to Mr. Northrup and their two daughters. Mr. Northrup now is cashier of the bank at La Grange. Formerly he was one of the principal growers of summer flowers, especially of sweet peas, for this market. His stock was sold for many years by Kennicott Bros. Co.

Fred Klingel, of Erne & Klingel, says they consider the Atlas block so much the best location available to them that they prefer their quarters there to twice the space at the same price anywhere else.

Charles H. Fisk is planning to spend the coming summer in California, where his daughter lives and where he has fruit farm interests. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Fisk. They will return in the autumn for the busy retail season.

R. E. Kurowski, vice-president of the John C. Moninger Co., is inclined to be optimistic, as business is picking up and prospects are bright. His firm has the contract of E. H. Montgomery, Fairfield, Ia., for two iron-frame truss houses, 29x209, to be heated by two Moninger cast-iron hot water boilers. The company will also build a new range of vegetable houses for the D. F. Harrison Co., at Kankakee, Ill.

According to K. N. Cooper, manager of the Auburndale Goldfish Co., retail florists are taking greater interest in handling commodities other than flowers. Goldfish and kindred lines seem to be attractive and to judge from the orders received business is good.

It is reported in the lumber trade that Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, has placed an order for seven cars of pecky cypress for delivery in time for spring bench building.

The W. W. Barnard Co. had an exhibit at the Greater Chicago Poultry and Pet Stock Show, held in the International Amphitheater at the Union Stock Yards last week.

For several years Alfred Dietsch, treasurer of the A. Dietsch Co., has been trying to find an opportunity during the winter months to overhaul the power plant and shafting in the mill on Sheffield avenue, but orders kept all hands busy so that the time never came until this year. A new Corliss engine with an excess of power has already been installed, also new boilers and shafting, increasing the capacity of the plant almost 100 per cent.

Visitors.

Visitors have been more than usually numerous this week. Among them: Henry Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, studying accounting systems; C. Loveridge, of Peoria, on his way home from an eastern trip; Roy Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, and R. H. Kemble and W. E. Kemble, of Oskaloosa, attending the automobile show on their way to Buffalo; Charles Frueh, of Saginaw, Mich., buying stock; E. E. Stewart, Brooklyn, Mich., selling gladiolus bulbs; Edward Amerpohl, Janesville, Wis., a periodical; Charles Schwake, of Schwake & Co., New York; J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia; Frank Farney, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia;

Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York; M. Reukauf, representing Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, all looking for orders, the latter on his way to the Pacific coast.

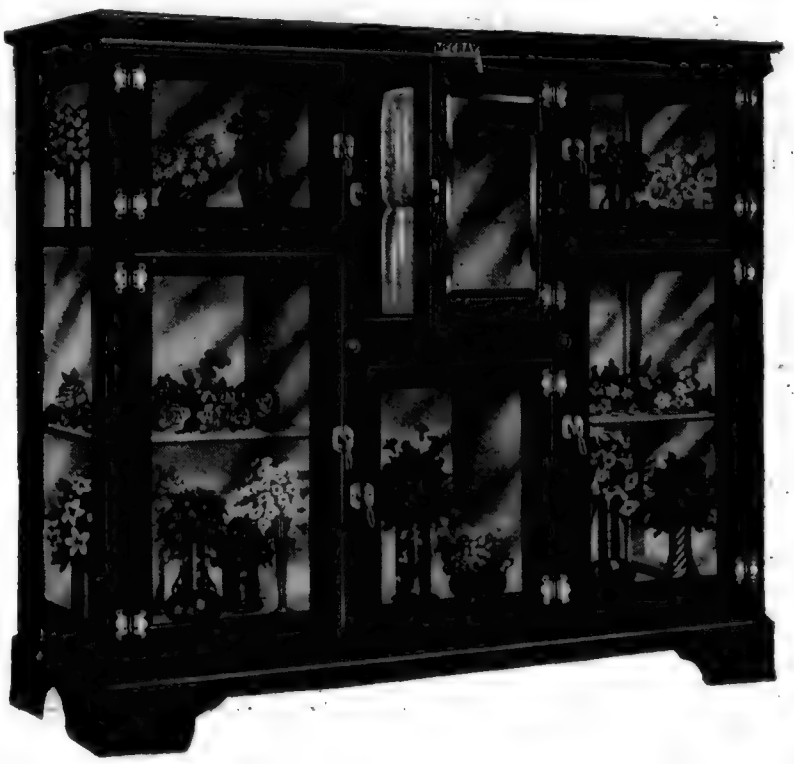
NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.



Taking everything into consideration, the business conditions for the last month can be classified as fair. As always is the case right after the holidays, sales of pot plants were on the decline, but now the demand is a little more lively. The cut flower sale is holding its own, and although there was no occasion for extra shipments, the retailers disposed of their regular supply from the northern markets, all of which arrived in fine condition. Our locally grown cut flowers now consist mainly of Roman hyacinths, Paper Whites and Soleil d'Or narcissi, valley, orchids, single violets and the different varieties of roses grown by one firm, all of which are used by themselves. Some early outdoor-grown sweet peas are in the market, but the supply is limited.

Weather conditions have been unfavorable to the market gardeners lately, as this month there have been cold rains on three successive Sundays, which are, as a rule, the best selling days for them. Our landscape gardeners have finished their early planting of spring-flowering stock, some of which can be seen in bloom, but the development of the plants is greatly delayed by the excessive rains. A temperature as low as 26 degrees was predicted for January 24, but, luckily, it did not reach the freezing point.

Various Notes.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its regular monthly meeting January 21, in the Association of Commerce building. President P. A. Chopin and Secretary C. R. Panter were in their places and about half of the membership was present. The main feature of the evening was the reading of the amendments to the constitution and by-laws of the society. After they had been adopted as a whole, the committee on revision was authorized by the president to have a large number of them printed and ready at the next meeting for distribution among the members. The semiannual report of the finance committee was read and adopted and showed the fine condition of the treasury.

A great many local florists listened to a lecture on "The Beautifying of Home Gardens," by Mr. Lowe, a prominent citizen. A garden club will soon be organized, the membership to be composed of the people at large. Its main object will be the beautifying of home gardens and yards. It is the intention to hold four exhibitions during the year in the auditorium of the Association of Commerce building, free to the public. The local florists are urged to make exhibits of

GLOEKLER FLOWER REFRIGERATORS

Gloekler Fixtures in Store of A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburgh.

THE essential part of the preservation of cut flowers is a cold, dry circulation of air. That is the fundamental principle of Gloekler Flower Refrigerators. It keeps the refrigerator sweet, clean and sanitary, and at the same time results in a saving of ice consumption. It requires perfect insulation to produce this condition, and the Gloekler method of reinforced cork insulation has been proven by test the only practical way of producing such a result.

And then, the selling quality of the refrigerator—that is a big point for consideration. These refrigerators display flowers so attractively that they almost sell themselves. They are as valuable as an extra salesman in your store. They present an insistent argument to the customer to buy, but in an unobjectionable way. And, after all, the first aim of the florist is to sell.

Gloekler Refrigerators are made of selected materials, finished to exactly harmonize with your store interior, and completed with our own heavy, attractive hardware.

Many splendid styles and sizes in stock for quick shipment. We build any size or style to order. Any finish.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

During the week we had only fifteen hours of sunlight, which shortened the supply and brought a rise in prices. Everything in the usual line was bought up and the wholesale houses were cleaned out except for Paper Whites and some fine Spencer type peas, which were cheap considering the prices asked for other stock. Short white roses were scarce, also the lighter colored carnations, these being in good demand for funeral work. Jonquils and pussy willows are seen, being a sure sign that spring will soon be with us.

Club Meeting.

The largest crowd that ever gathered in the club rooms was on hand Monday, January 25, to hear Richard Vincent, Jr., give his famous lecture on Scotland and to enjoy the varied entertainment provided afterward by the club.

Mr. Vincent, in a prelude to his lecture, dwelt at length on the Wm. R. Smith memorial and gave the incidents leading up to the beginning of this movement and spoke also of the progress made up to the present time. His lecture, while lengthy, was much enjoyed by those present and at its conclusion the audience joined in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." During the lecture some of the most familiar Scotch songs were rendered by Mr. Anderson, his rendering of "Loch Lomond" being vigorously encored. Mr. Vincent was tendered a rising vote of thanks by the club.

Refreshments were served during an intermission, after which a vaudeville show was staged. Charles Bird rendered some Scotch selections which were well worthy of mention. As a concluding number, the "Gardeners' and Florists' Quartette," consisting of Messrs. Bauer, Nuth, Hochstead, Thau and Kress, sang the famous German song, "Schnitzelbank," under the leadership of Charles Peters, after which the evening came to an end. It was pronounced by all the best affair ever put on by the local club. The entertainment committee, of which F. C. Bauer is chairman, worked hard to get this affair in shape, and their efforts were successfully rewarded and appreciated by all those present.

Various Notes.

Samuel Feast & Sons are showing a fine lot of potted lilacs at their Charles street store.

One of the events of last week was the formal opening, January 22, of the new home of Pierce & Co., appropriately named the House of Flowers, at Charles and Hamilton streets. The store was crowded all day and until nearly midnight by those intent on viewing the handsome display. The store is 25x88, with an attached conservatory 25x50. Three large windows, 8x17, give ample display space, while inside the store is an icebox, done in white enamel and nickel, 16x10x6, which is used entirely for display, the stock box being located in the rear of the store. The business was started by E. W. Pierce, at 509 North Charles street, in October, 1910, and rapidly increased, due to the live wire efforts of its founder, who deserves great credit for his energy and foresight and for this fine addition to our local stores.

The Market.

Roses have shortened in supply. This fact, with a slightly increased amount of business, has put the market in better shape this week. Prices on roses have advanced, though not as much as in past seasons under similar conditions. The advance is most noticeable in the short grades of both white and pink. The fancy varieties and red and yellow are not sufficiently numerous to be relied upon for all orders; when they can be had, they bring better prices, grade for grade, than pink and white. Beauties have advanced more than any of the other roses; the supply is decidedly smaller, though sufficient. The shortage in roses has helped carnations; here, too, the supply is less than a week ago. Bulbous flowers—daffodils, freesia, jonquils and Paper Whites—are plentiful and selling well at low prices. Tulips have arrived, La Reine, a single yellow, Mon Tresor I think, and the beautiful double orange Couronne d'Or. Violets are low, extremely low, in price for the season. Sweet peas and mignonette are plentiful. A little sunshine will greatly help the former and bring in good crops of daisies and pansies. Long-stemmed yellow and pink snapdragons are arriving. Orchids and gardenias are in excess of the demand. Easter lilies are in better demand. Out-of-town business is active.

The Floracroft Greenhouses.

Everybody knows that this place is famous for its valley and its Easter lilies. Perhaps that is the reason that Edward Ross thought it unnecessary to devote the short space of time at his visitor's disposal to these specialties. Instead he commenced with the ferns, not especially the Boston type but fine blocks of Cyrtomium falcatum and a pteris, first cousin of the president. Both were being grown on in medium sizes for Easter. Then there was a fine lot of Lorraine tulips undergoing special treatment to secure stems, so difficult in early forcing. Next came a whole table full of Narcissus Soleil d'Or planted out. Mr. Ross looked upon this bench rather doubtfully; they were loafing, he said, but to the uninitiated they were the picture of health; it may be loafers sometimes are. Near by were some rows of winter-flowering Spencer sweet peas, a new departure. All the leading varieties are under trial. There are evidences of preparation for an early Easter, notably in hydrangeas. It was interesting to see the different varieties in the early stage of growth.

A system of charging each crop with the cost of the space it occupies is in operation at Floracroft, house rent, so to speak. The crop that doesn't pay its rent must give way to one that does. The system is quite simple. The total expenses divided by the square feet of bench room give the so-called overhead cost of operating each square foot for one year. The crop grown is charged with this expense plus the cost of bulbs or plants or seeds, and credited with the amount realized from the sales of that crop. The difference gives the profit or loss. Of course, a crop occupying a given space on the bench for two months will be charged for that time only.

Various Notes.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., sent an automobile truck load of Phœnix Roebelenii from Riverton to Rutherford, N. J., January 20, returning the same day. Distance, 101 miles.

Wm. Henry Egee, a well known florist of this city, fell on the ice near his home at Cynwyd while on his way to work January 25; death, probably due to heart failure, resulted almost immediately. Mr. Egee was well known as a jobbing or landscape gardener in this city many years ago. He had greenhouses uptown and took charge of a large number of gardens in and around the city. Later he took charge of the retail department of the Robert Craig Co., where he remained for seven or eight years. He was well known to the visitors at Henry F. Michell Co., where he had charge of the front counter in the store. This position he held until the day of his death. Mr. Egee was about 60 years of age. He is survived by his wife and a daughter. The funeral was held January 28.

Mrs. John R. Andre, wife of the well known rose grower, died at her home in Doylestown, Pa., January 24. She is survived by a son. Mr. Andre has the deep sympathy of his friends in his bereavement.

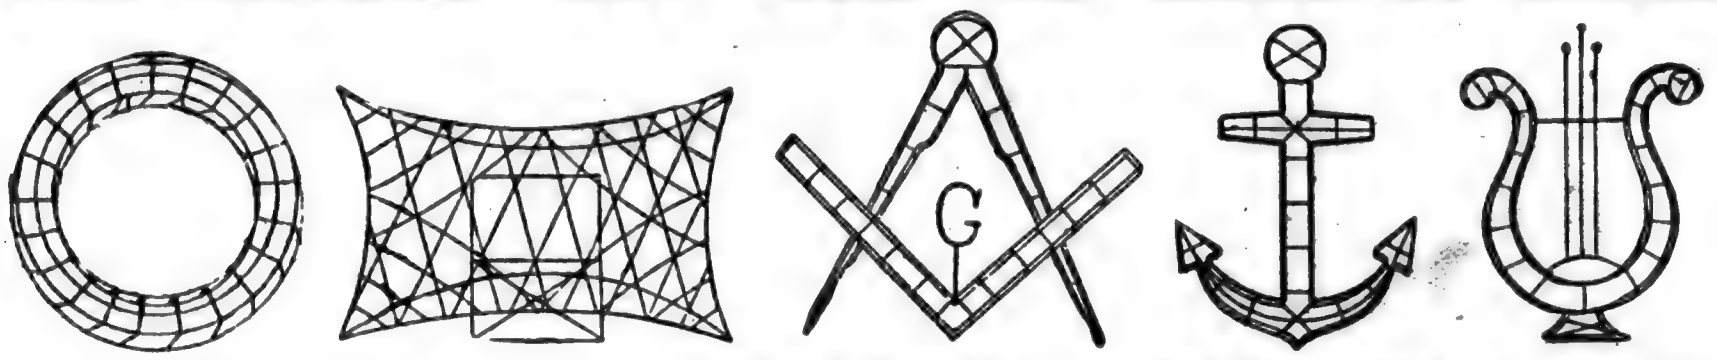
L. A. Geiger has purchased the business of Ernest Wannemacher, at Overbrook, Pa.

Every officer on duty at the tabernacle contributed an American Beauty to the bouquet given to the Reverend and Mrs. Billy Sunday, January 22.

Raymond Brunswick displayed two striking novelties at the M. Rice Co. this week, one an ostrich-fan shield of purest white arranged with pink rosebuds; the other the famous golden-red heart basket for St. Valentine's day.

The Leo Niessen Co. mentions the arrival of long-stemmed yellow snapdragon and tulip Couronne d'Or.

Bignonia venusta was freely used by J. J. Habermehl's Sons at a private ball last week.



H. Bayersdorfer & Co. made up some bird cages of rattan for a special order, that were most effective. Speaking of his recent trip west, Mr. Bayersdorfer dwelt on the pleasure of renewing old friendships with those whom he had known in business in the days when he traveled on the road. He said that supplies were coming from abroad, hastened by his firm's Berlin office, and predicted that there would be plenty of stock for Easter.

Frank Johnson and Mr. Hoffman, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, have just been here.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

From a wholesale point of view the market is much better than it was a week ago. Looking at it from the retail side the improvement is not so apparent, as the change seems to be due more to a reduction in supply than to an increase in demand. There has, no doubt, been considerable increase in the number of out-of-town orders, as these are always more numerous when the crops are light. City retail trade has not improved to any great degree, which leads one to believe that business is about the same with the out-of-town buyers, but that they are forced to send here for a larger part of their supply than they did earlier in the season.

Prices naturally have advanced. Comparing the sales of the last seven days with those of the corresponding seven days of last year, business seems to be more nearly normal than at any other time in the last six months. Prices on roses are below those of last year, but the supply, though short, still is considerably larger than a year ago. Carnation prices were falling rapidly a year ago at this time, whereas they are now going up.

While there has been a sharp reduction in the aggregate quantity of stock coming on the market, there are still enough flowers to go around. The possible exception is short roses. There has been a great increase in the amount of bulbous stock on the market. Easter lilies are scarce, and the demand for them is great. Violets are plentiful and the stock is really fine; the only complaint is that the demand will not take care of the cut. Sweet peas could be no better.

The high death rate in Toledo during the last week has kept the florists busy.

Various Notes.

The event that is keeping the florists thinking and hustling the most these days is the case in the Common Pleas court of George Poulin versus the Toledo Railway & Light Co. About four years ago Mr. Poulin, who is the driver on the wagon that makes the downtown run for Harry Heinl, was severely injured in a street-car accident. The extent of the injuries sustained by Mr. Poulin can be imagined from the fact that he was confined in the hospital for seven months, and to this day cannot walk around without the use of crutches. Mr. Poulin entered suit against the Toledo Railway & Light Co. some time ago, and a verdict was rendered in his favor for $12,000, but the case was outruled by the company. Mr. Poulin is now entering suit for $13,000. The company hired a moving-picture man to move into the house next to the Poulin residence, and each and every time that Mr. Poulin left the house without the use of his crutches, moving pictures were taken of him, to show that he was not totally disabled. Morgan & Fraser, the attorneys for the plaintiff, secured forty-four witnesses to testify in court that at no time did Geo. Poulin deliver plants or flowers to their stores without the use of crutches. All of these witnesses are florists, so it can be imagined what hubbub reigns in the trade in this city. The motion pictures are shown in every hearing of the court, and great write-ups appear in all the city papers. To add to the confusion in town over the talk of the "moving-picture case," the building inspector served a writ restraining Judge Brough from showing moving pictures in the courtroom without complying with the state fire laws, which state that every moving-picture machine must be enclosed in a steel box or case, to prevent the spreading of fire in case of an accident. The case is regarded as one of the biggest ever held in northwestern Ohio, and has occupied four days already, with no end in view.

avenue last summer, sold her interest to Mr. White. Mrs. June had little experience in the florists' trade, and this is the reason given for her disposing of her interests.

Among the visitors in town last week were: Geo. Maunz, of Reed & Keller, New York; Mr. Smith, of W. J. Boas & Co.; Geo. Hampton, of Jos. G. Neidinger, and Stephen Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., all of Philadelphia.

G. B. S.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Prices were better all along the line last week, and a spirit of optimism prevailed. The shipments of roses are much lighter. Some American Beauties actually touched $75 per hundred January 23. All roses are higher. There was nothing under $2 per hundred and the average advance over last week was twenty-five per cent. All the novelties rose to excellent figures. Hadley sold at $3 per dozen. The best Killarneys and Sunburst, Shawyer, Russell, Mock and Ward grow constantly in popularity.

Three dollars seems to be top for carnations. McKinley day is expected to make a complete clean-up. The wholesale windows advertise the day by the usual posters. Retailers generally seem slow to realize their opportunity. There should be half a million carnations sold on McKinley day in this city of 6,000,000 population.

Strange to say, orchids remain the mystery of the market. There has been no advance, notwithstanding many receptions, weddings and banquets. Even the street merchants had them to offer, from the stock that went down to $10 per hundred. Even the finest of the cattleyas seldom went above $25 per hundred. There are now many varieties.

Valley is abundant and prices low. Lilies have advanced but little, and violets so far show no improvement over last week's quotations. Acacia is here, early and excellent. Narcissi have touched bottom and are now improving.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Peter Brown, Lancaster, Pa., the pansy specialist, says there will be no dearth of this popular flower even if there should be a shortage in geraniums, which looks probable.

D. E. Landis, Rock Glen, Pa., began business as a florist and market gardener a few years back, with sash houses, and is now doing a flourishing trade in stock grown in the Lord & Burnham latest models. He is assisted by two sturdy sons.

The Holmes Seed Co., Harrisburg, Pa., was compelled to vacate its premises at short notice, owing to the Pennsylvania railroad changing the grade. Within a week the firm was in its new home, 106-108 South Second street, in time for holiday business, which was heavier than usual. It is an excellent stand, both for wholesale and retail trade.

Harry Holmes, Jr., withdrew from the Holmes Seed Co., Harrisburg, to form the new house of Holmes-Letherman Co., at Canton, O., where a general seed business will be conducted.

George Horsman, traveler for the Holmes Seed Co., Harrisburg, met with a severe accident recently, which necessitated a month's nursing at home and is likely to invalid him for some time. I am glad to say he is improving.

Walter S. Schell, Harrisburg, commented on the impetus given the seed business by carrying poultry supplies, which practically create an all season's demand. From a small beginning he has worked up a trade of large proportions.

T. J. Opperman, Camp Hill, Pa., specializes in bedding and vegetable plants, filling the benches for spring sales immediately after the holiday trade is over. He is of the opinion that the retailer can profitably advocate the larger planting of bulbs, in view of the tempting offers now being made by the Hollanders.

C. E. Rossiter, Sunbury, Pa., had good results with a bench of chrysanthemums planted in the center, with cucumbers grown on side benches. Davis' Perfect and White Spine were planted alternately, the Davis being a stronger vine, with fruits averaging fourteen inches in length—a profitable crop. These in turn were followed by Grand Rapids lettuce, bringing from 5 cents to 8 cents per head, to be followed again by Stone tomatoes, which are considered by him to be among the best forcing varieties. He says he will not plant asters near mums again, as he had hard work to keep down thrips. A new house has been added for mammoth verbenas and rooted cuttings of soft-wooded stock for the wholesale trade.

Ira G. Marvin, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., wittily remarked that he broke his left arm handling the holiday rush. This was true in that he was making a special delivery on his wheel, which skidded and threw him with a force sufficient to break the small bones. He is recovering nicely and at the same time is giving the business a thorough overhauling, finding concentration and specialization really necessary.

J. L. Dillon, Bloomsburg, Pa., is preparing a large stock of his specialty, verbenas, also young roses and carnations. Sunburst rose is the leader and is counted highly profitable to grow.

care Florists' Review, Chicago

NEGAUNEE GREENHOUSES
Negaunee, Michigan

SALE OR LEASE

Modern plant in first-class condition, located on newly paved street with sidewalk; city water, also excellent private water system, large well and cistern for liquid manure, windmill, gasolene engine and 100-barrel elevated tank; nearly all benches raised concrete; not a lot of rotten wood benches to repair. Cement walks in most aisles. Two blocks from new street car line, one block from new city park. Fine covered delivery wagon, open spring wagon, light buggy, dump cart, good horse, all necessary garden, shop and pipe tools. Very efficient steam plant, Morehead steam trap; cheap fuel. Ample potting shed, pump shed, shop, 75-ton coal bin, buildings for all rigs, good barn and garage. Two residences in good repair. About 20,000 flower pots. Place is fully stocked, doing a fine retail and wholesale business; average income has been nearly $7000 annually. A good grower should be able to produce from $8000 to $10,000. Absolutely no competition, on the contrary, there is shipped into this town at least $10,000 worth cut flowers and plants annually, besides what we produce. Also excellent out-of-town market. Best shipping facilities. Only 65 miles from Kansas City. Topeka has a population of 60,000. This plant should be doubled in size; plenty room to add. Good soil. There has been no such opening in the U. S. for some time, regardless of all claims. Now is the time to start for next season. Plant contains about 14,000 square feet of glass. As a money-making proposition, plant is well worth $25,000. We are offering it for a quick sale at $20,000. Will grow as much in two or three years as we ask for the place. The stock is worth $2000, and there is about $3000 worth of stuff ready to be sold between now and the 1st of June, which will go to the buyer, so that the plant itself will cost him but $15,000. $5000 cash, balance easy terms. Must be sold or leased at once, as owner has too much other business and not enough greenhouse experience. Don't answer this advertisement if you are not a first-class grower.

J. M. Kessler, 1601 Harrison St., Topeka, Kan.

HERE IT IS! An up-to-date retail establishment, 5000 sq. ft. of glass; eight-room, stucco dwelling; modern conveniences. Reason for selling—we wish to concentrate our efforts in the Nursery business, as we are now conducting both. For further particulars apply

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

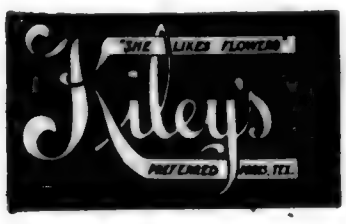
Gentlemen:-

A few weeks ago I started a small card in the Retailers' Telegraph Delivery department of The Review.

I have paid you only $3.50 so far. And this is what happened:

I received orders for Wyoming delivery at Christmas amounting to $142.50.



I think that is doing fairly well.

Respectfully yours,

The Market.

The outlook is decidedly better and the market is cleaning up fairly well. Roses are in shorter supply and sell better than any other flowers. American Beauties have advanced in price, specials making $30 to $40 per hundred. There has been a strong call for short-stemmed flowers of all varieties and these have cleaned up at $3 to $4 per hundred, but an advance has taken place in all grades; even the old standbys, such as Killarney, White Killarney and Ward, are selling well. Ophelia continues a leader. Hadley is now in good shape; its odor helps its sale considerably. Killarney Queen, Mock, Shawyer, Russell, Taft and Sunburst are all in good demand. Some of the single Irish roses are seen and are popular, as is the little Mlle. Cecile Brunner.

Carnations are doing better, but violets are not going well, the prices being low. They will probably have a temporary brace for St. Valentine's day. Some of the valley is of superb quality, while a good deal is just the reverse. This sells moderately well. A good number of Dutch Golden Spurs are now in. The prices are down to $2 per hundred. Silver Spurs are also good. White tulips are now seen in considerable variety. Freesia is now abundant and cheap. Cornflowers do not sell well and calendulas hang fire. Yellow marguerites and English primroses are good sellers. Snapdragons, especially white and yellow, go slowly. Lilies are good and they clean up well. Sweet peas are plentiful. Cattleyas are decidedly druggy. Gardenias move better. Asparagus and smilax have been selling a little better. Pot plant trade, thanks to mild weather, improved during the last few days.

Various Notes.

The schedule of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for 1915 has just been issued. There will be twelve exhibitions during the year. The mid-winter show occurs February 6 and 7. Special features will be made of freesias, begonias, primulas, orchids, hyacinths, carnations and violets. It is unfortunate that the date of the spring show will practically clash with the New York show. Surely the dates could have been separated a few days, to the advantage of each society. The title, "chrysanthemum show," has been dropped in favor of "grand autumn exhibition of plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables." This is a good change, but there are only three classes for vegetables. Forty classes should have been taken from the October show to strengthen this part of the exhibition.

The fine new store of T. F. Galvin, on Park street, is nearing completion. It has a depth of eighty-five feet and is forty-five feet wide. There are roomy cellars for storage purposes. There will be two large show windows, with a large circular showcase between them. Pale blue tiles are used on the floors and the store will be one of the most up-to-date in the country.

Moses Penn, formerly located in the Hotel Brewster, which is to be torn down and replaced by a palatial hotel, will open a store on Bromfield street, where Frank Howard was at one time located. It will be a little confusing to have two signs with Penn the Florist on the same street, not many doors apart.

W, R. Morris, of Wellesley Hills, will next season plant a large lot of Russell, Hadley, Ophelia, Sunburst and other popular roses, about 15,000 in all. Mr. Morris is one of our best local rose specialists.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, are cutting good speciosum and giganteum lilies. Their Dutch Golden Spur and Silver Spur narcissi are now good; so are their Yellow Prince, Thomas Moore, La Reine and other tulips.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. reports business as being satisfactory. The call for Hadley, Ophelia, Russell and other choice roses is excellent.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, is marketing a nice lot of well flowered cinerarias and Primula malacoides. The latter, by the way, is the most decorative of all the greenhouse primulas, and for table centerpieces is unexcelled.

J. R. Comley, of Bedford, is cutting his second crop of smilax. He is one of the few remaining specialists in this plant. He also has a fine crop of single violets and sweet peas.

Charles T. Stevens, of Plymouth, who is a frequent caller at the wholesale markets, reports business as good. He has just completed the equipment of a new, up-to-date store there, to care properly for his increasing trade.

John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain, has Dutch Golden Spur of grand quality. He is also getting a good lot of tulips.

The leading local event of horticultural interest this week is the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, January 28. The installation of officers will be followed by a first-class entertainment by some of our best local artists.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has 7,000 giganteum lilies now eight to twelve inches high, which look even and healthy and which he will have no need to rush for Easter. He has a large daily cut of valley.

Penn once more had a delightful window, fairly redolent of the land of the mountain, lake and heather, for the Burns anniversary in Boston. While several large dry goods stores had suitable decorations, Penn stood alone among the florists, a fact not forgotten by the hosts of admirers of Scotland's most illustrious bard. Business here continues good.

Jacob Hirsch, one of the salesmen at the Boston Coöperative Market, was passing cigars January 21; it is an 8-pound daughter.

Thomas A. Cox, of Dorchester, is strong on Freesia Purity, in addition to splendid giganteum lilies.

Among the roses from W. H. Elliott's Madbury establishment are some of the new single Irish varieties. These are beautiful. He also has Cecile Brunner of splendid color. Among other sorts, Killarney Queen, Killarney Brilliant, Sunburst and Ward are particularly good.

Harry Quint will open a new and splendidly equipped store in the Hotel Brunswick, on Boylston street, right in the Back Bay district, February 1.

W. R. Finlay, formerly one of Thomas Roland's salesmen, has resigned and expects to start as a salesman for several other growers in the Boston Co-operative Market.

The mignonette coming in from R. E. Wadsworth & Co. is of magnificent quality; the spikes are of great depth and the flowers are whiter than usually seen.

Boston sent a really good delegation January 25 to the Buffalo carnation convention and should be well to the front in the competitive classes there.

There will be a conference on garden planning and planting at Horticultural hall January 30, conducted by members of the staff of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, continuing from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Welch Bros. note a decided improvement in the shipping trade. Their growers are sending them in a superior

While there is a lull in greenhouse building among florists, several large houses have been recently constructed for local vegetable growers. The prices on greenhouse vegetables have held up well. W. N. C.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market was still dragging somewhat in the early part of last week, but the cold weather and snow storm caused a shortage of stock in the last two days of the week. This caused prices to go up a few cents and retail business showed some improvement, though the increase was mostly in funeral work. January 25 the wholesalers cleaned up all their consignments, which were considered light. Nearly all the stock is of extra good quality. Roses are not overabundant, but are excellent in color and stem. Killarneys form the bulk of the stock coming in, with Richmond and Ward close seconds. Beauties are not any too abundant. Carnations run about the same. The Enchantress varieties are most numerous, followed by Beacon. Sweet peas and violets have been in good demand and are more abundant than for some time. The supply of valley, lilies and Paper Whites has been equal to the demand. Romans, tulips and Von Sions have been somewhat scarce. Asparagus is easy again and other greens are sufficient for demands.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association held its monthly meeting at the Washington hotel, January 18. The meeting was poorly attended. In the absence of President H. Young and Vice-president Theo. Miller, Charles Young presided over the meeting. This being the first meeting of the year, the following members were nominated for office: President, Charles Young and Fred H. Weber; vice-president, C. Bergstermann; secretary, Fred C. Weber, Jr. The office of treasurer was left open until next meeting, when the election will take place. It was decided to revise the constitution and by-laws of the association so as to offer wider scope of inducements for retailers to join. A nice luncheon was served after the meeting.

J. Plecher, representing the Peters & Reed Pottery Co., of Zanesville, O., was here last week with a line of samples, which were displayed at the Planters' hotel.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Theo. Miller, on Delmar boulevard, February 10.

Joseph J. Windler, who is with his brother, R. J. Windler, 2300 South Grand avenue, has announced his engagement to Miss Bernice Poss. The wedding will take place early this spring. Mr. Windler is receiving congratulations daily from his friends in the trade.

J. F. Ammann is in Buffalo, attending the convention of the American Carnation Society. He was delegated by the St. Louis Florists' Club to present the club's invitation to the society to hold its 1916 meeting in St. Louis. President Bourdet could not have made a better choice when he selected Mr. Ammann for this work.

The County Growers' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting February 3, at the Eleven Mile House. The officers say the meeting will be full of importance and a large attendance is looked for.

R. J. Windler, who was reappointed state vice-president by President Welch, of the S. A. F., is hustling in the interest of the society. Mr. Windler's hustling qualities should give him a good show for securing that prize watch offered by President Welch for the one securing the most new members.

David Geddis reports that the flower department of Vandervoort's, of which he is manager, has had a growing business in wedding decorations, receptions and dinner parties. The recent Cahill wedding was one of their big jobs.

Five convention meetings held in St. Louis last week made things quite lively for some in the trade. The conventionists were the Hardware Men, National Foreign Trade, Convention Secretaries, Implement Men and Grain Men. All of these used more or less flowers and plant decorations for banquets at the different hotels.

In my reference in the last issue to Oscar Huettemann, the item should have stated that August Huettemann, father of Oscar, is making the trip to Portland, Ore., to visit his daughter. Oscar Huettemann still is a single man.

The seed houses throughout the city are preparing for the spring rush and have their spring catalogues in print. The wintry weather last week made counter trade somewhat dull.

Carl Beyer called on the trade last week and reports that he is entirely cured of his rheumatism. He is taking on considerable weight, but says the greater the waist the less the speed.

Thos. C. Carr, the Union Market florist, says trade has been comparatively dull of late and this gives him time to consider preparations for his spring plant trade. He contemplates a number of improvements when the time comes to open his stands.

Florists in the extreme west end, Messrs. Sanders, Young and Kalisch Bros., say they have had an excellent run of trade since the holidays and are looking for it to keep up until Lent begins. J. J. B.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business was unsatisfactory last week, and this, coupled with equally unsatisfactory weather conditions, made the growers and dealers rather pessimistic. Tuesday evening, January 19, a storm of wind, snow and rain struck this vicinity and caused considerable damage. Prices have sagged greatly, but even at that the growers are unable to move their stock.

Damage by Storm.

Nearly 100 lights were broken at the old house in the Pawtucket avenue range of Joseph Koppelman, at East Providence.

The worst damage was reported from the range of David S. Peck, on the Fall River road, East Providence, where the wind tore two-thirds of the glass off a new greenhouse, one hundred and sixty feet long.

A heavy bough blown from a neighboring tree crashed through the roof of one of the greenhouses of Charles H. Hunt's range, on Burnside street.

Various Notes.

At the annual meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, January 20, Eugene A. Appleton, Joshua Vose, Arthur Sellew and Cornelius Hartstra were chosen members of the exhibition committee.

A leak in one of the mains of the Providence Gas Co. on Branch avenue caused William E. Chappell to lose almost his entire stock in one of his greenhouses.

H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Rose Gardens, was reëlected trust officer at the annual meeting of the Industrial Trust Co. last week.

The general assembly has been asked for an appropriation of $15,000 for the suppression of the gypsy and brown-tail moths.

The Norwood Home Nursery & Floral Co., of Norwood, has entered a complaint with the officials of Warwick for damages caused by flooding its land as a result of grading Pawtucket avenue.

Edward Littman, who opened a flower store in the Blackstone hotel, 317 Westminster street, some time ago, has named it the Flower Growers' Depot, according to his statement just filed at the city clerk's office, affirming proprietorship.

Louis D. Pierce has been elected a trustee of the Norwood Volunteer Fire Co. and Nils J. Pierson a delegate from

The Club Banquet.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club held its annual banquet January 21, at Brenneman hall. Thirty-five members sat down to an elegant repast. The tables were beautifully decorated by L. S. Landis. After the cigars had been lit, President B. F. Barr gave a talk on what the club did for the members last year and outlined some special work for the coming year.

Chairmen of the committees appointed to work in the coming year are as follows: Membership, H. A. Schroyer; program, Albert M. Herr; visiting, Rudolf Nagel; exhibition, Harry K. Rohrer; glad hand, Ira H. Landis; sports, Geo. G. Goldbach.

Albert M. Herr, on behalf of the club, presented to President Barr a gift in recognition of his faithful services. Prior to the banquet a short business meeting was held, when the following newly-elected officers were installed: President, B. F. Barr; vice-president, H. B. Weaver; secretary, Lemon S. An invitation was received from the King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y., to visit its plant on the way to the American Carnation Society's convention, at Buffalo. An invitation was also extended to the club to hold its meetings in the new Hotel Brunswick.

Bowling followed, captained by Geo. G. Goldbach and Dennis T. Conner. Mr. Goldbach's team won by a few points. The Lord & Burnham prize was awarded to D. T. Conner. The second prize, a beautiful garden spade, went to T. J. Nolan and the third prize, a steel lawn rake, to Geo. Goldbach. The booby prize was awarded to Frank L. Kohr.

A Round of Visits.

In the afternoon of the same day, about twenty florists went to Strasburg. The first stop was at Amos N. Rohrer's, where we found the carnations in good shape. The varieties grown are Matchless, Pink Delight, Mrs. C. W. Ward and Alma Ward. Primulas are well grown. A specimen sedum, about three feet high, in bloom, was much admired.

Our next call was at the establishment of Charles B. Herr, which might be well termed Lancaster county's show place. The stock here is in the best possible condition. Matchless has led all other varieties in the number of blooms cut, with no split flowers. White Perfection will be dropped next season, owing to its tendency to burst. Gorgeous looked fine, but doubt was expressed as to whether it would make a profitable variety. Benora will be discarded. Enchantress Supreme is much liked for its good color and non-bursting qualities. Possibly the variety that was most attractive was Philadelphia, which was a mass of flowers and buds showing color, a shade of pink of wonderful beauty. These were the first blooms of any consequence he has cut from this variety, but everything points to a heavy cut from now on. Pink Delight is a standard here. Debutante, a variety from California, is being tested and the blooms are of a beautiful shade of rose pink. A house of Beacon was noted for vigor and extreme healthiness. A few Princess Dagmar, crimson, were also found growing here. Some fine Cibotium Schiedei, Ficus pandurata and Dr. Ross coleus were admired.

On our return to Lancaster, a call was made at Enos W. Kohr's place. Matchless looked well here, having been planted in the houses all summer. Three thousand Gorgeous plants were in fine form, but the variation in color was more than should be. Mrs. C. W. Ward, Comfort and White Perfection all looked well. H. K. R.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

ARNOLD RINGIER, secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co., recently returned to Chicago after a trip among the Wisconsin canners.

THE Meyer-Stisser Co., Baltimore, has been so unfortunate as to lose the entire edition of its 1915 general seed catalogue, destroyed by fire in the printshop after the books were almost finished.

THE Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., of Los Angeles, has complained to the Interstate Commerce Commission against the alleged unlawful charge by railroads for switching carload freight to and from industrial tracks.

J. BOLGIANO & SON, Baltimore, are holding a poultry show in their store this week, January 26 to 29, of such magnitude that a 28-page premium list was issued and a lot of space sold to advertisers whose lines are sold by the firm.

THE Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington has received telegraphic information to the effect that the exportation of clover seed from Denmark is now prohibited. The Department of Agriculture points out that the French export prohibition on seeds for sowing and other seeds is of great importance to American seed growers.

AN interesting change is apparent in the character of the bids for the government seed order; a decrease in the number of bids by responsible seedsmen of the best standing and an increase in the number of bids from farmer growers of okra, collard, watermelon, etc. The trade strengthens its stand against the Congressional distribution by refraining from bidding for the business.

ACCORDING to official information, since November the import of beet seed into France has been free from import duties by suspension of law. If this means that the French Department of Agriculture foresees a shortage of beet seeds for home use, and that France will come on the market as a buyer of Dutch, English or American stocks, it may have an important bearing on the situation.

PEAS have not picked up the way some expected. The canners still are a lugubrious lot.

THE seed catalogues that have been cut down an ounce or two to keep them inside the flat rate postage limit do not appear to have suffered in the process.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture recently has issued Farmers' Bulletin No. 630, "The Chalcis-fly in Alfalfa Seed," which will be of interest to some seedsmen.

A. H. GOODWIN, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is in New York. He says he will omit his usual trip to Europe this winter, but Mrs. Goodwin is in Scotland.

THE seed trade will find many items of interest in the "Mott-ly Musings" that are an almost weekly feature of this journal. In his travels Mr. Mott is calling on seedsmen everywhere.

THE canners of corn are scarcely more enthusiastic buyers of seed this season than are the packers of peas. Perhaps the trouble is that most of those who can corn also pack more or less peas.

UNDER the head of Business Embarrassments this week will be found an account of the reorganization of the McVay Seed Co., of Birmingham, Ala., and of the decision declaring R. B. Hutchcraft, of Paris, Ky., a bankrupt.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS and Mrs. Childs, of Floral Park, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Norma, to Alden L. Condict, of Columbus, O. Following her graduation from St. Mary's School for Girls at Garden City, Miss Childs traveled extensively abroad.

FRANCIS C. STOKES says the Stokes Seed Farms Co., Moorestown, N. J., is "specializing on vegetable seeds for commercial vegetable growers and for the present at least the flower seed end of our business has been put in the background. We are only carrying enough to have a complete line for our

What Burpee-Quality Seeds Mean to the Market Grower.

At the Seventh Annual Convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, held in Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, October, 1914, we had the pleasure of talking with and listening to the many earnest men who are doing so much for the advancement of the market growing industry. We were impressed with the importance and scope of the work of this splendid organization, and realized even more than before the market grower's absolute dependence for success upon selected "Seeds of Quality." The position occupied by the seedsman who undertakes to supply seed to the market grower is one of great trust. Surely his service is one based on confidence.

CONFIDENCE makes possible the commerce of the world. It is the greatest factor that enters into a purchase of seeds, because you are not buying a finished product, but only the means by which your garden will be either a pronounced success or a partial failure. Seeds—good or bad—may look the same, but how different their resulting crops! You cannot afford to risk a season's work with seeds of unknown quality.

When you buy BURPEE'S SEEDS the element of doubt is removed so far as is possible by human care. The confidence of many thousands of pleased and permanent customers is maintained by the Burpee Idea of Quality First,—"to give rather than to get all that is possible." This confidence on the part of our customers, combined with the efficient Burpee-Service, has built the world's greatest mail-order seed business.

A careful examination of this "Blue List" should convince you of the excellence of our pedigree strains for market growers, and then a trial order—if you are not already a Burpee customer—will prove that your confidence has not been misplaced.

Burpee's Annual for 1915, our complete retail catalog of 182 pages, has already been mailed. If you have failed to receive it, kindly write at once and a duplicate copy will be forwarded.

For the utmost development of good seed service, we are, ing the problems peculiar to the canner of tomatoes, as against the troubles of canners of other products.

The National Canners' Association has been working for more than a year toward the classification of the industry under its various heads, with all the various branches under the guidance or authority of the national body. There are now formed in the association the milk canners' branch, the sardine canners' branch, the salmon canners' branch, the pea canners' branch, and then the tomato canners' branch, the greatest, numerically, of all. The next step was the formation of the corn canners' branch, and the Western Canners' Association may merge its association into this branch.

DECRIES SEED DISTRIBUTION.

When the bids for the government seed contracts were opened at Washington last week, the officials read a letter from A. T. Cook, of Hyde Park, N. Y., which was received in place of his bid. In it Mr. Cook declared that the seed business was injured by the Department of Agriculture's distribution, and that he would not be a party to it. He described the distribution as a "cheap method of bribing the voters." Laughter was the only immediate result of the letter; the general expression of such opinions, however, is what is bringing about the sure, if slow, change of sentiment with regard to this practice.

FOR STANDARD WEIGHT BUSHEL.

Because of the diversity in bushel weights among the various states, Representative Dillon has introduced in the House of Representatives a bill to establish a standard of weights for various commodities, as follows, the figures being pounds per bushel:

Alfalfa seed, 60; apple seeds, 40; barley, 48; beans, 60; beets, 60; bluegrass seed, 14; bran, 20; broom corn seed, 30; castor beans, 46; buckwheat, 48; carrots, 50; clover seed, 60; shelled corn, 56; corn meal, 48; cotton seed, 32; cucumbers, 48; flaxseed, 56; hempseed, 44; herd's grass, 45; Hungarian grass seed, 50; kaffir corn, 56; malt, 38; millet, 50; oats, 32; onions, 57; onion sets, 28; orchard grass seed, 14; parsnips, 50; rape seed, 50; redtop, 14; rye meal, 50; rye, 56; timothy seed, 45; tomatoes, 56; turnips, 55; wheat, 60. For violating the proposed standards a fine of $500 is provided.

In discussing his bill in the House Mr. Dillon said: "The states have juggled the weight of the bushel measure. A bushel of onions in Indiana weighs forty-eight pounds; in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island, fifty pounds; in Delaware, Maine, South Dakota, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, North Dakota and Vermont, fifty-two pounds, and in twenty other states,

The Advantages of Buying Swastika Brand Cannas Over All Others.

In the first place, they are Antoine Wintzer's developments; and you know that Wintzer stands at the top, when it comes to Cannas. No one person has produced as many new varieties, having such high intrinsic merit.

In the second place, all our Cannas are grown, harvested and packed for shipment under Wintzer's direction. He keeps his fingers on the pulse from start to finish.

Third: Every last one of Swastika Cannas are grown by us, in the north, right here at West Grove, Pennsylvania.

Fourth: All our shipments are packed fresh from our special Canna Storage House. We absolutely box none, only as shipped.

Canna "Mrs. Alfred F. Conard." A most invetei ate bloomer. Lovely salmon pink. 10 for $1.50, 100 for $10.00.

Fifth: You can always depend on getting solid, strong roots, having from two to four eyes. None of the puny, one-eyed, shriveled up ne'er-do-wells.

Sixth: You get an advertised! brand—a brand known the country over—a brand with a reliable firm back of it.

Send along your orders now, and make sure of surely getting just the varieties you want.

bushel, while in Kentucky it is fifty-six pounds. Broom corn seed in North Dakota and South Dakota weighs thirty pounds per bushel, while in Minnesota it takes fifty-seven pounds to make a bushel. Shelled corn in many states is sixty pounds to the bushel, while ear corn is seventy pounds, yet you could not get into a bushel more than thirty pounds of ear corn. Nine states fix red-top grass seed at fourteen pounds per bushel. Virginia fixes it at twelve pounds, yet the clean seed weighs thirty pounds per bushel. Twenty states have a fixed bushel of fifty-seven pounds for onions, while Minnesota has it fifty-two pounds, based on actual weight. You would find it impossible to get one-fourth of a bushel of parsnips into a peck measure. The bushel in the United States ranges from 1,925 inches to 2,815 inches. There is no uniformity and there never will be until Congress makes mandatory standards. The barrel measure does not tie up to any standard. Sometimes it contains three Winchester bushels. The flour barrel is 196 pounds and the beef and pork barrel 200 pounds. Vermont has a permissive barrel, 196 pounds for flour. The states will never establish uniformity in weights and measures. They have been trying for a hundred years and have made a mess of it.''

Reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture from 290 shipping points in sixteen principal late onion producing states, show that approximately 18,934 carloads of onions were shipped from these stations in 1913. Of this number, about 12,239 cars were moved during harvest time, and 6,695 carloads were held in storage at those points for later sale. From these reports, the estimated commercial onion

FACT AND FICTION

Fiction in the lily bulb business is that part of the negotiation which too often precedes the securing of an order. Fact is that part of the transaction which ensues after negotiations are over and the contract is closed. The hardest work begins after the orders are booked—that of getting the bulbs that will really make good. Sometimes customers regard our allegations as fiction, but in the final analysis the facts substantiate what we have always said of Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs.

SOME RECORD

This week when ordering their third lot of seed of my original S. P. snaps, Messrs. W. G. Moulton & Son, York Village, Me., write:

"Last year we planted a bench 4x40 to your S. P. seedling snaps. They came right for Memorial Day. We began cutting April 12 and in six weeks we sold 1600 spikes, besides what we used and gave away. They were not only very profitable, but a great and showy ad for us, many customers judging them 'great,' 'wonderful,' etc., and all were highly pleased with them. We were compelled to sacrifice the bed after Memorial Day to make room for early mums. Have the same bench planted this year and they are great."

This must be acknowledged a great record, which cannot be duplicated by any other snapdragon. By throwing the plants out so early these gentlemen missed a heavier crop of blossoms, which would have continued several months.

We have plants that will make the same record for you, and to quickly move a block we will add 10 per cent in plants with every order. Price for XX stock only, $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000. Remember, these are SEEDLING plants. Your time and space are wasted if you use cuttings. Other varieties are: Yellow, $5.00 per 100; Garnet Gem, $8.00, and Nelrose, $6.00. Write for complete list.

Don't overlook the importance of early seed-sowing. Have ready a big lot of snaps for spring trade. My seedling Silver Pink does as well in field as in greenhouse, being of medium height and producing three blossoms to one of any variety in existence. Price of seed, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Cultural directions free. All orders cash.

crop for the year 1914 at the same points is 21,623 carloads, and the estimated quantity going into storage at those points is 7,879 carloads. These sixteen states produce about seventy-five per cent of the annual crop.

Reports received from 328 shipping points in ten principal late cabbage producing states show that approximately 18,694 carloads of cabbage were shipped from these stations in 1913. Of this number, about 14,465 were moved during harvest time, and 4,229 carloads were held in storage at those points for later sale. From these reports, the estimated commercial cabbage crop for the year 1914 at the same points is 20,390 carloads, of which number around 15,745 cars are being moved during harvest and about 4,645 cars put into storage. These ten states produce about two-thirds of the annual crop.

logue of seeds, bulbs, plants, nursery stock, tools, fertilizers and sundries; 120 pages and an attractive colored cover. The seed lists are comprehensive in all lines; the nursery stock includes flowering shrubs, roses, vines, evergreens and small fruits.

L. L. May & Co., St. Paul, Minn.—This 128-page catalogue, though freely illustrated, is printed so closely and with so much regard to economy of space that it seems to contain almost everything that is likely to be looked for in seeds, greenhouse and outdoor plants, fruits, shade trees and other nursery stock. The red and gold cover is tasteful and challenges attention.

Geo. S. Woodruff, Independence, Ia.—"The Modern Gladiolus." In this 8-page catalogue the stock is arranged or graded with reference, chiefly, to the newness, rareness or expensiveness of the varieties. A supplement contains a list of new sorts, not mentioned in the main catalogue, and some "important changes in prices."

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.—"The 1915 Floral Guide," the usual style of catalogue from this firm, except that it seems to be even handsomer than in former years, with more than the ordinary number of finely colored illustrations. It contains ninety-eight pages, besides the colored cover. As in previous editions, the rose catalogue is incorporated in the book and constitutes the first thirty-nine pages. Then follow the cannas, shrubs, evergreens, vines, perennials, palms and decorative plants, bulbs, non-hardy plants, flower seeds, small fruits, garden requisites, etc. At the beginning is the index to "the best roses for America"; at the end is the general index.

G. H. Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—An 80-page, illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, fertilizers, insecticides, poultry supplies, farm and garden implements. The pages are closely printed and a large stock is listed, especially in vegetable and agricultural seeds.

Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.—A well arranged book of 192 illustrated pages, with an attractive and suggestive cover. Among the classes of stock listed are seeds, roses, miscellaneous plants, perennials, shrubs, vines, fruit trees, small fruit, nut trees, shade trees, etc. An interesting feature of the vegetable department is the estimate of the length of time required, from the date of sowing the seed, to carry a crop to maturity; this statement of the "days required" is placed in parenthesis immediately after the name of each variety.

Martin Kohankie, Painesville, O.—A wholesale nursery list, including perennials and other field-grown plants, pot-grown plants, shrubs, vines and roses.

Thomas J. Grey Co., Boston, Mass.—General seed catalogue, prepared with this firm's characteristic accuracy and good taste. Besides seeds and bulbs, the book contains lists of palms, bay trees and other decorative stock, bedding plants, perennials, roses, vines, fruits and general nursery stock, garden and lawn requisites, fertilizers, etc. Ninety-eight pages, illustrated.

W. W. Johnson & Son, Boston, England.—Wholesale catalogue of vegetable, flower and farm seeds; eighty large pages, clearly printed and finely illustrated. Among the other introductory remarks is this statement: "Although this season we have been able to secure the majority of our crops and are able to offer the produce at reasonable rates, we do not anticipate equally favorable conditions next year."

A FULL LINE OF FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

San Diego, Cal.—Geo. Otto, the well known nurseryman and florist, has been laid up with a bad attack of rheumatism.

Corvallis, Ore.—F. E. Butt is engaging in market gardening here, having sold his interest in the greenhouse establishment of Butt Bros., Parkplace, Ore.

Corvallis, Ore.—T. H. Wellsher, proprietor of the Corvallis Greenhouses, says business has been quiet since the holidays, with plenty of stock of good quality. He regards it as the inevitable reaction after the Christmas rush, when trade was better than ever.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Business may best be described as "streaky," this being the way one retailer spoke of it. Some days are good, some the reverse. There is not any too much really good stock on the market and our best rose growers have no difficulty in disposing of their cuts. But there are quite a lot of poor flowers that demoralize the market to some extent, flowers that would be better left at home than sent in. Violets are about the only flowers that are both good and cheap. Baby roses are small and scarce, the few bunches arriving being eagerly bought up. The weather has been cold at night, with hot days, and this combination is hard on outdoor flowers. But as I write there is a nice rain falling, which it is hoped will continue. Carnations are fair only, and the few centaureas seen are too poor to cut any figure. Beauties are scarce and poor. Outdoor roses are fair. There are still no sweet peas to amount to anything, all growers having apparently failed with their fall sowings. There are acres of these plants that will have to be plowed under, for they will never produce a good flower. It looks as though there were a chance for a grower to start growing under glass, a phase of their culture much neglected here. Lily of the valley and orchids are fairly plentiful, but the price of cattleyas has declined quite a lot in the last year or so and instead of bringing $1.50 each retail, as they did formerly, they are frequently sold with ribbon and other fixings as low as 75 cents each.

Plants sell poorly now, a few Boston and Whitmani ferns being about all that are selling, though there are quite a number of good azaleas still on the market.

Various Notes.

Dan MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., the well known nurserymen of San Francisco, and C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens, Queens, L. I., who now makes his home at Eureka, Cal., are among our distinguished visitors last week. Mr. Ward was accompanied by his manager, R. T. Brown, but he had to leave for the east almost immediately. Mr. MacRorie was host to a congenial party of about ten local horticulturists at the Hayward the evening of January 19 and a most enjoyable time was had.

Thanking you for the excellent results we have had to date from our ad. in The Review.—
HOLLYWOOD GARDENS,
Per V. A.
Jan. 12, 1915. Hollywood, Wash.

Among the various improvements at the plant department of Smith & Dieterich, on Wall street, is a new office. At Seventh and Figueroa streets the cut flower business is booming.

Dahlias and cannas are being lifted at the nurseries of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., on the Whittier road, the stock being in excellent shape this year.

The Los Angeles Floral Co. reports fine business in out-of-town shipping. Carnation Mrs. Welsh is handled exclusively here and is proving a splendid shipper and keeper.

The California Rose Co., of Pomona, has opened a store on Hill street and is conducting a vigorous advertising campaign on its rose stock.

J. Gatacre, of Seattle, Wash., was a visitor this week.

The "speed cops" are making sad inroads upon the profits of the wholesale florists these days.

Word comes from C. E. Morton, now of Phoenix, Ariz., that business is livening up considerably. Mr. Morton's son will join his parents there, but his daughter, Miss Hazel Morton, remains in Los Angeles, having taken up nursing as a profession.

H. W. Turner is shipping out splendid plants of his new rose, September Morn, and other novelties. The whole cut of the large range is cleaned up daily, frequently needing several trips daily.

G. Rolleri, of the California Evergreen Co., has returned from a business trip to San Diego.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Large social affairs, requiring flowers in quantity, are not as frequent as in former years, but the demand for small lots is sufficient to keep the market cleared of cut stock daily. Some good customers are dispensing with flowers and donating their cost to local or foreign relief funds. From a charitable point of view this spirit is admirable, but the florists' business must stand the loss and it is to be hoped that the idea will not be carried to an excess.

The supply of carnations is increasing, but more would be used if they came in. While they show the effects of lack of sunshine, both in texture of stem and in size and tint of bloom, they are of better quality than usual for this time of year. Orchids are abundant and of excellent quality, with Cattleya Trianæ leading. Potted and cut tulips are more plentiful. Romans and Paper Whites sell well and there are enough of them to meet the demand, without any waste. The large growers did not put in as many bulbs as usual, or there would be an oversupply. A few local-grown single violets are shown, but they suffer from

Our Sensational New Light Pink Rose

Growth of the very strongest of any H. T. yet disseminated, throwing long, strong canes in rapid succession, 2 to 4 feet long; does not require pinching and will produce more high grade blooms than any Rose grown. Buds very large and finely formed, opening well into large, full, double flowers of magnificent size and form; a wonderful keeper, lasting over a week after fully open, and retaining its color and fragrance, which is without question the sweetest found in any rose. The petals are large and of splendid substance, waved or undulated on the edges, giving the bloom a very beautiful and distinct appearance. The color is an exquisite shade of light flesh pink on the outer petals, shading to pure rose pink in the center, with a faint touch of deep golden-yellow at the very base of the petals. Without doubt the most rapturously beautiful color in a commercial rose, selling on sight and called for repeatedly, owing to its splendid keeping qualities and distinct coloring. We have this season 10,000 of it planted for cut flowers, and it has given the most gratifying returns of any rose we have grown. Foliage large, ample and not subject to mildew or spot. A splendid all-year-round rose, giving good returns every day in the year. Does not get soft in extremely hot weather, and will be found indispensable where high grade blooms are in demand during the hot months. We are propagating from selected wood only, insuring good, strong, sturdy plants that will give maximum results.

Own root stock only, from 2½-in. pots, $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000; 5000 for $1000.00.

HENRY W. TURNER, Montebello, Cal.

NOTE—It can be seen growing with MR. C. H. TOTTY, of Madison, N. J., also S. J. REUTER & SON, of Westerly, R. I., and is for sale by them, in both grafted and own root stock.

the dark weather and can hardly compete with the more attractive stock brought from California. Local-grown roses of excellent quality are coming in more freely, but the market is getting a large part of its supply from the south.

Blooming azaleas are seen everywhere. The first Golden Spur daffodils have appeared. Trade in potted ornamentals and blooming plants continues fairly good, with ferns, bulbous stock and cyclamens among the best sellers.

Club Meeting.

The Portland Floral Society held its regular meeting January 19, in its rooms in the Masonic Temple. The first topic discussed was introduced by the report of Julius Dorsche, chairman of the committee in charge of the society's participation in the June rose festival. He stated that the rose festival managers had expressed a desire to have the society take charge of the festival center, which is planned to cover four blocks. The society expressed its willingness to do so if found desirable, and gave Mr. Dorsche's committee authority to act at its discretion. The matter of wire baskets on light posts, and other proposed street decorations in the business district, was left in charge of the same committee.

The legislation committee asked that an appropriation be made to procure legal counsel in order to prepare a proper lien law to protect dealers in shrubbery and ornamentals, who now have no rights of lien against property which has been beautified. The appropriation was not granted, as it appeared that nurserymen and landscape workers only would be benefited, and it was argued that the funds of the society could not properly be used for such a purpose.

H. A. Lewis, president of the Multnomah county fair, which is held annually at Gresham, stated that prizes were to be offered for the best flower beds planted by growers at the fair grounds, where ground will be prepared for planting and the beds will be cared for free of charge. He requested the society to take charge of arranging this feature. This will be done by a committee consisting of J. G. Bacher, R. R. Routledge and Guy M. Pilkington.

President Van Kirk reported that he had been appointed S. A. F. vice-president for Oregon and that he was in correspondence with the national officials, urging that as many as possible of the parties of delegates to the convention at San Francisco be routed through Portland, either coming or going. He has assured these officials that the Portland Floral Society will welcome with whole-hearted western hos-

He stated that the managers of the Panama-Pacific Exposition estimate that at least seventy per cent of the visitors from eastern points will take one of the northern routes one way, and that he hoped this estimate would apply to S. A. F. delegates.

President Van Kirk announced a nominating committee to present the names of candidates for the new set of officers of the society. The committee is as follows: B. Tonseth, Max Smith, J. G. Bacher, A. Rahn, J. J. Butzer and G. M. Pilkington.

Various Notes.

George Butzer, a brother of J. J. Butzer, the seedsman, died last week in Seattle. His body was brought to Portland for burial.

George Goos is finding ready sale at the public market for his poorer grades of cyclamens. He is getting good prices for them, considering their quality.

Zimmerman Bros., who have a nursery at Tigard, are growing a variety of hardy perennials. They report a satisfactory fall business.

A number of florists and growers have been requested by the educational committee of the rose festival management to submit articles for publication on various topics relating to rose culture and city beautification.

Mrs. L. W. McCoy, a florist of Seattle, has been visiting here.

S. Lubliner is offering week-end specials in California-grown Cattleya Trianæ.

Some of the best sweet peas seen come from the Betz greenhouses at Jennings Lodge.

Theo. Weddell has grown some excellent freesias and tulips, which sell well.

Clarke Bros. are still receiving small lots of excellent pink Maud Dean mums. The demand for them greatly exceeds the supply. S. W. W.

The Market.

The demand for cut flowers has been fairly good. In other lines there is not much doing. Carnations continue moderately scarce and good prices are realized. There is a fair supply of roses from the south. Bulbous stock is not too plentiful and better prices are current than were the rule at the beginning of the season. Yellow narcissi are later than usual and are much in demand. Good lilies are fairly plentiful and are filling up gaps in other lines. There are not many freesias grown and the blooms that come to the stores are quickly disposed of.

Various Notes.

John Holze, erstwhile captain of the Seattle bowling team, was over in Tacoma last week and the way the Tacoma boys handed it to him at the bowling game wasn't slow.

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results. —Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

SPIRÆA ROOTS NOT BULBOUS.

The Treasury Department announces a decision of the Board of Appraisers in the matter of the protest of Mattoon & Co., at San Francisco, on the rate on spiræas. Appraiser Waite rendered the opinion. The importation was invoiced as 1,200 spiræa plants and was assessed for duty under that part of paragraph 264 of the 1909 tariff act reading, "All trees, shrubs, plants and vines commonly known as nursery or greenhouse stock, not specially provided for, twenty-five per cent ad valorem." It was claimed by the importers that the plants were dutiable at 50 cents per thousand under the last part of paragraph 263, which reads: "All other bulbs, bulbous roots or corms which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per thousand." In overruling the protest, Appraiser Waite said:

"This plant is cultivated for its flowers or foliage. The testimony of the importer is that it is known and traded in under the name of spiræa, but that it is not really spiræa. He says its correct name is aruncus, that it is allied to the saxifraga genus, and that it is also called astilbe. Astilbe is classified under paragraph 263 with 'hyacinth, astilbe, dielytra, and lily of the valley clumps, $2.50 per thousand.'

"We learn from works on botany that spiræa is a genus which is divided into some fifty varieties, the most of them being deciduous shrubs. Some of the species, however, are perennials, and belong to what might be termed the herbaceous group. This particular importation, according to the testimony of the importer, is the roots merely of a perennial, the growth of which above ground dies down in the fall.

"While this is all interesting and might assist in determining the classification of these roots, the real question is as to whether they are 'bulbs, bulbous roots, or corms.' No authority has been presented which would warrant us in holding that they are either bulbs, bulbous roots, or corms. In supplying an illustrative sample, the importer stated that the one produced was exactly like the original sample which was taken from the importation. He was asked by his attorney the following question: 'Are you prepared to state positively that the bulb which is here the subject of this protest was the same as the bulb from which that plant came?' His answer was, 'Yes, sir; exactly; a different importation, that is all; the same class of goods.' This is the only testimony in the case which sustains the contention that the importation is either a bulb, a bulbous root, or a corm. We think we are authorized in holding, from all the testimony and the facts and circumstances surrounding the case, that these goods are not bulbs. Is there anything, then, upon which we can base a finding that they are bulbous roots or corms? We think the testimony introduced on behalf of the importer does not go far enough to furnish the basis of an intelligent finding. We therefore hold he has not supported his contention. The protest is overruled." P.

THE THIRD EDITION

Of the most successful book ever published for the trade

The original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this Album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot-cakes, and a second edition went quickly. The third edition is now ready. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

INCORPORATION papers have been issued to Maney & Sayre, of Geneva, N. Y., to do a general nursery business. The capital stock is $30,000. The incorporators are T. J. Maney, R. M. Sayre and Fitzhugh McGrew, all of Geneva.

C. W. CARMAN, founder of the Lawrence Nursery Co., at Lawrence, Kan., is creating a surprise in his town by taking an active part in politics. He is a candidate for mayor, running against the present occupant of the office.

UTAH'S importance as a fruit-growing state may be judged by a recent statement that there is a total of 43,660 acres of fruit land in the state, the estimated value of which is $17,466,000, and on which there are about 6,548,000 fruit trees.

THE shipments of French fruit stocks are arriving in large quantities. Instead of a scarcity, it appears orders will be filled in full and an effort will be made by the French houses to work off in America quantities grown for markets now closed to France.

LEONARD COATES, of Morgan Hill, Cal., well known to the nurserymen of the Pacific coast, was married January 10 to Miss Annie A. Ellis, of Watsonville, for the last five years a teacher in the Morgan Hill high school. Mr Coates is 65 years old; his first wife died three years ago, leaving him one son, Ronald, 25 years old, who is engaged in the nursery business with his father.

A. A. N.'S ANNIVERSARY.

Seven years ago the American Association of Nurserymen held its annual meeting in Detroit. At the Cleveland convention of 1914 Detroit was again practically unanimously chosen for the meeting of 1915. So much enthusiasm was evinced in the discussion as to the city in which this anniversary should be celebrated that we consider ourselves warranted in boosting the "City Beautiful" in anticipation of June 23 to 25 next. It is great fun to be a booster, because, after your energy has been spent, such a delightful satisfaction gets up under a man's vest as he congratulates himself on his success, always, of course, presuming that he has boosted in a good cause. So let us all assume the role of the booster in one united effort to make this fortieth anniversary the most notable in the association's history, notable in size of membership, notable in attendance and notable in all other ways that shall build up the business of the legitimate nurseryman.

To this end let every man look after the fellow who is not on the list. President Chase is on the warpath. He has appointed a committee of seven live men to boost the membership, with Brother Will Munson, of Texas, as chairman. Somethin' doin'.

As already announced, Hotel Cadillac will be headquarters. T. I. Ilgenfritz (some call him "Tom") is chairman of the committee on arrangements and entertainment. He has made the personal acquaintance of the manager of the hotel, who has promised not only to do his best to give satisfaction equal to that felt seven years ago but to surpass it as far as his capabilities will permit.

The entertainment mill is working, and we shall shortly be able to take members more fully into the committee's confidence. The program mill is also grinding, and we suggest that members write to Brother C. R. Burr, Manchester, Conn., any thought they may have that will be helpful to him.

I shall be glad to give prompt attention to all inquiries regarding membership, etc.

Yours for a 1915 boom,
John Hall, Sec'y,
204 Granite Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.

Please cut out of my ad for Privet the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.

OHIO NURSERYMEN MEET.

The Officers.

At the business session, January 13, of the eighth annual convention of the Ohio Nurserymen's Association, at Columbus, there was little change made in the list of officers. T. J. Dinsmore, of Troy, took the place of W. N. Scarff, of New Carlisle, as president, and the latter succeeded A. R. Dinsmore, of Troy, on the executive committee. W. B. Cole, of Painesville, and A. R. Pickett, of Clyde, retain their positions as secretary and treasurer respectively. The old stand-bys who keep their places on the executive committee are Robert George, of Painesville; T. B. West, of Perry; W. F. Bohlender, of Tippecanoe City, and H. S. Day, of Fremont.

Joint Session.

Tuesday, January 12, was occupied with a joint meeting of the association and the Ohio State Horticultural Society, at Grange hall, at the state fair grounds, when the following papers were presented:

"Ohio Nurseries," illustrated, N. E. Shaw.
"Fall and Spring Planting," W. N. Scarff.
"Replacing Nursery Stock," A. R. Pickett.
"The Best Way to Purchase Nursery Stock," T. B. West.
"Good Will Between Nurserymen and Fruit Growers," H. S. Day.

Business Session.

The following day, January 13, the nurserymen met at the Hotel Vendome, Columbus, at 9:30 a. m., for a lively session among themselves. The program was as follows:

President's address, W. N. Scarff.
Report of the secretary, W. B. Cole.
Report of the treasurer, A. R. Pickett.
Report on nursery and orchard inspection, N. E. Shaw.
"The Effect of the European War on Nursery Stock Importations," A. R. Dinsmore.

The strength of the nurserymen in the horticultural society of the state may be seen from the list of those on the program of this meeting which was given on this page last week. The meeting was one of the most interesting and best attended held for some time. Credit for the success of the gathering belongs in large measure to the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co. and the Whiting Nursery Co., both of Yankton.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The weather last week was cold and crisp. A great deal of cloudy weather made stock somewhat scarce. Trade is much improved, and there are a number of functions, such as luncheons, dinners and receptions, to provide for. Funeral work, however, was heaviest of all. The funerals of a number of prominent people called for numerous casket mounds, large designs and clusters.

Roses are not especially good. Prices are high, considering the low quality of the stock. Beauties are small, and the buds are shriveled in some shipments. Daffodils are better and bring fair prices, but the demand greatly exceeds the supply. Pussy willows are used considerably with spring flowers. Sweet peas are increasing and are excellent in quality. Harrisii lilies are much in demand, but the supply is meager. Carnations are fair; there is an abundance of all colors, red being in the majority. Cyclamens, primroses, hyacinths, azaleas and cinerarias are among the blooming plants to be had.

Various Notes.

Cerise Winsor

A VARIETY EVERY GROWER WILL WELCOME.

This is a sport of Winsor, known everywhere as a variety that is easy to grow—everybody does it well. Has the same habit as Winsor, with darker foliage and larger buds and flowers—a fine deep cerise pink. A free bloomer and a good shipper. Will fill a need in its color. ROOTED CUTTINGS.....$10.00 per 100; $80.00 per 1000.

of red tulips last week. Primroses and cyclamens were also used.

At a dinner given for Former President Wm. Taft, at Porter Norton's residence, January 22, an Italian garden was used, having miniature boxwood hedges, rose trees and garden vases filled with blooming roses. In the center of the formal garden was a tall rose tree. Green moss formed the turf throughout the garden and the effect was most realistic.

At the branch store of W. J. Palmer & Son, two handsome window decorations were seen. One consisted of lavender orchids hung from the ceiling in tubes irregularly arranged, which resembled a flock of birds. The floor space was artistically filled with spring flowers. The other display was a fountain effect of white lilacs and yellow tulips. Instead of water, an electrolier with a yellow shade was used to great advantage. Vases of sweet peas of various colors and miniature Japanese ponds, with goldfish swimming about, added life to the creation.

Joseph Streit is now offering some exceptionally good Dutch hyacinths and Marie Legraye lilac trees in full bloom. These are excellent for early spring stock.

A. J. Pauly, of Attica, N. Y., is growing some good Perfection, Enchantress Supreme and Beacon carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Anderson during their stay here for the carnation convention.

S. D. Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Milton Selinka, of Schloss Bros., New York, and A. Smith, of Wm. J. Boas & Co., Philadelphia, were recent visitors.

R. M. Rebstock's store and S. A. Anderson's Elmwood branch have been doing a great deal of funeral work.

Robert Avery is producing some excellent smilax, which is being used in large quantities at present.

The orchid peas of Jerry Brookins and Chas. Sandiford continue to improve daily, after the blight they suffered at Christmas.

S. A. Anderson had a rather weird but yet effective window display last week. It was Japanese in design, and had hangings of blue and white crepe, Japanese lanterns, parasols and fans. White lilac trees, with blue, yellow and lavender decorations, gave a dash of color. Orchids, valley and Golden Spur daffodils in vases were the cut flowers used. A soft blue light was thrown upon the display. E. C. A.

MRS. C. W. WARD

AS A BREAD-AND-BUTTER VARIETY

What Mr. Fritz Bahr, the famous writer of "The Week's Work," in the Florists' Exchange of January 9, 1915, says about this variety:

"With a good many of the retail growers, throughout the middle west in particular, the great merits of Carnation Mrs. C. W. Ward have just been recognized and appreciated. It is one of the best of its color that we have today. Every retail grower should provide room for at least a few, and fairly well grown stock will sell at a higher price than any other of the standard sorts on a glutted market."

We have 40,000 cuttings of this variety ready - - - - $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business this week was not up to that of the week before, owing to the cold snap we have had. Cut flowers were scarce all the week. This was not caused so much by the demand as by the general shortage of stock. Roses are advancing in price. Beauties and other red roses were away short of the demand and the quality was poor. The new varieties cannot be had at all. There were not enough pink roses to fill orders. The whites were least in demand, but even they were all cleaned up at good prices. Carnations from the home growers have not been so plentiful, owing to the cloudy weather, and prices have advanced slightly. Tulips and other bulbous stock are more plentiful, with the exception of lilies. Sweet peas, violets and freesias are more plentiful and of good quality. The prices on these remain about the same.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club met Monday, January 18, for the annual election of officers. The meeting was held at the Coates House, with a large attendance. The following officers were chosen: President, Glen H. Parker; vice-president, Edward Harvey; secretary and treasurer, A. C. Wilson; trustee, Mr. Chandler. The club has been having a number of talks on different interesting subjects and all members should turn out, in appreciation of the efforts of the officers.

A baby girl arrived January 21 at the home of W. J. Barnes, Jr., and everybody is getting along well.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had an attractive window of lilac and bougainvilleas. This firm reports a good business in funeral work for last week.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a good out-of-town trade for the week, which made up for a decrease in local business.

W. J. Barnes has a house of fine Easter lilies and a nice lot of pot plants for St. Valentine's day.

William Foith is sending in a nice lot of carnations and roses and has no trouble in selling them.

The nurserymen of this city are making big preparations for spring business and some report that orders are now ahead of those of last spring.

Business across the state line has been only normal. Funeral work is the heaviest part of the business.

W. J. B.

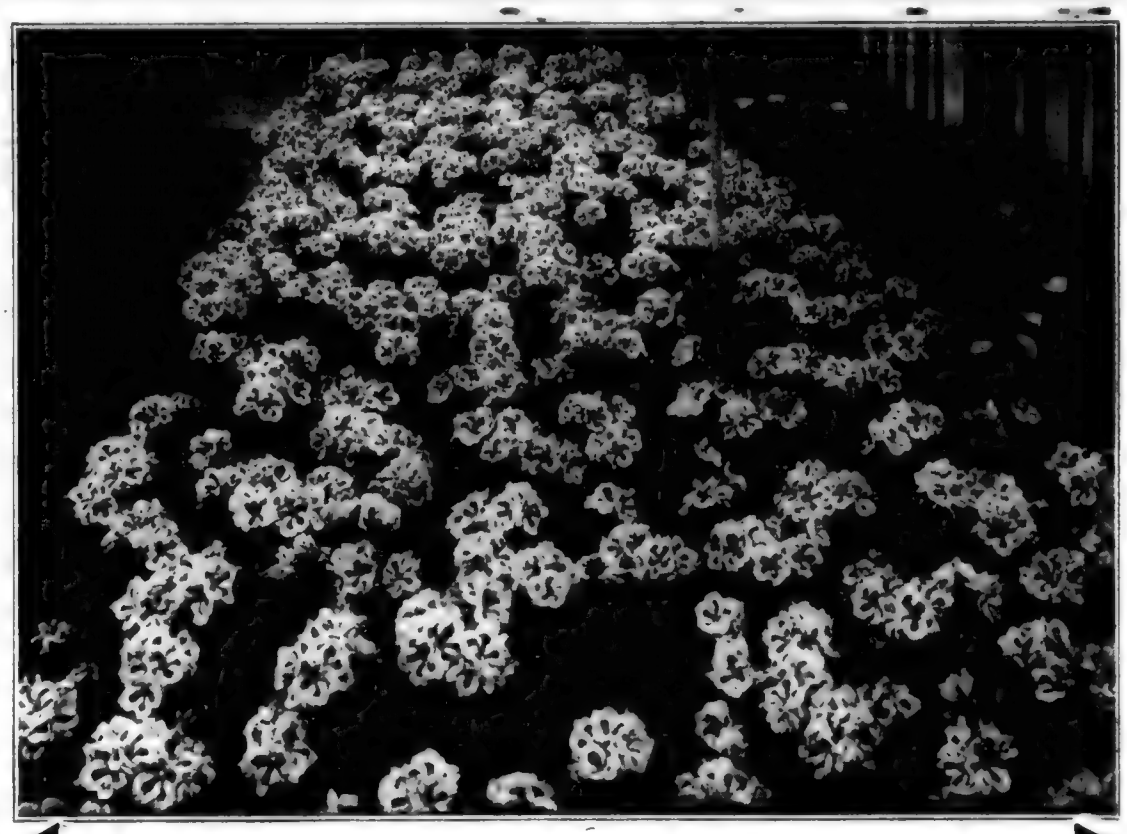
The Market.

Business has been brisk, but not so good as during the first part of January. Funeral work moves a large quantity of flowers, especially callas and Easter lilies, but society work is not nearly so plentiful.

The supply of flowers is not so large as it was two weeks ago, owing to the continuous dark weather, and roses and carnations are almost at a premium. Spring flowers are coming in slowly. Daffodils, jonquils and tulips have made their appearance on the local market, potted as well as cut. Violets and sweet peas are scarce. Primroses, cyclamens, azaleas and cinerarias are selling well.

Various Notes.



The New Haven Floral Co., of New Haven, Ind., is shipping some fine carnations to this market.

Frank Knecht & Co. are cutting some splendid roses and report the demand good.

The Bradley Flower Shop is showing some fine cineraria plants, as well as a variety of other blooming plants.

At the Fee-Heit wedding, January 5, the bouquets and decorations by the Flick Floral Co. were elaborate. Southern smilax and Killarney roses formed the decorations at the Heit residence. The bridesmaids carried stunning hats filled with Sunburst roses and tied with long streamers of Sunburst ribbon, by which they hung from the arm. The bride's bouquet was a combination of valley, lilies and white orchids, tied with a handsome bridal scarf. The decorations for the opening of the Palace theater, January 25, were also carried out by the Flick Floral Co. Smilax and Beauties were used. R. R. F.

Missoula, Mont.—The R. & S. Flower Store has secured G. H. Osterman, an experienced nurseryman, to take charge of the nursery department which the firm plans establishing. Thirty acres are ready now, and perhaps thirty more will be added, according to F. X. Scully, head of the concern.

THE WONDERFUL PELARGONIUM EASTER GREETING.

If you buy a hundred the only regret you will have is that you didn't buy two hundred.

EASTER GREETING BLOOMS FROM MARCH TO OCTOBER

Good, strong, healthy 2½-in. plants, $10.00 per 100.

J. N. SPANABEL & SONS, E. Palestine, Ohio

We Offer for Immediate Delivery

Good, strong, well established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly VALUABLE NEW ROSES

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and Prince E. C. d'Arenberg

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA

No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively.

Strong plants on own roots. 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY

This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double, hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG

This variety might well have been termed a Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine, straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000.

WE WILL BE GLAD TO QUOTE ON APPLICATION PRICES ON ALL THE NEWER AND STANDARD VARIETIES—STRONG, GRAFTED PLANTS READY IN MARCH

The Market.

Flowers are abundant; the demand is fair, but hardly keeps up with the supply. Funeral work has been plentiful and there have been a number of fair-sized decorations. Bulbous stock, such as Golden Spurs, La Reine tulips and Romans, are increasing in supply. A few Dutch hyacinths have also made their appearance. Local-grown carnations are somewhat scarce, but there are plenty from outside places and sales of them are being held on Saturdays at 35 cents per dozen, while on other days they bring 75 cents. Formosa lilies are coming in, but are used principally in funeral work. Most potted plants move slowly; among the exceptions are red tulips and azaleas.

Various Notes.

Mark Aitken has found no trouble so far in disposing of his fine lot of azaleas and he says that the demand for potted plants is heavy. One of his new delivery cars was badly smashed last week.

Miss Louise J. Taylor, formerly of this city, has gone to Bermuda, where she will go on the stage.

L. H. Butts, recently of this city, has moved to Reading, Pa., where he has bought a greenhouse establishment and will go into business for himself.

"Safety first" is perhaps the most extensively used slogan of today and there is none more significant. Well, "quality first" means the same thing to the grower who is buying carnation cuttings. While propagating our carnation cuttings, we always keep in mind "quality first." We are propagating:

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business is brisk. At least, that is how we feel about it when we compare matters with the conditions in some of the other cities as described by the many drummers who passed through here last week. Of course, we could manage to take care of considerably more business, but things on the whole are satisfactory. There has been a remarkable scarcity of roses and this has helped to keep other stock pretty well cleaned up. Carnations have not cleaned up as well as many would have liked. Considerable bulbous stock is now available, including fine freesias, Golden Spurs, various colored tulips and hyacinths. There has been a ready sale for peas.

Various Notes.

John B. Dinser reports the arrival of another baby girl at his home.

B. Schroeter, who has been confined to his home for a week, is back at the store. This is the first time in many years that Mr. Schroeter has been under the weather for more than a day.

Gus H. Taepke, who has been on the sick list for some time, is again on his feet, but is far from being entirely well.

Trade visitors took this city by storm last week. First to put in an appearance was J. J. Karins; then came Walter Cook and at his heels George Hampton; then Mr. Nelson, from the west; then followed Mr. Feldner, from Zanesville; S. S. Skidelsky, Martin Reukauf, Frank Farney, James Smith, and so on down the line.

Many of the retail stores had their windows prettily decorated during auto show week. Among the most attractive was that of E. A. Fetters. Many miniature basket autos were shown in his window, all nicely filled and labeled, the leaders for 1915. In Breitmeyer's window was a large basket auto suspended from above by a string of monkeys carved from wood. The Schroeter-Stahelin Co. had a large auto wheel in the window and attached to the wheel were graceful wings of red carnations, the whole mounted on a high pedestal.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Business has shown some improvement during the last week. The demand is more brisk than it has been since Christmas. Stock in general, however, is quite scarce.

Roses are scarce; in fact, the supply is not nearly sufficient to take care of the demand. The shortage is felt especially in the shorter grades of stock. The quality is fine. Carnations have shrunk from an extremely large supply to one which is hardly adequate for all the orders. The percentage of splits is small, and the average quality is excellent. Prices have advanced as the supply has decreased.

Valley is good, but sales are rather slow on this stock. Violets are still in good supply and the quality is excellent. The demand seems to be lighter than usual this year. Spring stock, such as freesias, narcissi and daisies, is coming in.

Various Notes.

Currie Bros. Co. has finished moving the seed department and offices to the new location, on East Water street. The flower store remains at 108 Wisconsin street. Last week this firm had in the window a display of roses, one of each variety, with a card attached bearing the name of the variety. Each flower was in an individual vase. The space before the window was continually crowded with spectators.

Greenhouse Heating.

ALL coal men agree on one thing and that is that collections are abnormally slow. Concerns that under ordinary circumstances would not think of taking more than thirty days at the outside now calmly take sixty and ninety days' time without even offering an apology. "My trade won't pay me and I can't pay you" seems to be the slogan that has become almost universal.—The Black Diamond.

THE BOILER IN THE CENTER.

I should be pleased to have you give me some advice in regard to the heating of my greenhouses. I have one house 30x84, with solid walls four feet high. It is thirteen feet high to the ridge and is even-span, running east and west. I wish to grow carnations in this house, except about twenty-five feet at the west end, in which I wish to grow roses. This space is separated from the carnation end by a glass partition. Connected to the south side of the greenhouse, and midway between the two ends of it, there is a small storeroom.

I wish to put up two lettuce houses, each 10x84, with 2-foot walls and a height of five feet to the ridge. Owing to the way I am situated, I shall be obliged to place the boiler in the storeroom, in the center of the lettuce houses, thus really making four houses instead of two. Do you think I can heat the houses satisfactorily by placing the boiler there? The boiler is an upright 36-inch shell, six and one-half feet high, and has two 4-inch openings for flows and the same for returns. I shall place the boiler in a pit. I am located in West Virginia. H. E. H.

As the boiler is to be located practically in the middle of the houses, it really becomes a question of the piping required for heating six houses forty-two feet long to 50 degrees.

One 4-inch main flow pipe will be sufficient to heat both ends of the 30-foot house and the other 4-inch main may be used for the 10-foot houses. One of the mains should be carried into the center of the 30-foot house and from it six 2½-inch flow pipes should be taken off. Three should run in each direction to the ends of the house, one flow being under the ridge and the others on the plates. Connect each of the flow pipes with three 2-inch returns and carry these back to the middle of the house and join them to a 4-inch main return pipe to carry the water back to the boiler.

For each end of the 10-foot houses run a 2½-inch flow pipe to the ends and there connect each of these flow pipes with four 1½-inch returns.

THE MAIN IS TOO SMALL.

About a year ago we asked for your advice in regard to the heating of our greenhouse, and the results obtained from following your advice have been so satisfactory that we are again coming to you for information. We have just completed an addition to the house built a year ago. The new house joins the old one on the south at right angles, so that the two together form an L-shaped house, as you will see from the enclosed diagram. The addition is 14x37 and eight and one-half feet high to the ridge. The side walls are six feet high to the eaves. The lower half of the side walls is double-boarded, with paper between; the upper half is glass. There is glass and a door in the south end; at the north end there is a glass partition and a door between the two houses.

Hot water heat is used. The old house contains a 2½-inch main flow, running about two feet below the ridge. Would a continuation of this 2½-inch pipe to the south end of the new house be large enough to feed coils under the benches at the sides? How many pipes would be needed in each coil? We have on hand several hundred feet of 1¼-inch pipe, which we should like to use if possible. The temperature desired is 50 to 60 degrees in zero weather. The location is southern Michigan. The top of the boiler is a little below the level of the ground outside. We do not wish to change the size of the flow in the old house unless it is necessary. W. F. C.

The sketch indicates that a 2½-inch overhead flow pipe and twelve 1¼-inch returns are suggested for heating the new house. This would answer well, except for the fact that the new piping would be connected with the 2½-inch flow pipe which supplies the older house, 11x25. This makes about 500 square feet of radiation, which is more than is advisable unless a generator is used. I would advise either that a generator be attached, or that a 2½-inch flow pipe be run from the boiler to supply the new house and that a main return of the same size be used. The flow pipe can be run through the old house alongside the present main, which need not be disturbed.

EXPANSION TANK OVERFLOWS.

I have a hot water heating system at my retail place in this city. The range consists of two houses, one of them 25x80 and the other 25x65. Several days ago I disconnected the heat from the house 25x80, with the intention of rebuilding this house. The other house, 25x65, has a 3-inch main which rises from the boiler to a height of ten feet and then branches into two 2-inch flows, which run to the farther end and there connect with eight 1½-inch returns, four for each flow. The highest flow at the farther end is connected by a 1-inch pipe to the expansion tank, which is four feet above the flow.

When both houses were heated, everything worked well, but now, when only the one house is heated, even a fairly strong fire in the boiler causes the water to flow out of the expansion tank and steam escapes with it. There is also a loud cracking and tearing sound from the pipes. Yet I do not have over one-third as strong a fire in the boiler as formerly. Can you suggest some means of overcoming this gathering of steam in the system and the throwing of the greater part of the water out of the overflow from the expansion tank? This overflowing is a daily occurrence, and keeps me worrying lest some night the system will run out all the water and cause a break in the boiler. C. W. E.

The description of the heating system does not make it entirely clear whether the flow pipes run downhill or uphill, although, from the fact that the expansion tank is connected with the "highest flow at the farther end," it would seem that they run uphill.

The trouble is probably due to the formation of steam in the boiler, owing to the comparatively small amount of radiation now connected with it. If the flows run uphill, I would advise that the direction be changed, preferably by raising the flow pipe at the boiler end and connecting the expansion tank with the highest point in the system, which should be as nearly as possible over the boiler. It would also be well to locate the expansion tank several feet above the flow pipe. Attaching a generator would have the same effect.

DIRT BANDS—Experience in Using Them

Bird-in-Hand, Pa., March 23, 1914.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made a GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

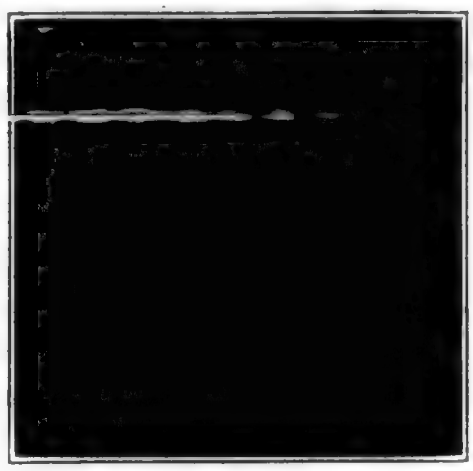
Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, and STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.



Yours truly,
H. B. Weaver.

277% MORE BLOSSOMS

on plants raised in Square Paper Pots than on plants raised in clay pots of same size.

There were 456 stems of blossoms on 40 plants raised in 4-inch Square Paper Pots and 105 stems of blossoms on 40 plants raised in 4-inch clay pots.

NUMBER OF STEMS IN BLOSSOM

	June 9	June 20	June 27
On 40 plants from clay pots	45	47	121
On 40 plants from paper pots	105	229	456

When set in the field May 15th, the root systems of the plants from the 4-inch square paper pots were 4-inch cubes (64 cubic inches of soil and roots) and from the 4-inch clay pots the root systems contained 31 cubic inches of soil and roots (the amount that a 4-inch clay pot holds).

The third count of blossoms was made June 27, 42 days after the plants had been set in the field.

The plants from the square paper pots were then more than twice as large and vigorous as those raised in clay pots.

All plants raised in square paper pots are larger and more vigorous than those raised in clay pots, because they have about double root room for the same size pots.

Measure the two pots and you will find that the 4-inch square paper pot holds as much soil as two 4-inch clay pots.

It is the same with square dirt bands, which are square paper pots without bottoms (the bottoms being furnished by old newspapers spread on the bench).

The theory that it is only necessary to have a big top to the plant has been proved misleading.

There must be a big root system to push the top or the plant will grow slow and small.

Try some square paper pots or dirt bands with your clay pots and see if you can afford to use any clay pots.

Some of the florists around Philadelphia are using large numbers of square dirt bands and paper pots.

We have shipped to Mr. P. B. Dilks, Bridesburg, Phila., Pa., 150,000 2-inch square dirt bands and 20,000 3-inch square dirt bands; to Mr. Geo. W. Dilks, Frankford, Pa., 10,000 2-inch square dirt bands and 10,000 3-inch square dirt bands; to Mr. M. H. Hostetter, Manheim, Pa., 20,000 2¼-inch dirt bands and 6000 5-inch dirt bands; Mr. H. B. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa., 135,000 2-inch dirt bands.

393% MORE FRUIT

120 early tomato plants reported in Market Growers' Journal, Jan. 1, 1914, raised in 4-inch clay pots (31 cubic inches of soil and roots), had yielded up to Aug. 11 7⅝ peach baskets—$4.75 worth of ripe tomatoes, while 120 plants raised in 4-inch SQUARE paper pots (64 cubic inches of soil and roots), had yielded 33 peach baskets—$23.50 worth of ripe tomatoes—393 per cent more.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons.

Dear Sirs: The thoroughly dependable quality of material commends them to users everywhere. Growing and shipping in same pots saves all kinds of labor.

Tomato plants which without your pots sell here for $1.00 per 100, raised in your pots sell at $4.00 per 100. Yours very truly,
The Dalles Floral Co.

"I raised tomato, cabbage, eggplant and pepper plants in the pots bought of you. They accomplished their purpose of keeping the roots of the plants separate and in their own spaces to perfection. From about 2700 tomato plants I picked 1140 marketable crates of tomatoes which brought me $600." D. B. Moses, Purchase, N. Y.

"We grew about 800 tomato plants in your paper pots for our uncle in Rock Creek, Ohio. There is a canning factory there.

Our uncle says they were by far the best plants set out in Rock Creek last spring. We sent them 16 miles on a platform dray, rather than take a chance on a delay in freight, and the teamster told us he had a dozen chances to sell them on the way down.

We got the Paper Pots so our uncle need not send any pots back. The experiment was satisfactory.

We are impressed with the fact that Paper Pots give so much more root space than other pots.

We hope to use some 4-inch pots for starting 'cukes' and 'toms' for greenhouse work this spring. One firm does greenhouse work only."
Gallup Bros., Ashtabula, Ohio.

"The crop from the plants grown in your dirt bands paid me the best of any crop of tomatoes grown since I have been in the business."
J. M. Gage, Market Gardener, Willimantic, Conn.

"I used the Rochelle dirt bands for early tomatoes and cucumbers with very great success. I had an immense crop of both tomatoes and cucumbers and both started picking fully 15 days before the usual time in this section."
Chas. H. Weaver (Choice Fruit and Vegetables), Dunnville, Ont., Can.

"I used your 4-inch Dirt Bands successfully for tomatoes, watermelons and canteloupes. Had melons much earlier than by planting in open field."
Albert G. Boyle, Owner of the Boyle Orchards, Bentonville, Ark.

"We highly recommend your Dirt Bands. We had tomatoes the first of June, and the only tomatoes in Kay Co., Okla., this year, due entirely to using your Dirt Bands and getting them out early."
Nichols & Son, Market Gardeners, Blackwell, Okla.

"We raised several thousand plants in your paper pots and found it a very satisfactory method. This season we are going to use them exclusively. Kindly quote us on 2, 3 and 4-inch paper pots in large quantities and oblige."
Puritas Farm Products Company, Newburgh, N. Y.

"I used your Dirt Bands for tomatoes, peppers and eggplants—also for mignonette, heliotrope and helichrysum. I and my trade were pleased with them. I shall use more the coming season."
Chas. C. Roberts, Lansdowne, Pa.

"I have used your paper Dirt Bands in the hotbed and find them suitable for about everything. They handle nicely and produce fine plants."
F. J. Gallagher, Woodville, N. Y.

"I think your Paper Pots are O. K. I used them for tomatoes and melons. They put me on the market with these about 2 weeks earlier than I have ever been without the pots."
Wm. Terpstea, Hammond, Ind.

"We raised vegetable plants and asters in your Paper Pots. They accomplished their purpose. They gave better plants than those in clay pots and sold at double price."
Mt. Gilead Floral Co., Mt. Gilead, O.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business during the week was slightly better than it has been and there is an almost unprecedented scarcity of roses and carnations. Up to about ten days ago there were far more of these flowers than the market could consume, but now it is almost impossible to secure enough to go around. Regardless of this fact and that roses and carnations are both better than they have been, there is little increase in price. There is a fair demand for American Beauty roses, which are offered at about $3 per dozen. Fireflame sells readily at from $6 to $8 per hundred. Calendulas clean out daily and bring $4. Gardenias are also quite scarce and some of the many out-of-town orders remained unfilled. There is little call for valley. Wallflowers are in and are being picked up as a novelty. Snapdragon is scarce, particularly in yellow, and the demand is a little heavier than usual. The receipts of violets grow heavier daily, forcing down the price. Sweet peas are also much more plentiful than they have been and there is no call for the enormous quantities of narcissi that are to be had at practically the buyer's price. There has been a good demand for Easter lilies and rubrum also sells well on account of heavy funeral work and the scarcity of carnations.

Various Notes.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. has added an attractive automobile for delivery purposes. The machine has a green body with black trimmings, with the firm's name in gold on either side. A garage has been built at the rear of the store at 1216 H street, northwest. A part of the outside wall was torn down and fashioned into a large entrance and a partition was erected inside the store, just back of the iceboxes, forming a room that serves well as the garage.

The Washington Floral Co., 1349 R street, northwest, last week was incorporated with a capital stock of $1,000, divided into shares of a par value of $100. The incorporators and trustees are J. Louis Loose, Nellie R. Loose and Charles F. Diggs. At about the same time the Washington Florists' Co. was thrown into bankruptcy. Mr. Loose is the principal creditor.

The Florists' Club is arranging for an elaborate smoker in connection with the monthly meeting to be held at 1214 F street, northwest, February 2. Nominations for officers to serve during the ensuing year will also be called for at this meeting.

Among the visitors here last week were Sidney H. Bayersdorfer, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; William McKissick, representing Leo Niessen Co., Baltimore, Md.; E. W. Mitchell, Stuyvesant Falls, N. Y.; E. Klein, Gwynedd Station, Pa., and I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, L. I.

Gude Bros. Co. last week furnished the decorations for one of the largest balls of the season, given by Rear Admiral and Mrs. Richardson at Rausscher's.

The Market.

The market continues in the same general condition as at last writing. Receipts are slightly heavier, but are not strong enough to cause any appreciable change in conditions. Shipping business is good. More roses might have been used last week, had they been forthcoming. All the receipts in this line met with a waiting market. Carnations give indications of being more plentiful, but are selling well. The lily supply is large and continues to meet with a good call. Both callas and rubrums may also be had. The offerings in valley, violets and orchids are sufficient for immediate wants and are of high quality. The narcissus supply is large. Other offerings include Roman hyacinths, wallflowers, baby primroses and forget-me-nots.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some fine plumosus and Sprengeri from the Lake Shore Ferneries, at Leesburg, Fla.

P. J. Olinger went up to Newcastle, Ind., last week.

The fine baby primroses, forget-me-nots and wallflowers that L. H. Kyrk has been receiving from S. Batson, of Kalamazoo, Mich., have been meeting with a ready sale.

L. Davis, of P. J. Olinger's, who was injured recently by a fall on an icy sidewalk, is back at his work.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Critchell and R. Witterstaetter are about to leave for Buffalo. C. H. H.

HAMMOND'S THRIP JUICE No. 2

Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: After trying Thrip Juice No. 2 for two seasons, I can say it is the best article I ever used for thrip on roses or carnations, also for white fly. The latter was the worst pest we had to contend with, but after three applications, about four (4) days a part, we were practically free from it. I find it is advisable to apply in the evening, and with a good, strong force pump, proportion one to forty. [Signed] T. J. OPPERMAN, Florist,

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

A week of bad weather, including rain, snow, sleet and zero, and sometimes all four within twenty-four hours, is what we are having. As a result the supply of cut stock has fallen off, particularly roses, and—would you believe it?—the wholesalers really seem to glory in it! It had been so long since they could tell a man the price and know it would stand that some of them act like boys just out of school. Carnations have fallen off, but there is a quantity of bulbous stock, lilies, tulips, daffodils and Paper Whites. These are plentiful and are increasing daily. Some splendid lilac, freesia and sweet peas add to the variety; then there are yellow daisies, calendulas, wallflowers, mignonette and orchids. In fact, you can get almost anything asked for. Beauties have not been so plentiful, but the Killarneys and Richmond are coming in finer daily. Some fine valley is now in, a little short of foliage, but with splendid spikes of bells.

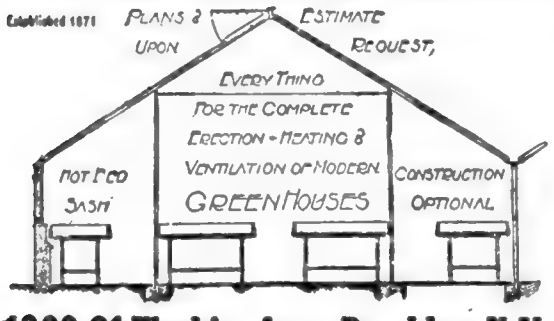
Various Notes.

C. Phillips opened a new store January 26, at the corner of Forbes and Dallas avenues. Mr. Phillips is a landscape gardener and will push that end of his business. He has also had experience in the cut flower end in New York city and London, so with his general knowledge of the business he should be quite successful.

The delegation from Pittsburgh to Buffalo included Fred Burki, T. P. Langhans, E. C. McCallum, George Marshall and James B. Murdoch. The party left January 26.

The Sunday closing bee is buzzing in the bonnets of the Pittsburgh wholesalers, who do not know what to do with it. Clarke.

WORCESTER, MASS.



The Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association recently held its winter convention here. Little business was transacted, as nearly all the time was given over to lectures. Moving pictures showing operations in the great orchards of Massachusetts were shown.

The florists' business in general is quiet. Flowers of all kinds are plentiful and prices low. A few large funerals have helped the retailers, but collections are slow.

Harry Randall's new store has some fine window displays and he reports good transient trade at his new stand.

H. F. A. Lange had a beautiful window last week, of cattleyas and cypripediums in baskets. This week he is featuring Rose Queen peas and white primrose plants. E. M.

The Market.

Reports from the wholesale trade appear to be quite satisfactory. Business has been good, notwithstanding the sudden fluctuations of the temperature. With the exception of roses, which have shortened up considerably, there remains a full line of good stock. Prices are better and are more in keeping with what they should be. There is a fair demand for Beauties. Sunburst, Shawyer, Cardinal and Ward still are our best sellers. Carnations are shortening up quite a little, for which we are glad. There have been too many on the market. Sweet peas are good and sell well. Lilacs have arrived, but there is no special demand for them. Orchids are in fine shape, price and quality meeting all demands. There are plenty of good lilies. Valley is selling somewhat better. Jonquils, which were quite glutty at first, are becoming less in number. Tulips, although short in stem, are selling better. Violets ars plentiful and cheap. Many potted plants are seen and sell fast.

Various Notes.

The New York State Federation of Florists' Clubs will hold its annual meeting at Ithaca February 10. Prof. White, head of the Floricultural Department of Cornell University, is arranging an attractive program. He asks for a goodly delegation from the Rochester association.

There has been quite a little whispering going the rounds. Some are anxious that the American Carnation Society hold its annual convention and exhibition in this city next year. A goodly number of Rochesterians are at Buffalo this week.

George Keller, Charles Suhr and David Scott, of Corfu, are cutting some fine jonquils.

Henry P. Neun had one of the prettiest windows in town last week. The setting was yellow and lavender.

Miss Rose E. Brown has been away from business for two weeks, having developed a bad cold.

Hugo Teute is cutting some beautiful Victoria narcissi. His cyclamens continue to bloom freely and sell well.

The second delegation of students from Cornell University visited a number of greenhouses in the Irondequoit section, January 23, and in the late afternoon made a tour of the flower stores in the uptown district.

H. E. Wilson has a splendid display of bulbous stock of all kinds. The hyacinths are particularly fine. H. J. H.

For Over Two Years Our Rafters Have Been Spaced 12 Feet 1¾ Inches Apart. We Were the First to do it. It's One of the Features of Our Reconstructed Construction.

FOR more than a year before we used this wide spacing on the first house, we had been experimenting.

Not only had our engineers figured it out, down to the smallest detail, the strength of and strain on every member, but we had made trial erections at our factory, and subjected the structures to actual tests, far in excess of anything that a completed greenhouse would be subjected to.

In our first house we strengthened the long stretch of purlins by a short truss, having a strut at the rafter.

But we now use a special purlin brace fitting, which is just as good and looks better.

With this wide spacing, not only do you have a third less rafters, but the great advantage of a third less columns as well.

Had you thought of that?

With a house 72 feet wide, for example, and 500 feet long, you have only two columns across the house and 39 lengthwise, or 78 in all, as against 118 with the old 8 feet 4 inches spacing.

So practical in every way has this wider rafter spacing of ours proven, after its three years' test, that unless we are greatly mistaken, you will see other builders following in our footsteps. It's going to be the construction of the future, there's not a bit of doubt of it. Send for our special circular about it.

These are a few of our customers who were first to see the advantages of Hitchings' Reconstructed Construction:

Always mention the Florists' Review when writing advertisers.

This simple little Chinese puzzle has to do with the load of the roof exerted on the rafter at a certain point.

No, this is not a kite, but a diagram of the capers the wind cuts up when it starts pushing on the roof.

How We Make Sure Our Roofs Are Safe and Sure

IT'S EASY ENOUGH to say that if a piece of iron of a certain size and strength will support a load of so many pounds, one twice the size would support twice the load. That's good enough as far as it goes—but it doesn't go far enough when it comes to greenhouse construction. It doesn't, because with every foot in width that you add to a house you shift the load. It may increase the load by three at some points and decrease it by a half at others. You absolutely must know to a pound—almost to an ounce—just

(1) How much the weight of the frame itself will be;
(2) How much the wind pressure will be;
(3) How much the snow pressure of an estimated given amount will be;
(4) How and where the pressure will be shifted from one member to another;
(5) How much margin should be figured in for a "safety factor" in the allowing of a surplus of strength for extraordinary conditions of snow and blow.
(6) You must know not only the weight and pressure exerted on the entire structure, but exactly what the weight and strain will be at any point.

These are things that can't be figured out on the back of an envelope "while you wait." It takes days, sometimes even weeks, to do it. But we never materially increase the width of our houses or make any radical change in our construction without first having our engineering department figure out stress and strain diagrams, like these shown here. These particular ones were worked out to prove to ourselves that we could safely build a house 83 feet wide and use only two columns.

These diagrams proved beyond all doubt that it was a safe and sure proposition; but they also showed to us that it was possible to greatly simplify our first construction design, making the house more desirable in every way and reducing its cost considerably. It took our engineering department over two weeks, working steadily, to reach these conclusions. How, then, any other than a highly trained greenhouse engineer can be depended on to figure safe on the engineering problems involved in big greenhouse building is more than we can understand; or how even a skilled engineer can handle it without the aid of information and data only such as can possibly be found in the possession of a greenhouse concern of years and years of experience, like Lord & Burnham.

When you want to build a safe and sure house, be it big or little, let's talk it over together. Say when and where and we'll be there.

CARNATIONS.

500,000 CARNATION CUTTINGS.

We are devoting our entire plant to the growing of carnation cuttings. Our stock plants are grown cool and not allowed to flower, so all the strength goes to the cuttings. Experience had proved beyond question that these are far superior to cuttings taken from flowering plants. We have an abundance of stock and our propagators are instructed to use only perfect cuttings. These are now rooting nearly 100%.

We invite you to come and see our stock.

GOOD STOCK for you for another season means SUCCESS; POOR STOCK means FAILURE.

Our guarantee goes with every cutting and, if not satisfactory, may be returned and money back.

THE WONDERFUL PELARGONIUM,
"EASTER GREETING,"
THE LEADER OF ALL BLOOMING POT PLANTS.

In offering this beautiful plant to the retail florists, we feel that we are placing you in a position to offer plants to the trade that no plant-loving man or woman can resist buying—a pelargonium that blooms from March to October, in fact the best plant, flowers and foliage, ever produced.

Our 2½-in. will make fine 5 and 6-in. for Memorial Day. If you can't buy a hundred, buy twenty-five; no order too small to receive our careful attention, none too large for us to handle.

We are one of America's largest growers of "E. G." We have customers in all parts of the United States, many who have sent in their second order upon receipt of the first. We have many testimonials stating: "The finest plants we have ever seen." Don't forget we guarantee our stock to be just as we advertise it. If plants you buy of us are not entirely satisfactory, return, and your money will be cheerfully refunded.

Good, strong, healthy A-1 stock, from 2½-in., $10.00 per 100. Cash or reference.

EASTER GREETING
BLOOMS FROM MARCH TO OCTOBER.
J. N. Spanabel & Sons, E. Palestine, O.

In the Florists' Exchange of Jan. 2, page 18, Fritz Bahr says: "Have you tried that splendid new pelargonium, Easter Greeting? If not, make room for it, for it is a good thing and you will have no trouble selling a good number of plants this spring. It is one of the new things that deserves pushing." That's what view we've been telling you and we are the real pushers, having sold 50,000 in 1914 and not a complaint. C. A. Bitner, Ft. Wayne, Ind., Jan. 13, sends an order and says: "I have a complaint about 'E. G.' I bought 25 last spring for stock, but they bloomed all summer and I got but few, so had to come again. CYPRESS BY TEST
SUBSTITUTES BY TALK

Is there value to you in an endurance test of 45 years in greenhouse sash? It is reported to us that sash made of heart Cypress by a prominent greenhouse contractor in Chicago and placed in position in a greenhouse at Des Plaines, Ill., in 1868, are still doing service.

Jacob Fries, Bethlehem, Pa., has Cypress sash that have stood the racket for 30 years and are still on the job. And these are not isolated cases—they represent no more than a fair test of "The Wood Eternal" for greenhouse use.

It will serve you as well and save you the nuisance and expense of repairs and replacements.

The argument backed by such facts cannot be answered by mere talk. Ask the manufacturer or contractor who wants to give you a "substitute" for Cypress to cite you to an endurance test of 30 or 45 years to the credit of the so-called "substitute."

If he would meet the Cypress record with more talk, and no test, then there's a "nigger in that woodpile." You know you would better pass up the "substitute" and stick to the real article, which is Cypress.

"PECKY" CYPRESS. You greenhouse men know how common it looks and how uncommon it lasts. The U. S. Govt. Rept. (Forest Service Bul. 95) says—"That the disease (which produces the 'peck') has been a long time preying upon Cypress timber is apparent from an examination of Cypress logs dug from alluvial deposits many feet below the present level of the Gulf of Mexico. Some of that prehistoric timber is pecky, though it has been buried during a period estimated at no less than 30,000 years. . . . The effect of the disease (known as 'Pecky') . . . . is believed to act as a preservative . . . . and to hinder decay."

Is 30,000 years' "hindering of decay" long enough for YOUR greenhouse?

There is no known record of rotten "Pecky." Use nothing else for benches and bench standards. It is cheap, too.

A postal will do, a letter is better—either brings a booklet or two from the famous CYPRESS Pocket Library (a strictly authoritative reference work). Vol. 3 is all about "GREENHOUSES." It is FREE. Send for it. Also ask for Vol. 2, on "Pecky"—a money-saver. Take no hearsay. GET THE FACTS. Then ACT. Vol. 4 is the Barn Book; Vol. 20 is "All Farm Needs Book"; Vol. 36 is the Carpentry Book, in which a dozen hard jobs of carpentry are made easy; and Vol. 37 is the Big New Silo Book. All contain plans for building and are profusely illustrated.

THE TEST OF TIME

Many houses look good on paper and when they are new, but not all stand the only real test: THE TEST OF TIME. You will find among the "old timers" many Dietsch houses that have stood this test and found not wanting.

Louisiana Cypress
Washington Red Cedar Greenhouse Hardware
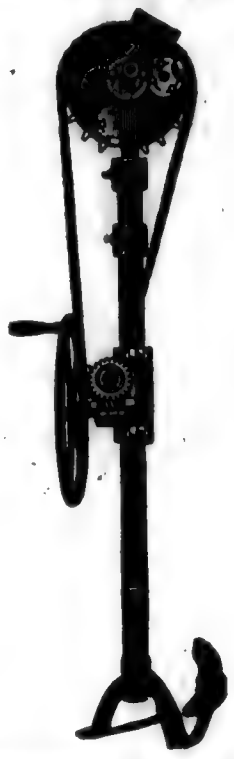
Wood or Pipe Posts
Pecky Cypress Benches



The Dietsch Patent Short Roof Construction
Patent V and U Gutters
Hotbed Sash
Galvanized and Copper Nails

Dietsch houses are designed and built on correct, scientific and practical principles. It is not our aim to meet our competitors' prices, for that would be inconsistent with good materials. To the grower who does not thoroughly investigate and compare, our proposition does not appeal.

LET US FURNISH YOU AN ESTIMATE.

Some Reasons Why Our Hotbed Sash Are Better

They are made of the very best Louisiana Red Cypress, absolutely free of sap and defects of any kind.

They are made by experts in our factory who have done nothing but make sash for us for forty years.

They are mortised and tenoned clear through. This gives the most rigid joint at the corners. Exhaustive tests, lasting over forty years, have shown that this joint lasts as long as any, and is much stronger.

All joints are dipped in white lead before they are put together.

The cross bar through the center is made of clear cypress, one-half of an inch in diameter. Each bar and the two sides of the sash are nailed to this cross rod. Thus the sash is securely bound together.

We do not use an iron rod because it is merely stuck into the sash loosely; thus, when you step on the bars of the sash, they bend under the weight, but do not spring back when the weight is removed.

We carry a big stock of hotbed sash on hand, and can fill your wants immediately. We can ship at once or hold your order until you are ready for the sash.
